

A top reserve

For Kelvin Bryant, backing up doesn't mean sitting down

By DAVID POOLE
Assistant Sports Editor

It's really hard to call Kelvin Bryant a second-stringer. The sophomore from Tarboro is just that on the 1980 Carolina football team, playing behind All-America candidate Amos Lawrence at tailback. But the designation is correct in name only. There's nothing second rate about the way Bryant carries the football.

"I know that if Amos gets tired," Bryant said, "I can go in and do as good as he can. I don't think Amos minds. He knows I can play."

Together, Lawrence and Bryant give Carolina a potent tailback tandem. They combined for 224 yards and all five UNC touchdowns in the 1980 opener against Furman. Bryant gained 105 yards on 17 carries and scored three times.

Since Bryant is good enough to start on a lot of teams, one wonders if he gets tired of not being a starter. Bryant says he's willing to wait his turn.

"I've got two more years," he said. "This is Amos' senior year and I want him to have a great year. But I'll be ready if they need me."

"I think I'm a little faster and stronger than Amos," he added. "But Amos has been here longer and I guess he knows more. I look at my role as a reserve role."

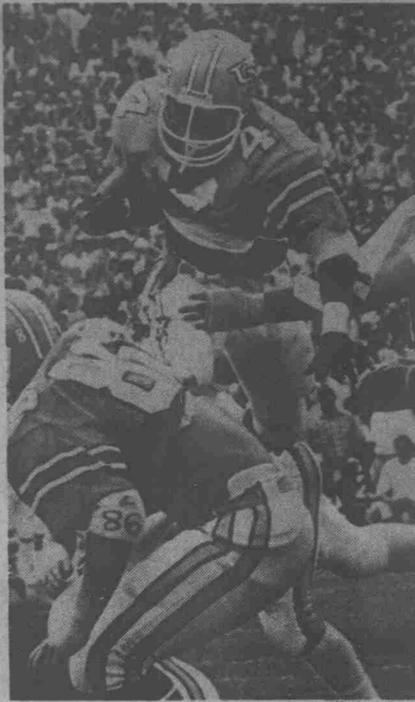

Bryant's role with the Carolina team draws discussion from outside the program. Bryant says he's heard rumors that he and Lawrence don't get along, and he's quick to point out that Amos Lawrence and Kelvin Bryant are teammates, not competitors.

"That's just talk," Bryant said of the rumors. "We room together on the road and our relationship is good. He helps me and I listen to him. I admire him a lot."

Down the road, Bryant is likely to become the No. 1 Tar Heel tailback. It's a position that has been filled by some of the finest players ever to snap on a Carolina Blue helmet—Charlie Justice, Don McCauley, Sammy Johnson and Mike Voight to name a few.

Bryant says he's preparing for that now, even while serving as an understudy to Lawrence. "I practice hard," he said. "I try to work on the things that I need to improve. I'll just do the best I can."

But Bryant won't spend the entire 1980 season on the sidelines. Coach Dick Crum has said he plans to use Bryant whenever Lawrence needs a rest.

But somebody has to start, and Amos Lawrence has that job. Bryant isn't likely to join Lawrence in the starting backfield either, for two very good reasons. First, Bryant says he doesn't really like to play fullback; second, the current fullback, Billy Johnson, blocks like a tackle and is an adequate runner.

It's a pleasant problem to have, when there's a guy on the bench who could easily be starting for the team across the field.

And when your ace in the hole is someone as talented as Kelvin Bryant, it is easier to play the cards you already have in your hand.

Delta Upsilon tops Manly in softball

In the top half of the sixth inning of Monday's Graff Mural softball finals, with Delta Upsilon third baseman Clay Collier at bat, Manly Dorm outfielder Charlie Engle took a seat on the hill in deep right field at Ehringhaus Field.

It was a fitting picture of the frustration of the Manly Mystery Man.

The spirited DUs outfit, outfielded and out-yelled Manly in winning the final by a surprising 10-0 score.

the out-of-play right-field hill was the breaking point for Manly.

Outfielder Richard Hauser followed with a two-run home run that iced the game, but not without a touch of controversy. Hauser missed third—"by a mile," he said—while circling the bases, but two Manly appeal attempts were ruled improper by umpire George Hollodick.

The game, however, was all but over once the DUs started hitting in the third inning.

"We hit in spurts," outfielder Mark Edwards said. "On Sunday we had seven hits in a row and then nothing after that. We just got pumped up."

Not to be overlooked was the DUs nearly flawless defense which turned three double plays.

"We have about six guys on the team who go home in the summer and play shortstop, traditionally where the best fielders play," said second baseman Burgess, who had a hand in all three of the double plays. "Anytime you have six shortstops on a team you can expect good defense."

The shutout by Ellwood King was the second in a row for the DUs, who did not allow a run in their last 17 innings. The DUs got into the final by beating Ernest T. Bass, a team composed mainly of law students, 2-0. Manly beat Pi Kappa Phi 2-0 to reach the final.

Notes: Entries for the first "Wimbledon Volleyball Tournament" to be held Sept. 16 on Ehringhaus Field are due at the Intramural Office on Friday, Sept. 12. Entries for the IM Track and Field meet on Sept. 22 and 23 are due Sept. 17. IM football play has begun. Anyone needing help with the new self-scheduling system can contact Janis Matson at 933-1006.

The DUs scored first in the second inning. With two outs, second baseman Tim Burgess singled and then scored from first on Manly shortstop John Edwards' throwing error past first baseman Ken Church.

In the third, the DUs erupted for six runs on eight hits and put the game out of Manly's reach. Clay Collier's two-run triple on a ball caught by Edwards on
