

Jury begins deliberations in Klan-Nazi trial

By MARK ANCONA
Staff Writer

GREENSBORO—After a trial lasting 21 weeks, an all-white jury began deliberations Friday to determine the fate of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis accused of the slayings of five Communist demonstrators a year ago. The Superior Court jury will reconvene today at 9:30 a.m. to continue deliberations.

The jurors spent more than two hours Friday listening to legal instructions on the case and then, after a short session of deliberation, retired for lunch.

Following the recess the jury announced the election of Octavio Manduley as foreman. Manduley, a Greensboro resident who is a tobacco research chemist, is the only member of the jury who has a college education.

At 5 p.m., the jury informed Superior Court Judge James M. Long that they would reconvene Monday and would deliberate Tuesday if necessary. Tuesday is Veterans Day and the jury had the option not to deliberate on this national holiday.

Long said he would not sequester the jurors over the weekend, but he asked them to avoid large gatherings where the trial could be discussed and also that their phone calls be taken and checked by family members.

He stressed the importance of the case and appealed to the jurors to use their common sense in reference to discussing the trial.

The jurors must consider the testimonies of more than 125 witnesses and the presentation of more than 600 pieces of evidence before rendering a decision.

Because of this, Long warned the jury not to make a premature decision.

"Please do not jeopardize a unanimous vote by taking an early vote," he said.

The six defendants are charged with five counts of first-degree murder and one count of felonious rioting.

Long told the jury that they could reach one of these possible verdicts: guilty of first-degree murder, guilty of second-degree murder, guilty of voluntary manslaughter or a verdict of not guilty.

The six defendants charged are: Jerry Paul Smith, 32, of Maiden; David Wayne Matthews, 24, of Newton; Lawrence Gene Morgan, 28, of Lincolnton; Roland Wayne Wood, 35, of Winston-Salem; Coleman Blair Pridmore, 37, of Lincolnton; and Jack Wilson Fowler, 27, of Winston-Salem.

Iran, Iraq trade raids; both claim fresh gains

The Associated Press

Iran and Iraq traded air and sea raids on each other's oil lifelines Sunday and both claimed fresh gains in ground combat.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr convened a war council in an undisclosed city in the frontline province of Khuzistan, Tehran radio reported.

Shortly afterward, the radio, monitored in Beirut, Lebanon, said Iran would ration basic commodities, such as sugar and electricity, to help the war effort and that the price of gasoline in the oil-rich nation soon would be tripled.

Iraq, reaffirmed it would not free the captured Iranian oil minister.

Meanwhile, in Iran, the arrest of former Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh rekindled a political feud between moderates and radicals that threatened the fragile unity brought about by the war with Iraq.

The power struggle pitting supporters of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr against backers of Islamic Republican Party leader Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti spilled over into Parliament Sunday.

At issue was who had authority to appoint a new director of state-run radio and television to replace Mohammad Mobarkeh Islami, who was fired and ordered arrested after allowing Ghotbzadeh to criticize opponents in an interview.

Ghotbzadeh, an ally of Bani-Sadr and former Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, was arrested Thursday night. He was taken to Tehran's Evin prison after Beheshti supporters accused him of telling lies about the management of a television channel controlled by the Islamic Republican Party.

The infighting comes at a time when Iran has failed to score a single known major battlefield victory against the invading Iraqis. The economy also is suffering from a lack of oil revenues, which were expected to total $10 billion this year before the war halted exports. The issue of the 52 American hostages held in Iran remains unresolved.

unemployment," he said of industries relocating abroad, specifically naming RCA Corp.'s move from Memphis and Cincinnati to Taiwan.

"If we continue to forfeit industry at the rate we're doing it today...we'll be an underdeveloped country," he said.

The labor leader expressed caution about a possible government-sponsored reindustrialization plan and anger with some economists' suggestions that workers be willing to take a 5 percent pay cut while businesses are provided production incentives. "I'm not going to play," he said. "They can go straight to hell."

Wimpinsinger also criticized a recent tax change allowing oil companies to increase the inventory value of oil still in the ground. "If they have to be bribed, by God, to produce synthetic fuel, then they ought to be nationalized in the public interest."

Appropriations Committee, which will be chaired by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., in the new GOP-dominated Senate.

An aide said Hatfield agreed with most of Reagan's campaign proposals on defense, but opposed the MX missile system and had reservations about a $20 billion spending increase.

Further mechanization of industry, especially assembly-line production, poses a challenge to the economy that can be met only by shortening the average work week from 40 hours to 35 or 30 hours, he said. "Even with the new technology, there should be enough for all."

Earlier Friday, Wimpinsinger said that getting the media to show unions in a more favorable light was essential to current unionization efforts. In North Carolina, the media portrays union workers as "some kind of blight on the North Carolina landscape," he said.

In another labor development, a North Carolina chapter of the Labor Committee for Safe Energy and Full Employment was formed Friday. The committee seeks to encourage working people to oppose nuclear power and favor use of more labor-intensive energy forms.

The aide, Rick Rolf, said Hatfield hoped a new U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, plus more defense help from American allies, would keep military spending down.

And Hatfield favors putting U.S. intercontinental nuclear missiles on submarines, rather than developing the ground-launched MX mobile missile system.

Meanwhile, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who will be chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called last week for several defense programs which Reagan has not endorsed—at least, not so far.

Tower predicted the next Congress would approve a new strategic bomber to replace the B-52s and said production of jetfighters should be speeded up.

Tower also said he favored development of the neutron weapon, although he noted that would require revision of an agreement between the U.S. and its allies not to use the device.

News In Brief

Begin arrives for farewell meeting

NEW YORK (AP)—Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived in New York Sunday for a 10-day visit which is to include get-togethers with the American Jewish community and a farewell meeting with President Carter.

Begin, who spent the day resting at a Manhattan hotel after arriving at Kennedy International Airport just before 6 a.m., has said he does not expect to meet with President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Lame-duck Congress to return

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress is returning to town this week for the first lame-duck session in a presidential election year in 32 years, giving Democrats thrown out of office the chance for a last stand.

A test of whether the 1980 lame-duck Congress will be productive may come on the proposed $39 billion tax-cut bill being pushed by congressional Republicans—with the blessings of President-elect Ronald Reagan. But it is opposed by the House Democratic leadership.

Poland: session could spark strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Leaders of Poland's defiant trade union "Solidarity" mapped strategy Sunday in the last hours before a Supreme Court session that could spark a new wave of strikes in this Soviet-bloc nation.

At the same time, the Communist government stepped up its warnings of grave social and economic consequences of a strike.

Sunday marked the third day of a sit-in by teachers, doctors and health care workers at a district government headquarters in Gdansk. The protest began after separate wage and benefit talks with senior government negotiators broke down.

"Crystal Night" remembered

DACHAU, West Germany (AP)—A Sunday rally at the site of the infamous Dachau concentration camp marked the anniversary of the "Crystal Night" of anti-Jewish violence, part of the Third Reich's extermination campaign 42 years ago. Spokesmen for rallying youths warned of the consequences of tolerating a resurgence by the right wing.

"Reichskristallnacht," or Crystal Night was named for the shattered glass that remained after Nazi stormtroopers smashed windows of Jewish homes, shops and synagogues on Nov. 9, 1938.

months have elapsed since the beginning of the fiscal year, it was difficult to determine if there would be any cutbacks in the budget due to a more conservative fiscal mood in both Raleigh and Washington. "We ought to know a little better around the first of the year how things will turn out," Friday said.

Felix Joyner, UNC vice president in charge of finance, said he anticipated no problem with the 1981-1983 budget, which will come before the N.C. General Assembly in January.

"We anticipate a careful review of our budget, but it would not surprise me that there will be no action by the Advisory Budget Commission on our requests," he said.

Joyner said the legislature would look at both continuation and expansion budgets, one of which is for continuing operations and the other for building and improvement of the UNC system.

for the record

In the story "Smoke-In planned to protest pot laws," DTH, Nov. 7, The Daily Tar Heel incorrectly stated that both the North Carolina Yippies movement and Students Against Militarism would sponsor the event. The North Carolina Yippies will be the only group sponsoring the event.
