Golfer Fuhrer goes to finals

By John Hinton

UNC's Frank Fuhrer will have his place in the sun as he competes against 30 collegiate golfers in the NCAA championships at Ohio State University's Scarlet Course. The tournament began yesterday and will continue through Friday.

The two-time All-American who averaged 73.4 this spring season earned his individual slot in the championships by winning the Iron Duke Classic, placing third in the Furman Intercollegiate and taking Top 10 spots in the Gator Invitational and Palmetto Classic.

"I feel if I play well, I have got a shot of winning it," Fuhrer said in a telephone interview. The junior physical education major stresses that he has a home field advantage because he is more accustomed to different grass conditions at the OSU course than most of his competitors.

The Pittsburgh, Pa., native sees his toughest competition from Bobby Camplet of Brigham Young and Gary Hallberg of Wake Forest. "There are a bunch of players who could win," Fuhrer said. "I can't worry about them, I will just have to play my game, and see how it comes out in the end."

Last summer, Fuhrer won the Western Pennsylvania Amateur and finished fourth in the Pennsylvania State Amateur, fifth in the Southern Amateur qualifier, seventh in the Porter Cup and sixth in the U.S. Amateur qualifier. By accomplishing this record, the recent winner of the U.S. Open District qualifier averaged a 71.95.

sophomore were equally commendable. While averaging a 73.6, the two time ACC golfer captured third-place honors in the ACC Tournament and Top 10 finishes in the Pinehurst Intercollegiate, the Gator Invitational and the Southern Intercollegiate tourneys.

Recruit John Inman gave Carolina's golf coach Devon Brouse a sneak preview of his talents as he seized individual honors of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association State Golf Tournament at Finley Golf Course with a two-day total of 142.

The Greensboro Grimsley High School senior, whose brother Joe is a professional golfer, will attend UNC this fall. Despite the fact that his brother went to perennial golf rival Wake Forest, Inman decided to be a Tar Heel.

"Wake Forest offered me only a partial scholarship, but UNC offered me a full scholarship," Inman said.

Former player turns coach for UNC summer baseball

By Sammy Batten

A little over a year ago, Greg Robinson was a starting rightfielder and hitting star on Carolina's highly rated baseball team.

This summer Robinson will be trading in his Louisville slugger for a fungo bat as he makes his debut as head coach of North Carolina's entry in the N. C. Collegiate Summer Baseball League.

Coaching isn't a new experience for Robinson. He received his initial opportunity following his junior year at Carolina. "When I decided to get my master's degree, I asked Coach Mike Roberts if I could be his graduate assistant coach, and he told me yes," Robinson said.

His duties this past spring included coaching the jayvee squad and aiding Roberts with the varsity. Roberts will be on vacation this summer while Robinson takes the helm.

During his successful playing career Robinson played on the 1978 Tar Heel team which finished third in the College World Series. He still owns the school marks for most runs batted in for a game (eight) and most games played in a single season (55).

Greg spent most of last summer playing minor league baseball in the Texas Ranger organization. Robinson gave up his professional career to "get out in the real world." He returned to Chapel Hill last fall to work on his master's degree.

The team Robinson takes over will be a young one and he said he believes it will be a learning experience. "You can find out what you know," Robinson said. "We'll have a lot of young guys and it will be a good experience to work with them."

Coaching philosophies are developed through experience and Robinson has had plenty. "Each coach decides for himself about a coaching philosophy," Robinson said, "but usually he takes from his experiences with all of his coaches and molds his own. I had a real good high school coach, plus playing under Coach (Walter) Rabb and Roberts."

Efforts to make Carolina a national baseball power began under Coach Roberts. Robinson feels recruiting was the most important step.

"When I first came here, recruiting was limited to the local region," said Robinson, "but now Coach Roberts recruits on a national level and goes after the top players."

Robinson looks forward to a bright future in baseball. "I hope to get a small-college coaching job or assistant's job. I like working with kids and recruiting. That's my main goal, to recruit my own team and run my own program."
