

Griswold works in obscurity

By GEOFFREY MOCK
Assistant Sports Editor

On a campus where athletes usually stand out as much as the Bell Tower, Kevin Griswold is one of the most unknown of the University's All-Americans.

Whereas lacrosse is king in spring sports on the playing fields of Maryland and New York, at UNC the game is among the least understood of those sports relegated to the non-revenue category.

But slowly the word has spread that Carolina's lacrosse team is one of the best. Its winning record and second-place ranking in the polls have brought out the crowds and on a nice, sunny day, Fetzer Field will be overflowing with spectators at a lacrosse game.

Still the problems of obscurity remain. "It's a fast movement type of game," Griswold said. "People around here don't really understand it. There are bigger crowds in the North, but the sport will catch on soon around here."

For Griswold, the sport has never been hard to understand. He started playing with his older brothers and then started competitively soon after.

"It has a little bit of every sport in it," the junior from Simsbury, Conn., said. "I've played other sports but I'm not big enough to play basketball and it's fun to go out there and play lacrosse. Practice is demanding and I don't enjoy sprints, but the games are easier."

Starting last season as a midfielder, Griswold was moved to attack during the season and was named to the First Team All-America in that spot. This year he teams with Monty Hill and Michael Burnett to form the Tar Heels' first line attack — which has combined to outscore their three opponents 15-13. Griswold is tied for the team's lead in goals with five and has added five assists.

"We've been working together since last year," Griswold said, "and we play well as a unit. We ride well together. Coach Scroggs (UNC coach Willie Scroggs) tries to instill a team-oriented game with fast movement, passing and unselfish play."

What doesn't show up in the statistics is Griswold's defensive play. Although attackmen cannot cross the midline into the defensive zone, they are responsible for pressuring the opposition as they bring the ball up the field, a job Scroggs said earlier this year that Griswold does very well.

Griswold does his job with a combination of strength and craft. Although he said he is not blessed with overwhelming speed, he can challenge a defender with his ballhandling. "Certain times you need to be physical," he said, "but at other times you have to use some finesse."

Last year's team showed moments of championship level lacrosse mixed with lesser quality performances on its way to an 8-4 record and a trip to the semifinals of the NCAA tournament. Griswold said last year's experience helped Carolina handle the pressures of being a highly ranked team.

"The team is very close. We have a good attitude," he said. "We're taking a different attitude than we did last year. With the one extra year, we're getting it together. All the freshmen are now sophomores. We're still young but we know now that we're not playing high school ball."

Because of that added experience, the Tar Heels have a good chance of taking what would be a historical victory for the lacrosse program when they meet Maryland at 2 p.m. Saturday in College Park, Md.

The Heels take a 0-17 record against the Terps into the game and are still smarting from last year's 18-12 loss to Maryland at home in which Carolina, as with this year's game, took the No. 2 ranking in the nation into the game.

Tennis record deceiving

Going into tomorrow's contest against Clemson, the UNC men's tennis team is sporting a 15-8 overall record — a record that is a bit deceiving.

"Most of our losses in the first part of the season were to pre-season Top 20 teams," said first-year coach Allen Morris. "And then injuries to some key players disrupted our lineup recently."

Those injuries involved No. 1 singles player Ray Disco as well as No. 2 Dek Potts.

"Ray went seven days without playing at all and to lose seven days is pretty tough," coach Morris said. "I hope in a couple more matches he'll be in top form again."

"Dek is virtually out of the singles during the ACC season because of a back injury," Morris added.

"I've missed 12 matches total in singles and doubles," said Potts, a senior.

"It's most disappointing because it's my last season and I don't like watching from the sidelines." The No. 2 player will contribute at doubles, Morris said.

Disco himself spent seven days off the court recuperating from a sciatic nerve problem in his left leg.

"It's a physical strain coming back after not playing for a week," Disco said. "But the injuries seem to be healing all right."

Two freshmen, Ron Erskine and Josh Sarner, have figured prominently the past few weeks and Morris is confident they will help out greatly.

"Before the season I thought they had ability to play in the top six," Morris said. "It's an awful lot of pressure on a freshman coming into college competition but they've responded well so far."

As for tomorrow's match, Morris said he feels his team can compete against the nationally-ranked Tigers in South Carolina.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?" Psalms 2:1 and Acts 4:25

The above question is asked by God Almighty Himself in the second Psalm of His Book, the Bible. Do you ask God to bless you? In the first Psalm He says the man is blessed that departs from evil in his walk, his stand, his sitting, and "his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in His law doth he meditate day and night." Have we a right to be heard and blessed on account of our efforts to meet and fulfill these conditions? In John 8:44, etc. Jesus said "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him — And they shall all be taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me." Have we put ourselves in position to be "taught of God" by searching the Scriptures and meditating on His Word? It appears we are always "passing the buck" to the Almighty while in reality His Word "passes it to us!" The law is our school-master to bring us to Christ.

The reason our churches are so full of "dead wood and excess baggage" of folks who don't know what it is to be convicted of sin and made to see their lost condition by the power of the Holy Spirit, is that they are drawn into the church and to Christ, as they think, by the precepts of men, the devices and wiles of the devil, and not by the school-master so "teaching them of the Father" that they are drawn by His power to the Son!

We blame this man and that, this nation and that, but according to God's message here the blame lies at the door of all who refuse to depart from evil but choose to rage against the Almighty. Read Luke 13: 1-5, and make the application. Elijah, the man taken to heaven without dying, by-passing the grave, said to King Ahab: "I have not troubled Israel, but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the Commandments of God..." 1st Kings 18:18.

When the Apostle John had his wonderful and supernatural vision on the Isle of Patmos he said: "I was in the Spirit of the Lord's Day." Likely he would have never had that vision if he had been "in swimming on the Lord's Day," or had he been fishing on the Lord's Day — and he was a fisherman when he met Jesus; or on the golf links, at the baseball game, sightseeing around the island, or maybe working the garden, trimming the lawn, hedges, etc.

There is a time for these things, but it is not on the Lord's Day when we should major in "sitting at the feet of Jesus and hearing His Words," and obeying His command: "Learn of Me."
