the Reagan administration did not continue the Section 8 housing program or if Chapel Hill did not meet HUD requirements. Also, a willing developer would have to be found, he added.

Temple mentioned other housing alternatives at the meeting, Student Government Housing Director Barbara Palmer said. These were:

- converting Pettigrew, Vance and Battle buildings back into dorms, which would not provide many more spaces;
- converting Odum Village to single-student housing, which would increase the number of residents there by 300;
- instituting voluntary triples, with rent reductions, to save existing space.

Since state law requires that residence halls be self-supporting, Palmer said building any new dormitories would mean rents would have to go up for all on-campus students. Also, all the likely sites for new student housing already were earmarked for academic buildings or the new student activity center, she said.

Saunders said he hoped the Planning Board, Town Council, Carrboro Board of Aldermen and other town boards and student groups would issue public statements contradicting the report made to the trustees Friday, in which University officials claimed the housing shortage was no longer critical.

News In Brief

Student protests wrack Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Thousands of Polish university students took over classrooms across the country Wednesday despite a decision by the new government to grant Lodz student strikers an independent student association.

Strike leaders said the new wave of student strikes would continue until student groups had a chance to evaluate an agreement reached by government negotiations to end a 28-day sit-in at Lodz.

The outbreak of student strikes — over issues ranging from mandatory courses in Russian to more money for books — meant new problems for the government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, who took office as premier a week ago with a plea for 90 days without strikes.

Student strikes were also under way at Wroclaw, Torun, Krakow, Szczecin and other cities, the official news agency PAP and student leaders said.

Jewish dissident freed in Russia

TEL AVIV (AP) — In what was seen as a possible human rights overture by the Kremlin to the Reagan administration, Soviet Jewish dissident Yosef Mendelovich was unexpectedly freed from a labor camp in the Ural Mountains Wednesday and sent to Israel.

The 33-year-old computer engineer and devout Orthodox Jew had spent nearly 11 years in the labor camp for his part in an abortive attempt to hijack a plane from Leningrad to Sweden in 1970.

For the record

The Daily Tar Heel incorrectly reported Monday in a front-page story on apartment hunting that only three apartments became vacant last summer at Northampton Plaza. Northampton Manager Charlotte Kilpatrick said only three apartments became vacant last August, but that the complex had a "fairly large turnover in May, June and July."

In a story in Tuesday's DTH, the wrong hours for the Olde Campus Rape and Assault Prevention Escort service were published. The correct hours are 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. Sunday through Thursday, 7-11 p.m. Friday and 7-9 p.m. Saturday. The number is 933-7602. The DTH regrets these errors.
