Cable TV to be ready soon; will offer 35 new channels

Chapel Hill residents should soon be enjoying the addition of 35 cable television channels.

Jim Heavner, president of Village Cable, the company holding Chapel Hill's cable franchise, said Tuesday that construction on the system was moving along fine. "We are right on schedule," said Heavner, "but not without some headaches. In some areas, we are ahead of schedule."

Heavner said that services should be ready to be turned on by next week in the town's Carol Woods. Construction, which began in January, is scheduled to be completed toward the end of the year.

Construction started at the south end of town and is working toward the north end, Heavner said.

The company is using coaxial cable to service the town. "It's the highest quality cable," said Heavner. "It can service 35 channels, and this may be the first 35-channel service in North Carolina."

"We hope to serve the campus in the future," said Heavner. "There are no plans for construction (there) now. We are trying to finish servicing the town."

...sidewalks temporarily removed to make way for pipes

Pipes cause bricks to flip

Contrary to popular belief, the bricks on walkways in front of UNC's libraries and in the Pit do not have to be turned over every five years. They are being taken up for another reason.

"We are putting chilled water disbursement lines down," said Gordon Rutherford, Director of University Planning. "Cold water will run from the Northside Chiller plant to air-condition the buildings in the new library area: Lenior Hall, Manning Hall, Greenlaw, Hamilton Hall, Daniels Student Store, the student Union, the new library, the R.B. House Library and Wilson Library."

Rutherford said that these buildings are just part of the first phase of the project. Eventually the whole campus will be covered.

The present construction will go as far as the entrance of the Carolina Union. Claude Swecker, director of the University physical plant said, "Construction requires that the pipeline in front of Wilson library has to be finished before school starts this fall. Hopefully it will be. The new piping will enhance reliability in all buildings because we are tying all systems together."

Another representative indicted in ABSCAM case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa., was indicted Wednesday on bribery charges, the second congressman to be charged in the Abscam political corruption probe. The indictment, handed down by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn, N.Y., charged three other men with aiding and abetting the bribery.

Also named in the indictment were Angelo J. Errichetti, mayor of Camden, N.J., and a New Jersey state senator; Philadelphia councilman Louis C. Johanson, and Howard L. Criden, a Philadelphia attorney.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said in a written statement that all four defendants were charged with bribery conspiracy and with interstate travel to aid racketeering.

Errichetti, Johanson and Criden previously have been indicted on charges resulting from the Abscam investigation, in which FBI agents posed as representatives of a wealthy Arab businessman willing to pay money for political favors.

On Tuesday, Rep. Michael O. Myers, D-Pa., became the first member of Congress to be indicted in the Abscam investigation. Myers was charged under bribery and racketeering statutes by the same Brooklyn grand jury.

According to the indictment, Lederer received $50,000 from undercover FBI agents after giving them assurances that he would introduce private immigration bills to enable the Arab businessmen to remain in the United States and would take other action to aid them if necessary.

Lederer received the money last September at a hotel near John F. Kennedy Airport in New York, and shared it with the other three defendants, the indictment said.
