Tar Heels commit costly errors, lose season finale in the sixth

By DAVID THOMPSON

Three UNC errors ignited East Carolina to a seven-run sixth inning as the Pirates defeated the Tar Heels 11-3 in the finale of North State College Baseball League action for UNC Tuesday night.

The Tar Heels, who finished at 7-22, did not qualify for the tournament, which begins today at Campbell. The top four teams in the league qualified.

Trailing 4-1 in the fifth, UNC scored twice to narrow the deficit to one run. Luke Rasnake walked, stole second, and scored on Mitch McCleney's single. McCleney then advanced to second on a ground out and scored on a Todd Wilkinson single.

The Pirates clinched the game in the sixth. Five singles and one double, combined with the three Tar Heel errors, climaxed the game's scoring. UNC, who committed seven errors in the game, died quietly, with only one baserunner in the final two innings.

"It surprised me that we made that many errors," Coach Mark Scalf said. "The guys were ready to play."

Scalf said he did not think the team was just going through the motions in its final game.

"It's not in this ballclub's blood to do that," he said. "They may make mistakes that hurt but they try as hard as they can."

August is the only month many of the players have off, so fatigue may have been settling in. "They're all glad to get a break. They deserve it and need it," Scalf said.

This league also was Scalf's first opportunity at regular coaching duty.

"I've got as much to learn as they do," he said. "I need to learn more about pitching, when to take someone out and which situations to run certain plays offensively and defensively. Baseball is a thinking man's game. If you don't think in advance, you miss out on a lot of opportunities."

Scalf said players not on the varsity squad last season did not have berths locked up in the fall as a result of their summer performances.

"They'll all have an equal opportunity in the fall," Scalf said. "We'll have to take a look at the incoming freshmen. We have some freshman pitchers who will get a lot of work next spring. That was what was lacking this summer."

- UNC will send a coach and two athletes to the World University Games beginning Sunday in Bucharest, Romania, while another of Carolina's non-revenue athletes will participate in the third annual United States Olympic Committee Sports Festival at Syracuse, N.Y., beginning July 23.

- Tar Heel swimming coach Frank Comfort, sophomore backstroker Sue Walsh and senior wrestler Dave Cook will represent the U.S. at the World University games July 19-30. Walsh and Cooke are among 227 American athletes from 102 schools chosen for the competition. Another Tar Heel backstroker, sophomore Eric Ericson also received an invitation, but was forced to turn it down due to summer coaching duties at home.

- Tar Heel athletes attending the Sports Festival at Syracuse July 23-29 are women's basketball sophomore guard Eileen McCann, men's track and field alumnus Jimmy Cooper, men's soccer sophomore midfielder Mike Fiocco and women's swimmers senior Barb Harris, juniors Gayle Hegel and Kathy Smith, sophomores Amy Pless, Came Gerizzi and Jenny Strickland and freshman Sue Scott.

- Carolina soccer coach Anson Dorrance, already facing the prospect of replacing three-year starting goalkeeper Kevin Kane this fall, has lost two more starting members of his defense. All-ACC stopper Bucky Buckley of Bryn Mawr, Pa. has undergone knee surgery and will be out for the season. He will return for his final year of eligibility in 1982. The injury will also keep him out of the USOC National Sports Festival he was selected for. Starting left back Jay Ainslie of Miami, Fla. will also be missing from the lineup this fall because he is the captain of the U.S. Junior National team playing in Australia this year.
