Tuition increases OK'd; athletic, SHS fees upped

By JOHN HINTON

The Board of Governors approved a system-wide tuition increase and voted to increase health service and athletic fees when it approved the semiannual budget for the 16-campus UNC system Friday.

The state legislature passed a bill requiring the university system to increase tuition by 9 percent for in-state students and by 20 percent for out-of-state students. Increases for in-state students ranged from $48 to $72 and from $101 to $186 for out-of-state students.

Tuition varies at each school because it is based on enrollment and the field of study at each university. Those universities with graduate programs must charge more for tuition.

But tuition for UNC-Wilmington and UNC-Asheville will decrease to make the cost of attending these schools equal to that of attending the other institutions that offer only a bachelor's degree.

In addition, the board increased the general fees at 14 campuses including UNC-Chapel Hill upon request of the participating Chancellors and the President of the UNC system William C. Friday.

"The changes in general fees reflect the effect of inflation on operating costs and new programs activities and expansion of existing services," said James E. Holmes, Budget and Finance Committee chairman.

Hugh S. Buchanan, Jr., associate vice president for finance, said the health services and athletic fees would be raised, but the student activities fees would not be affected.

The BOC also raised application fees from $10 to $15 so universities could increase their efforts to recruit students by providing more public information about the schools.

From the $545.3 million appropriated to the 16 campuses for operating expenses, three of eight priority expansion programs received funds. The remaining five programs must wait for the legislature to reconvene in the fall before appropriations will be made for these projects.

Additionally, $39.2 million of the $48.3 million allocated for capital improvements was designated for the construction of new buildings and major building additions. UNC-Chapel Hill received $7.7 million for laboratories replacing the chemical teaching laboratories.

Commenting on the UNC desegregation settlement, Friday told the board that he already had implemented the consent decree that ended the 11-year-old dispute between UNC and the federal government.

"The program set forth in that document is going to be the program we will follow in the next five years," Friday said. "The very day after the decree was signed, we began its implementation."

Friday added that each of the 16 chancellors were committed to implementing the decree. Friday said he personally would check and recheck to see that promises made by the university were kept.

John R. Jordan, chairman of the board, said everyone would not be satisfied with the consent decree. But he said people have contacted him who favored the settlement.

Eight recently re-elected and elected board members were officially sworn into office by Susie Sharp, retired Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court. The re-elected members were Julia T. Morton of Linville, Geneva Bowe of Murfreesboro, Philip G. Carson of Asheville, David J. Whitchard, II of Greenville, and Martha McNair of Winston-Salem. They will serve for four years.

The newly elected members to serve eight-year terms are: Walter R. Davis, Midland, Texas; R. Phillip Haire, Sylva; Asa T. Spaulding, Jr., of Durham; and William K. Woltz, Mount Airy.
