Grants available for student projects

The University Counseling Center this year will offer students the opportunity to receive grants to fund self-designed humanities projects in a program called Youthgrants.

To be eligible for these grants, students must present a summary of their proposed projects to the National Endowment for Humanities in Washington, D.C. by Nov. 15.

According to Ruth Bernstein, program director of Pre-Career Experience Program, Youthgrants offers students an opportunity to get paid for doing something they like to do. Further information is available from PEP at Nash Hall.

Berstein also said students needed to begin looking for summer jobs now. Getting a summer job means six to nine months of checking out options, writing resumes and making contacts, Bernstein said.

PEP helps students to do this, she said. To participate in this program, a student must attend one of its orientation meetings. The next scheduled meeting is at 1 p.m. Monday, Sept. 22, in 208 Gardner Hall.

Foreign policy adviser to speak

Ambassador Marshall D. Shulman, special adviser to the U.S. Secretary of State on Soviet affairs, will speak about Soviet-American relations tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall.

His talk "From Rorschach to Rashomon to Bumper Stickers," will explore a variety of viewpoints on foreign policy.

Shulman was formerly director of the Russian Institute at Columbia University and is on national service leave from his faculty position as Adlai E. Stevenson professor of international relations.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

khaki (kak'e) n.

1. The Hindu word "khaki" means "of earth" or "of dust" as applied to the modern uniform cloth color. The French claim that their colonial troops in India became so tired of the road dust on their white uniforms that they had them dyed dust color.

2. The Khaki slacks at The Hub of Chapel Hill are a classic. Belt loops, plain front. Our all cotton Khakis are $28.50 and the poly-cotton blends are $27.50.

Don't just take our word for it... come get into a pair for yourself.
