Three seniors in NBA draft, Wood to go high

By KIM ADAMS

Tuesday Al Wood could be the first player drafted by the National Basketball Association.

The Dallas Mavericks will have the first pick and they have expressed an interest in Wood. "Our people were in Chapel Hill Monday and we feel he is one of the best college basketball players in the country," Alan Stone, a spokesman for the Mavericks, said. "He could definitely help us because he's a great shooter, and we'd love to have someone who could score a lot of points."

Although Wood could help the Mavericks, Indiana's Isaiah Thomas and Maryland's Buck Williams could too. "Before the hardship players were announced, Wood was our number one choice," Stone said. "We feel he's another Walter Davis, who is doing well for Phoenix and he may be a better shooter than Otis Birdsong of Kansas City."

Meanwhile, Coach Dean Smith is interviewing attorneys for Wood as well as trying to help Mike Pepper and Pete Budko. Eric Kenny will be attending medical school here, so he won't be in the draft.

"We want to have three attorneys to negotiate a contract for Al," Smith said. "We'd like to have them chosen by three days before the draft. We may want to try to talk a team out of drafting him. There are teams that wouldn't be able to make the best of his talents."

Smith emphasized that he wanted all three of the players drafted. "Pete wants to play and he's young and tall and fast," he said. "I can't understand why he wouldn't be able to have a shot at making an NBA team. If he doesn't, he could always play overseas."

"Mike will have a harder time, but he wants to continue playing. It's harder for a backcourt player to go overseas because they want tall players, but he should have a pretty good shot. We hope they will all three continue playing."

Other ACC players expected to be drafted include Albert King of Maryland, Frank Johnson of Wake Forest, Jeff Lamp of Virginia and Gene Banks of Duke.
