

Authorities identify body trustees of 17th Atlanta child

ATLANTA (AP)—A medical examiner Sunday identified skeletal remains found Friday as those of 11-year-old Jeffery Mathis, the 17th black child to be found murdered in the Atlanta area in 19 months.

Dr. John Feegel, associate medical examiner for Fulton County, said he identified the body primarily from dental records.

Mathis, one of two children who had been listed as missing by investigators looking into the murders, disappeared in March 1980.

Feegel said he focused his efforts to identify the body on the physical differences between Mathis and the other child still missing — 10-year-old Darron Glass, who disappeared in September.

There were "minor inconsistencies" between both Mathis' and Glass' dental records and the remains, but there were several similarities between Mathis' records and the skeleton. There were no similarities between Glass' record and the remains, he said. Feegel said the remains were too decomposed to determine the cause of death.

remains, a group of volunteers returned Sunday to an area southwest of the city to search for clues in the case. The volunteers have been combing Atlanta neighborhoods since last fall, but have found nothing significant since their first search.

The volunteers found the remains of 7-year-old Latonya Wilson that first week, one of 17 bodies discovered here. Police say some, but not all, of the cases are related.

Six bodies have been found in the past five weeks alone. All of the victims were black, and all were between the ages of 7 and 15. All but two of the victims were male, and eight of them were either suffocated or strangled.

Volunteers searching for evidence found what appeared to be some small leg bones Saturday, and the police task force assigned to the case was called in to determine whether it was the body of an 18th victim.

Police immediately surrounded the area where the bones were found Saturday, and investigators were called to the scene. The area was adjacent to where Mathis' skeleton was found Friday, authorities said.

The report projected that rental rates for apartments built on the Couch property would be about $200 per student per month for a 12-month lease. Increasing rents in Odum Village and residence halls to subsidize the apartments would reduce monthly rent by approximately $60 per apartment. These costs do not include utilities.

Temple said he did not believe there was a housing shortage. He said an inventory taken in the fall, when the housing market was tightest, showed there were still unoccupied apartments in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area.

Boulton disagreed, however, and said the shortage in housing did exist. "A lot of single students want to live on campus at a low cost," Boulton said. "We cannot meet the need that is there."

Boulton said that a survey of UNC off-campus, unmarried students indicates that students were most interested in housing that is close to campus, inexpensive, in good condition and clean. He said these needs could not be met in the present housing situation.

Saunders agreed and said the rising apartment rents and the trend of converting apartments to condominiums would make housing even tighter in the future.

A report released by the Student Consumer Action Union Friday indicated that apartment rent had increased more than 50 percent since 1975.

"There is a shortage of low-cost housing for students and townspeople," Saunders said. "We need to increase the housing stock."

News In Brief

Fires in Ireland, Brazil kill 65

Fires in Dublin, Ireland, and Sao Paulo, Brazil, claimed the lives of at least 65 people over the weekend. In Dublin, an early morning flash fire Saturday swept through the city's largest nightclub killing 48 people and injuring at least 130 others.

Authorities think the fire might have been started by youths who set fire to chairs in the club. Witnesses at the Stardust Cabaret said the fire erupted just before 2 a.m., knocking out the electricity and plunging the 700-800 patrons into darkness and panic.

The Sao Paulo fire struck a 20-story office building Saturday, killing 17 people and injuring 30 more. Most of the victims were cleaning staff who were working when the blaze broke out just before noon. By Sunday, the cause of the fire was still unknown and authorities feared the death toll would rise.

Balloonists end voyage in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Two American balloonists were forced to cut short their attempt at the first non-stop, round-the-world balloon flight and landed safely Sunday in a village of northern India, officials in India said.

A New Delhi airport control tower worker and a local government official in India said the 20-story balloon and the red, white and blue gondola carrying Maxie Anderson and Don Ida touched down at Mirchpur about 5:30 a.m. EST, or about 4 p.m. in India.

Yogeshwar Sawhney, commissioner of Hissar, where the balloon landed, said that doctors examined the balloonists and announced "they were in fine shape," and that the two then left for New Delhi.

Sawhney said authorities who rushed to the landing site at Mirchpur quoted the balloonists as saying the craft Jules Verne had developed mechanical problems over Saudi Arabia. No details were provided, but tracking officials in Bedford, Mass., had said earlier the balloonists reported the Jules Verne may have sprung a leak.

Mondale, Kennedy form groups

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, potential rivals for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, are establishing national political committees that will allow them to assume more prominent roles in next year's congressional elections.

Associates of the former vice president filed papers with the Federal Election Commission earlier this month to create the Committee for America's Future.

Aides to Kennedy said papers for the Fund for a Democratic Majority would probably be filed by the end of the month.

were Maryland's last in the half. Wood hit two more shots, Sam Perkins canned a free throw and Jimmy Black scored on a drive down the lane as Carolina took a 43-25 halftime lead.

Fouls began to mount up for both clubs and, with more than 11 minutes left the Tar Heels went to Four Corners — both to protect the Carolina players in foul trouble and to try to draw fouls on Maryland. At that point Wood, James Worthy, Buck Williams and Ernie Graham had four fouls each.

Carolina missed several close shots and committed several turnovers and Maryland got back to within seven at 62-55 with 8:03 left. That was as close as Maryland came.

Wood continued his outstanding play in ACC games, scoring 28 points on 14-of-23 from the floor. Worthy had 15 points and eight rebounds and Perkins scored 13, grabbed nine rebounds and blocked three shots.

King led Maryland, now 16-7 overall and 6-5 in the ACC, with 19 points. Williams had 13 points and 17 rebound. Manning also had 13 for Maryland.

Carolina's victory leaves the Tar Heels alone in third place in the ACC, one loss behind second-place Wake Forest. The undefeated, top-ranked Virginia Cavaliers lead the league.
