

Passing Devils

Duke meets Carolina in season finale

By DAVID POOLE
Assistant Sports Editor

About this time of the season, most college football teams who aren't having good years look forward to next season with high hopes.

Duke, 2-8 this season, has little to look forward to. The opening game of the Blue Devils' 1981 season is against Ohio State.

But coach Red Wilson and the players who return from the 1980 squad will worry about that when they get finished with this year. Between the Blue Devils and the end of the year lies North Carolina, a formidable obstacle.

"This game will be the toughest challenge that we have faced all season," Wilson said. "North Carolina has one of the finest football teams in the nation and has the best team we have faced all season."

The Blue Devils are coming off a 38-21 loss to N.C. State in Raleigh last Saturday in a game which Wilson said would be costly because of injuries. Running backs Greg Boone and Bobby Brower are both questionable for Saturday's game in sold-out Kenan Stadium.

Carolina's challenge defensively will be to stop freshman quarterback Ben Bennett's passing. Bennett has thrown 293 passes with completions and has amassed 1,911 yards through the air. The Blue Devils have gained 3,013 yards total offense and 2,332 of those—77 percent—have come through the air.

And even though Bennett is already 18th in career total yardage at Duke before finishing his first season, the Devils aren't a one-man show. Seventeen different Duke players have caught 14 or more. Nine players have thrown passes, 19 have run the ball and 15 different Duke players have scored.

Marvin Brown has 30 catches to lead the Duke receiving corps and tight end John Brinkman has caught 28 passes.

Sports

Ron Frederick has caught 26 balls and Cedric Jones 22.

Defensively, Duke is coming off a poor showing against the Wolfpack. State had 287 yards rushing and 461 yards total offense. Duke's defense is led by the linebacker tandem of Jimmy Tyson and Emmett Tilley, who are one-two in tackles on the year.

Although Duke has not beaten North Carolina since 1973, the Blue Devils only trail in the series with UNC 33-29-4.

Women's basketball opens with Florida

By SCOTT PETERSON
Staff Writer

A wealth of veterans coupled with an excellent group of freshmen has presented Carolina women's basketball coach Jennifer Alley with a rather pleasant problem going into tonight's season opener with Florida in the James Madison Tip-Off Tournament.

Alley's problem is not the lack of talent, but rather, which five names to list as starters in tonight's 7 o'clock contest in Harrisonburg, Va. "I still don't know the lineup," Alley said Thursday. "I am working on it right now, but I just have a tentative lineup. I probably won't know until right before the game who will start. I've kept the personnel mixed up in practice up to now trying to find the best combination."

The lineup, as it stands now, is an experienced one with senior Aprille Shaffer directing the team at point guard. The four-year starter averaged 8.1 points per game last year but will be counted on more heavily this year for scoring. Teaming with Shaffer in the backcourt is senior Charlene Boykin, a 5-8 senior who was an occasional starter last year.

"We are going to have to have a floor leader," Alley said of Shaffer, a High Point native. "Aprille is a good ball-handler and a good shooter. We are going to need for her to shoot more this year. She has also matured a lot reading defenses. The experience she gained over the past year will make her valuable this year."

Henrietta Walls, a 6-2 sophomore, returns as center for the Tar Heels. Walls scored 9.7 points per game last year as the Tar Heels went 25-15 and teamed with Shaffer as the strength of the defense. Walls led the squad in steals with 74 and pulled down 284 rebounds.

Flanking Walls at forward will be junior Meredith White and sophomore Kathy Crawford, a selection to the Women's National Invitational Tournament's All-American squad last year as freshman.

The 5-10 White combines good ball-handling skills with height up front while the 6-0 Crawford is the more potent scoring threat, having averaged 10.3 points a game last year.

Tresa Brown and Cindy Miller top the list of newcomers on the Tar Heel roster. Brown, 6-2, can play either center or forward. Miller is also versatile and along with Brown will offer help on the boards for Carolina.

Eileen McCann, a 5-9 point guard will offer Shaffer backup help and sophomore JoAnna Lilley and walk-on Jackie Shaw also will serve reserve roles.

"We are definitely ready to play; we need to play," Alley said. "We've had a couple scrimmages, but you handle those differently. I don't know if we are ready with our offense and defense, but emotionally we are ready to play."

"We don't know that much about Florida, only that it won its state tournament last year and went to the regional tournament. They are a fast-breaking team and usually play a 1-3-1 defense."

Carolina will meet host James Madison University at 2 p.m. in the tournament's second round Saturday and travel to face powerful Old Dominion Nov. 24 in Norfolk, Va.

At Northern Kentucky

UNC volleyball team in regionals

By LINDA ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

It was no surprise that the UNC volleyball team received an at-large bid to the Region II Tournament in Highland Heights, Ky. The Tar Heels will have a chance to redeem themselves after a second-place finish behind N.C. State at the state tournament.

But more important, Carolina will have a chance to qualify for the nationals to be held in California.

"Our goal is to win because this is the tournament we've been aiming for all along; this is the high point of the season," junior Adri Ennard said. "We're not going to let a team like State deprive us of what we've worked for. The state rivalry is only a minor thing compared to the whole tournament."

Northern Kentucky is the host for the three-day, ten-team event. The top two teams from each of the two five-team pools advance to the single-elimination tournament Saturday, N.C. State, East Carolina, Memphis State and East Kentucky are in Carolina's pool.

But the Tar Heels are trying not to look too far ahead to the inevitable match with the Wolfpack. They plan to take one match at a time.

"We've got to get in the frame of mind that every game will be a challenge. Last weekend I think we looked past the state tournament. We were so psyched for regionals that State came up on us," junior Jenny Watson said.

Carolina has practiced the man-up defense specifically for the State match. The floating defender can move up and pick up the dinks that are a common tactic of the State offense.

"According to Bill (assistant coach Bill Richardson), the main reason we have trouble with State is because they attack five different areas of the net and throw other teams off balance. We're prepared now. We've beaten them soundly this year," senior Terri Wallace said.

"When we won at Maryland we proved we can beat anybody in the East," she said. "Everyone is really optimistic and if we play up to par we'll win it."

Taylor selected All-America

From wire reports

UNC outside linebacker Lawrence Taylor has been named to the Football Writers Association of America's 37th annual All-America team.

Taylor, a 6-foot-3, 242-pound senior from Williamsburg, Va., was the only Atlantic Coast Conference player named to the 24-man team.

Five schools, including nationally top-ranked Georgia, placed two players each on the team.

Southern California, Pittsburgh, UCLA and Purdue also placed two players on the writers' team.

Georgia running back Herschel Walker was the first freshman honored by the football writers and they began picking a team in 1944.

Pittsburgh offensive tackle Mark May was named the winner of the 1980 Outland Award, presented annually to the most outstanding collegiate interior lineman.

South Carolina running back George Rogers also was selected to the team.

The team will be featured on television Dec. 14, on the final show of the college football 1980 highlight series.
