Georgia takes team, individual honors

By GARY MANGUM
Staff Writer

The Georgia Bulldogs used the play of medalist Mitzi Edge to overcome a six-shot Ohio State lead and win the team title in the Lady Tar Heel Invitational Golf Tournament at Finley Golf Course Monday.

Georgia shot a final-round team total of 301 to take a five-stroke victory. Georgia had a 54-hole total of 912 to edge Ohio State's 917. Florida International finished third at 927.

North Carolina finished fifth with 320-315-316-951, two shots behind South Carolina.

Several Tar Heels said they were disappointed with their performance. "We can play better than we played in this tournament," coach Dot Gunnells said. "I think the players wanted to win so badly that they got a little tense."

Linda Mescan; Carolina's lowest individual scorer in the tournament with a 232 total, agreed. "We may have been a little tight—we tried to make up too many strokes too fast."
"We should have played better since we knew the course and the greens."

Gunnells said only two players shot low scores during the tournament, with Cathy Reynolds' 74 on the final day being the team's best score. "Most of our scores were in the high 70s and 80s," she said. "With the type of field we had here in this tournament, you would have to be in the mid-70s to be competitive."

The difference in the final round was that Georgia's top four players, Edge, Lori Clark, Carolina Gowan and Cindy Plegler shot 73, 75, 76 and 77, respectively; while Ohio State's top four of Karin Munding, Rose Jones, Kelly Trent and Dorothy Aikman shot 76, 77, 77 and 82. That amounted to an 11-shot swing, which was enough to give Georgia the title.

Despite his team's fall to second place, Ohio State coach Steve Groves wasn't very disappointed. "We played a lot better than I thought we would," he said. "We surprised ourselves with the 295 first day."

"I think we may have put a little too much pressure on ourselves after that—that 295 hurt us more than it helped us."

Georgia's Edge also had to make a comeback in the individual race. She started the final round in third place, two shots behind Munding and one behind Laurie Blair of Florida International.

Edge caught the two by shooting an even par 73 while Blair shot 74 and Munding 76. The three finished in a three-way tie for first when Munding took a bogey on the final hole.

Edge won the sudden death playoff on the fourth extra hole by sinking a three-foot putt for birdie after reaching the green on the par five hole in two shots. She and Blair had matched pars up to that hole. Munding was eliminated on the first extra hole when she found the left-hand bunker with her approach shot and missed a short putt for par.

A big hitter off the tee, Edge attributed her success to her play on the par fives. "I can reach a lot of the par fives," she said, "but, it's good to know that you can shoot toward the greens (on the par fives) and still be able to hit it up and make birdie (if you miss the green)."

Edge almost didn't get a chance to perform her heroics at the fourth hole. On the par four third hole, she put her approach shot on the fringe and, putting down a steep incline, put her first putt some eight feet by the hole. Meanwhile, Blair, who had tied the women's course record in the first round with a 69, was safely on in two.

Tar Heel golfer Carla Daniel ...second-best UNC finisher in tourney

Blair missed her 14-foot birdie putt, and Edge responded by sinking her putt to sent the match to the next hole.

Minnesota's Kathy Williams finished fourth in the individual race at 225 and Gowan of Georgia finished fifth at 228.

For the Tar Heels, Carla Daniel finished second on the team with a 239. Reynolds shot 240, Lucy Lofland shot 244, and Kathy Ayers shot 244.

The Tar Heels now prepare for the NCAAIAW state tournament Nov. 15-16. The Heels are the defending champions, with Mescan the defending medalist.

Sad Eyes

Carolina linebacker Darrell Nicholson's expression sums up the feeling of many Tar Heels following Saturday's 41-7 loss to Oklahoma. The loss wiped the Heels from the unbeaten ranks. They now prepare for Saturday's regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference game with Clemson. Kickoff is at 12:35 p.m. from Clemson.

Balance key to women's soccer win

The North Carolina women's soccer team, accustomed to large victory margins over its opponents, found in winning the North Carolina Women's Soccer Tournament Sunday in Fayetteville that it could learn from losing as well.

After being swept by the Virginia Select in three games by decreasing margins, the Tar Heels came to Fayetteville an improved team and swept through the 16-team field by a combined score of 35-0.

Midfielder Nancy Clary said the 5-0 win over the Fairfax, Va. Hellcats in the tournament finals was one of the teams' best performances of this season.

"The Hellcats had an excellent team," Clary said. "We were really cooking. We beat them to the ball and anticipated well. There wasn't any stopping us Sunday. I don't think anyone could have beaten us, not even the Select."

The leading scorers for the Tar Heels in the tournament were Janet Rayfield and Ann Klas, with nine goals apiece. Rayfield has been the Tar Heels' leading scorer throughout the season, but Klas said the team's performance was indicative of a more balanced attack.

"Everyone passed well," Klas said. "Finally, our offensive game came together. Everyone was getting in the offense, it wasn't just Janet. Nobody was hogging the ball."

The Tar Heels are working toward the national championships to be held in Colorado next week. The four shutouts are a sign that the defense is as strong as ever, and stopper Susan Ellis said UNC was looking to improve on its offense to compete at the nationals.

"We're working on our offense," Ellis said. "The defense is more a matter of intensity, of how much you want to win. If the offense has Janet at 100 percent, then we'll do well."

Carolina has found scoring against quality teams like the Select difficult, but Clary said coach Anson Dorrance is helping the offense tactically. "We are using the things he's teaching us," she said. "We're working the plays; the forward line is going to the ball. The offense is improving."

The Tar Heels next go up against the Raleigh Strikers at 1 p.m. Saturday at Fetzer Field.

The North Carolina women's cross country team finished sixth Saturday in the AIAW Region II championships at Piedmont Community College in Charlottesville, Va.

N.C. State dominated the event, winning the team title with a score of 32 and taking the top three places individually.

State beat Virginia by 18 points in taking the regional title. Tennessee was third with 61 points and Kentucky finished fourth with 100.

Clemson edged out Carolina by three points, 145 to 148, to take fifth place.

Carolina's top finisher was Nancy Radford who placed 21st in a field of 48 with a time of 17:40.9. Margaret Daniel was 28th with a 17:53.9 and Joan Nesbitt was 32nd with a time of 18:13.8.

Lindy Appen had an 18:32.4 for 35th place for Carolina, with Meg Heffern and Janice High taking 37th and 38th, respectively. Carolyn Follows was the other Tar Heel participant, finishing 41st.
