

Kicking soccer ball still fun for Johnson

By DAVID POOLE
Assistant Sports Editor

It all began for Tony Johnson the day he went to soccer practice with his older brother. On that day, the young 7th-grader in Bules Creek, just started kicking around the old soccer ball.

Before long, he was hooked. "Once you get the hang of soccer," he said, "it's hard to stop playing, because it's just so much fun."

Soccer is still fun for Tony Johnson, but now he kicks the old soccer ball around for North Carolina where there's a whole lot more at stake than just seeing how many times in a row he can make the ball bounce on his head.

Johnson has come a long way since that day seven years ago and now, as a sophomore, he is one of the key players on Anson Dorrance's 1980 UNC team.

Things haven't always been as good for Johnson at Carolina; last year he had trouble getting the kind of playing time to which he had become accustomed as a high school star. It was a difficult adjustment for Johnson to make.

"Last year was hard," he said. "If you're good in high school, you think you're supposed to come in and be the best. When you don't just start playing, it hurts your confidence."

"If you don't have confidence, you can't concentrate. You can't do the little things," he added. "You have to feel confident that you can beat somebody one on one."

After sitting out much of the action last season, Johnson has become a vital cog in the Tar Heel attack in 1980. He picked up his eighth assist of the season Wednesday against Maryland and he has also scored eight goals. He has managed to amass those numbers despite a painful groin pull that slowed him for several games.

But Johnson is reluctant to talk about his individual performance. He chooses instead to talk of how he and his teammates are doing in their bid for a berth in the NCAA soccer tournament.

"We have to win the rest of our games to get a bid," he said. "I think our record is good (the Heels are now 15-2-1) because the team is better than last year's. We have a lot of new players who are really helping out."

Carolina's defense has been strong this year, as the Tar Heels registered their 11th shutout Wednesday against Maryland. The UNC offense, however, sputtered early in the year, but Johnson feels Carolina now has the problems worked out.

"Early in the season, we didn't have everything working," Johnson said. "Now, we've finally gotten into the system that we've been working on."

Although Carolina soccer matches drew fairly large crowds earlier in the year, the crowd size has dwindled since the weather has turned colder. Johnson says that large crowds would be nice, but that the team can get along without them.

"It would be nice to have a lot of fans when we play," he said. "You play better when a lot of people are cheering for you. But it doesn't really matter. We're not trying to impress anyone; we're just trying to meet the goals we set for ourselves."

As for the rigors of practice, Johnson says that even something as much fun as kicking around the old soccer ball can get tiring.

"If you play anything year 'round, sometimes its going to get old," Johnson said. "It can be especially hard in the off-season when you aren't playing competitively. But you get ready when the season starts."

And, if there was ever any doubt, Johnson will give you the final judgment on his game. "Soccer is still a lot of fun."

Field hockey to play ASU for state title

The attention will be mostly on Norman, Okla., and football this weekend, but it's also an important time of the year for several other UNC athletic teams.

The UNC field hockey team will play for its third straight NCAAIAW title at 11:30 a.m. today in Durham against Appalachian State.

Appalachian advanced to the finals with a 1-0 win over Duke Thursday. Carolina defeated ASU 4-1 earlier in the season.

"We're pretty excited about the game and expect to do well," said Carolina's leading scorer, Ann Donio.

The Carolina volleyball team will play in the first Atlantic Coast Conference volleyball tournament which begins today in Raleigh.

Carolina's men's cross country team will run in the ACC Championships at Winston-Salem Saturday and the women's cross country team will participate in the Region II championships in Charlottesville, Va.

Bat girls needed

Carolina baseball coach Mike Roberts has asked that anyone interested in serving as one of the "Diamond Gals" for the 1981 baseball season contact Pat at 933-4767 or Laura at 967-3044.

Those interested in working as a bat girl should call before Nov. 7.

Nationally ranked soccer team faces State

It was a long time coming, but the North Carolina men's soccer team finally received a national ranking. With that behind it, Carolina must now prove its worthiness against N.C. State at 2 p.m. Saturday on Fetzer Field.

After a 2-0 blanking of Maryland Wednesday, the Tar Heels were told they were ranked 16th in the nation, the only Atlantic Coast Conference team to be so. They are third in the Southern region.

UNC coach Anson Dorrance said the ranking will not make Carolina overconfident for the Wolfpack. "We have no delusions of grandeur," Dorrance said. "We think being ranked is indicative of the kind of year we're having. We're still pretty humble and just excited to get the national recognition."

The win over the Terps raised the Tar Heels' record to 15-2-1 and 2-0-1 in the ACC.

The Tar Heels had a look at State earlier this season during the Mayor's Cup held at Fetzer Field. The Wolfpack could do no better than third in the tournament, but Dorrance was impressed with what he saw.

"State is awesome," he said. "They have two of the best forwards in the conference. They will be doubly hard to contain. On defense, their goalie isn't experienced, but he's very capable."

Dorrance said freshman defender Jim Poff was the most valuable player of the Maryland game and would mark one of the State forwards. He said he hadn't decided whether Jay Ainslie or Joe Maher would guard the other.

The North Carolina women's team returned from a two-game trip to Washington, D.C., with a split and now travels to Fayetteville for the North Carolina State Championships starting Saturday.

The Tar Heels defeated George Washington 1-0 on a Janet Rayfield goal assisted by Ginger Hurst and Nancy Clary. The Heels then fell to the Virginia Select for the third time this season by the score of 2-0.

Tennis team travels to Miami tourney

Carolina's conference champion tennis team will go into action this weekend for the final time this fall in the Catherine Sample Memorial Tournament in Miami, Fla.

This is the second consecutive year that the Tar Heels have played in this tournament. Carolina was sixth last year.

"It's a highly competitive tournament," coach Kitty Harrison said. "It's an honor just to be invited."

Harrison did not know all the teams that were invited, but she said Trinity, Texas, Florida, Rollins, Florida State,

South Carolina and LSU were all expected to play in the tournament.

"Our biggest challenges in the tournament will come from Florida, Trinity and Texas," Harrison said. "But every team in the field is a very good team."

With such a field, each team will be given some national exposure. Harrison said national exposure was particularly important to the Tar Heels, since the team was hoping for a bid to the nationals this fall.

The Tar Heels will certainly have some momentum going into the Miami tournament. After losing a late regular season match to Clemson, the Heels came back to upset the Tigers by two points in the conference tournament. Playing a major role in the Tar Heel victory was freshman Kathy Barton. Barton, who had lost back-to-back matches at the end of the regular season was only seeded fifth in the No. 2 flight. Playing coolly and confidently, the Cincinnati, Ohio native worked her way to the championship of her flight.
