

Women netters take ACC title

From staff reports

UNC defeated Clemson by two points, 58-56, to win the team title in the Atlantic Coast Conference women's tennis tournament last weekend.

The three-day, seven-team tourney saw the Tar Heels take three singles titles and two doubles titles.

Freshman Kathy Barton defeated Linda Patlovich of Duke 6-2, 6-1 to capture the No. 2 singles championship.

Betsy Heidenberger and Katharine Hogan each came in second in No. 3 and No. 4 singles competition.

Lloyd Hatcher won at No. 5 singles by beating Maria Echarte of Clemson in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

Jennifer Balent, Carolina's lone NCAA entrant last year, beat Clemson's Jennifer Hirsch 6-2, 6-1 to win the No. 6 singles championship.

Balent wasn't as lucky at No. 3 doubles. Balent and Margaret Scott lost in the finals in straight sets.

Margie Brown and Heidenberger defeated Duke's top duo in three sets to take the No. 1 doubles title.

Hatcher and Hogan took the No. 2 doubles championship in three sets.

Susan Hill won the No. 1 singles crown and won the MVP award.

Duke came in third in team points followed by Virginia, Wake Forest, Maryland and N.C. State.

Ties in sports usually are called unsatisfactory to both teams, but for the North Carolina men's soccer team, Sunday's 2-2 tie with last year's NCAA runner-up Clemson gave it some needed respectability.

"The tie doesn't hurt us, and it does help us," UNC coach Anson Dorrance said. "We're ranked fourth in the South now, which is the highest ever."

Clemson scored first early in the game, but Carolina came back with first-half scores by Sean Naber and Tony Johnson to take a 2-1 lead at halftime. The Tigers evened the score in the second half and both teams failed to convert in a scoreless overtime.

"It was a thriller," Dorrance said. "This was the first time Clemson didn't dominate the entire match. We played well but not exceptional. This shows our potential because you usually have to play exceptionally well to beat Clemson, and we didn't but came away with a tie."

Freshmen played key roles against Clemson, Dorrance said. "Joe Marr stepped in and played well on defense and Mike Fiocco was outstanding at midfield."

weekend roundup

Dorrance said the offense opened many opportunities in taking 18 shots. "Sean Naber had the best game of his career and Tony Johnson gave a lot of help after being injured. He's proving that we really need him in there."

The Tar Heels came into Clemson nursing several injured players from a physical 2-0 overtime win over Virginia last week.

"I'm proud of this team," Dorrance said. "We went against Virginia with a lot of injuries and tired players and beat them in overtime. It shows the character of the team. We were so worn out after Virginia that we just had a recreational practice of soccer volleyball. It paid off against Clemson because we were in better shape physically."

As a strange aftermath to the game, the tie with UNC vaulted Clemson back into the national rankings after several weeks of being unranked, while the Tar Heels remained ignored by the pollsters. The Tigers are ranked 19th, one spot above Old Dominion, a 4-0 loser to Carolina.

Carolina had owned the N.C. Intercollegiate Cross Country Championship title since 1976. But Saturday, N.C. State ran away with the 1980 title on its own turf.

The Wolfpack placed five runners in the Top 10, led by Julie and Mary Shea.

The UNC women placed second behind State, and the Tar Heel came in third behind State and Pembroke.

Jimmy Cooper finished seventh for UNC in the men's division while Nancy Radford finished sixth for Carolina in the women's division. Janice High and Meg Heffernan ran ninth and 10th, respectively.

Gary Hofstetter, former UNC Varsity runner, won the 9,000-meter open race for the UNC Track Club.

Carolina's field hockey team continued to recover from early seasons woes last Thursday, defeating Duke 1-0 to even its season record at 5-5.

The contest wasn't as close as the score indicated, with Carolina dominating the goal area and outshooting Duke 25-4. Sophomore Kim Knickerbocker scored the winner 25 minutes into the first period on an unassisted goal.

Carolina now can gain the No. 1 seed in the state tournament with a victory over Appalachian State on Thursday. The ASU game will be played at 4 p.m. on Hinton James Field.

The subject of national attention is beginning to become relevant to Carolina. The Tar Heels were featured in Monday's New York Times and a Sports Illustrated writer was also in town this weekend. With an important matchup with Oklahoma two weeks hence, people may be beginning to wonder if the pressure such attention brings will make any difference.

"This team has been mature enough not to let the press attention become a problem," Crum said. "We've been able to keep our mind on our business."

The business at hand for the Tar Heels is not Oklahoma but East Carolina, a team that comes to Chapel Hill Saturday with a 3-3 record.

"ECU presents a different set of problems for us," Crum said. "I'm sure they'll come in here really fired up. It's not a ball game that anyone should ignore. This will be a tough football game. I think our players realize that."

"People have been talking about the Oklahoma game since before the season started," he added. "For me and for the team, Oklahoma is light years away."
