

Elections Board looks at Buckner expenses

By WILLIAM PESCHEL
Staff Writer

The Elections Board Monday night unofficially agreed that some materials donated to student body presidential candidate Joe Buckner had little or no market value, thereby preventing his campaign from going over the $400 spending limit.

Also, Buckner said he would file a campaign spending report with the board today and update it throughout the campaign.

The board will meet again Thursday and officially rule on Buckner's campaign expenditures. They were not able to get a quorum Monday and therefore could not make an official judgment.

"I asked him that he come to the meeting and explain his finances," said Gregg James, Elections Board chairman, "because Joe a lot of posters and people are asking questions."

Buckner appeared before the board and outlined his campaign expenses. Buckner said he spent a total of $315.96 on publicity by cutting corners and accepting material that was of no value to the donor.

Under Elections Board bylaws, a candidate must list the market value of all donations to the campaign. The board Monday night unofficially ruled that material of no market value to the donor need not be listed on the campaign report or its full market value. At the meeting, Buckner said he was getting sheets from a funeral home to use as banners. Since the home said they were worthless to them, board members agreed their market value should not be listed on Buckner's spending report.

Buckner also said his campaign got Jim Hunt buttons from democratic headquarters in Raleigh and, using spray paint and stick-on letters, turned them into "Joe" buttons.

"The logic was that, since Jim Hunt couldn't run again, they are worthless," Buckner said.

However, James said that "is still up in the air," although "everything else is more or less OK."

"It is a very sticky topic because the place he is getting them from is saying it is of no value. So you have to define what value means."

"It is a matter of how we interpret the bylaws. This is something that does not come up every year."

Buckner said by using pre-cut, cheap paper, and letting The Loom Press use whatever paper they had, he was given a discount that is offered to all customers. He said he paid $84.90 for 1,200 posters.

His campaign also passed out cards with Buckner's and the UNC basketball schedule. "We just got the schedule from the ticket office and xeroxed the whole thing," he said.

"All that is allowable," James said. "Because anybody can do it."

Final curriculum hearing to be held today

By WILLIAM PESCHEL
Staff Writer

After more than two and a half years of study, the Educational Policy Committee will hold its final hearing on the College Curriculum Report at 3:30 today in 217 Wilson.

A Student Government spokesman said Student Body President Bob Saunders will give his opinion on the report at the hearing. Also, the committee may vote on the report later in the afternoon. If the committee votes for the report, it will go to the Faculty Council for a final vote.

If approved by the Faculty Council, the report would be implemented in Spring 1982 with changes in the foreign language requirement scheduled for 1984 and 1986.

The report would institute a one-semester mathematics requirement for all students along with the current two-semester foreign language requirement. In 1984, students who place into a second foreign language course will be required to take the third one. No student will receive credit toward graduation for an introductory foreign language course. In 1986, or when 75 percent of the entering freshman class place into a second course in foreign language, all students will be required to complete three foreign language courses. By delaying the foreign language requirements until 1984, Arts and Sciences Dean Samuel R. Williamson had said it would give high school students time to prepare for the revised curriculum.

The committee also recommended that all B.A. degree students take one "capstone" course to fulfill one of five junior-senior course requirements. A capstone course would show how many subjects interrelate.

Symposium to examine role, influence of media

"The Public's View," a three-day symposium sponsored by the Carolina Union Human Relations Committee, examines through workshops, films and lectures how the media influences American life. The programs place special emphasis on how advertising affects women.

Jean Kilbourne, the noted writer and media-researcher, will present her program, "The Naked Truth: Advertising's Image of Women" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Memorial Hall.

Kilbourne's program is preceded by two lectures today. Dr. John Bitner of the UNC Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures will speak on "Mass Media in the Year 2000" at 7:30 p.m. in room 209 of the Carolina Union. Following Bitner's talk Hal Kome, an executive with the advertising agency of Leo-Burnette Inc., will lecture on "The Art of Selling" at 9 p.m. in room 209 of the Carolina Union.

"The Public's View" concludes Thursday with the showing of The Female Line, a documentary film examining three generations of women from the independently minded Peabody family, at 4 p.m. in 100 Hamilton Hall. There also will be a lecture by Dr. Betty Czech of the UNC Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures on "Women in Media Decision-Making Positions" at 7:30 p.m. in room 217 of the Carolina Union.
