

Diversity offered by WXYC

By LEAH TALLEY
DTH Staff Writer

WXYC, the student radio station at UNC, offers commercial-free 24-hour per day music, but most important, it offers musical diversity.

"We play anything from '50s rhythm and blues to late '60s psychodelia to new wave," said WXYC station manager Bill Burton. Burton has been station manager since October of last year and has managed to keep WXYC from turning to a top-40 format.

There are four special programs at WXYC, all on the weekend. On Saturdays from 8 until 11 p.m., Ken Friedman hosts Anarchy in the PM, a new wave show. Sundays are almost entirely devoted to special programming. From noon until 4 p.m., jazz is played. The Orange County Special follows until 7 p.m. and this show includes country, blues, bluegrass and novelty music. From 8:30 until 11:30 p.m. Sunday is Jukebox, which features 1950s tunes.

WXYC also does special broadcasts which cover the news, public affairs and sports. And occasionally, WXYC will do live broadcasts from sold-out events such as last semester's Friedan-Schlaflly ERA debate.

Other than these special programs, WXYC does not limit itself to specified program blocks; instead, it maintains diversity throughout the day and night. Burton sees WXYC as an elitist station in that it is better and more selective musically and not limited by labels. But elitist does not mean inaccessible to the listener.

Burton believes that WXYC appeals more to those who are seriously interested in music rather than the passive music listener; the Chapel Hill area seems to be more receptive to this type of programming than surrounding areas.

Student involvement with the radio station is welcome. Becoming a disc jockey is probably many peoples' secret dream, but Burton suggests that interested students should become involved with the public affairs, news, sports or promotional aspects of the station because presently, there are more than enough disc jockeys.

WXYC will again have a concert with local groups this fall. Last year's, held in the Tin Can, was a success, and Burton anticipates the same this year. The X-Teens and the Insect Surfers will be appearing in Great Hall on Sept. 11. Tickets will be $2. Profits from this show and proceeds from selling WXYC buttons will go toward purchasing remote equipment to do live broadcasts from concerts and other live events. Buttons may be purchased for a quarter from the WXYC office on the 2nd floor of the Union. Burton said that student support was needed not only monetarily, but also through listening to WXYC. 89.3 on your FM dial.

Print Media

University publications give experience and opportunity

By MARK SCHOEN
DTH Staff Writer

Students anxious to gain practical experience in print media will have ample opportunity to develop their skills during the coming school year.

A wide variety of newspapers, magazines and journals at UNC can provide this chance without — in a number of cases — taking a great deal of time from other activities.

Most of these publications are financed in part by student fees allocated by the Campus Governing Council and — with one exception — are student operated.

The most visible of these is The Daily Tar Heel, published every day classes meet. The DTH emphasizes current campus and local news, with a smattering of state, national and international events. Intercollegiate, club and intermural sports are also covered. The DTH is available at drop boxes throughout the campus. Its offices are located in room 104 of the Carolina Union.

Other campus publications include the following:
• The Phoenix. One of UNC's youngest newspapers, The Phoenix is a weekly publication offering in-depth, analytical articles and features. Interviews with notable campus figures also are presented. Like The DTH, The Phoenix is available throughout campus. Its office is located in room 108 of the Union.

• Black Ink. The official organ of the Black Student Movement, Black Ink concentrates on events that have a bearing on UNC's black student population. Available every other Tuesday, the paper also provides a printed forum for the BSM. Its office is also in the Union.

• The Yackety Yack. This annual publication serves as UNC's yearbook. In addition to recapping the year's events, the Yack also attempts to capture life at Carolina with feature stories, graphics, black and white and color photography. Although it is financed in part by student fees, the Yack also relies heavily on yearly sales. The Yack has its offices in room 106 of the Union.

• Carolina Quarterly. Published three times yearly, the Quarterly is a nationally-distributed literary journal. Financed in part by grants from The Coordination Council of Literary Magazines and the North Carolina Arts Council, the Quarterly features graphics, poetry and short stories by local and state writers.

• Cellar Door. A twice-yearly publication, the Cellar Door accepts manuscripts from graduate and undergraduate students. Financed by student fees, subscriptions and newsstand sales, the Cellar Door gives students an opportunity to publish material which might not receive attention otherwise. Its office is in the Union.

• Agora. Appearing in the spring, Agora is a publication of the Association of International Students. Content varies widely, from travel tips to short stories to recipes for international foods. Agora (Greek for "meeting place") emphasizes works with an international angle.

• SHE. Published by the Association for Women Students, SHE provides news, sports, features and interviews with an emphasis on the perspective of women. Published twice a semester, SHE's office is in room 108 of the Union.

• Lambda. The newsletter of the Carolina Gay Association, Lambda is available in the Union or by subscription.

• The Alchemist, a semi-annual magazine, is primarily concerned with presenting scientific information to non-specialists in an easily understood form. The Alchemist has its office in room 108 of the Union.

In addition to these publications, a number of academic schools and departments publish in-house newsletters. Information about these publications can be obtained from the various departments.

Students who wish to work for these publications during the coming year should contact the organization involved.

THERE'S MORE AT YOUR STUDENT STORES

ON CAMPUS

A number of area newspapers can be brought to your doorstep

By CINDY CRANFORD
DTH Staff Writer

If The Daily Tar Heel does not satisfy your thirst for news, there are several area newspapers that can be delivered to your doorstep.

The Chapel Hill Newspaper is available in subscriptions from three months at $12.40 to one year at $45.50. A subscription can be purchased by calling 967-7045.

The Durham Herald and Sun are available at a student rate of $10 each semester for daily and Sunday editions. The non-student rate is $4.50 a month; subscriptions are available by calling 967-6581.

The Raleigh News and Observer is available for dorm delivery for $17.10 per semester, although there will be no deliveries during Labor Day, fall break and Thanksgiving in the fall semester. Non-dorm deliveries cost $6 a month; to subscribe, call 942-1806.

The Greensboro Daily News has a special rate for students at $10.90 for daily and Sunday issues for one semester or $19 for both semesters. Sunday-edition delivery is $5 for one semester; subscriptions are available by calling 942-5953.

Newsstand copies of these area newspapers are available around campus for about 25 cents daily and 50 cents Sunday.

Issues of The Washington Post, The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal are available at area stores.

The Little Professor Book Center at 143 W. Franklin St. has daily issues of The Washington Post for 37 cents and afternoon editions of The Wall Street Journal. The New York Times is also available, although daily arrival has been hampered by the air controllers' strike, a store clerk said. Issues normally would arrive the day of publication, but now arrive the next afternoon.

The Bull's Head Bookshop in the Student Stores carries The Washington Post for 40 cents an issue, although daily service runs a day behind. Also, a few copies of The New York Times are available for 50 cents.

The Stop-N-Shop on Airport Road carries The New York Times at 50 cents an issue and $1.75 on Sunday and The Washington Post for 40 cents and $1.40 on Sunday.

Sunday editions of The New York Times, The Washington Post and The Wall Street Journal are available at Sutton's Drug Store at 159 E. Franklin St.

Daily and Sunday editions of The New York Times, The Washington Post and The Wall Street Journal also are available at Jeff's Confectionary on Franklin Street.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

Let's face it. Businesses want to sell ya something. So do we. However, we at Precision Maintenance abhor many of the sales techniques and subtly misleading advertising that is foisted off on you: half-truths, minced words, fine print, special deals, and on and on... We at Precision Maintenance are doing our share to counteract dishonesty in the business world. We don't have "specials" — because all our work is special. We don't sell you things you don't need. We don't take shortcuts. What we do offer you is the excellence and reliability you deserve. Anything less is unacceptable. If you want excellent work done by intelligent mechanics who will listen to what you have to say, give Precision Maintenance a call.
