

UNCASG to discuss desegregation, financial aid

By ELAINE McCLATCHEY
DTH Staff Writer

The recently signed desegregation consent decree, a proposal for a request for $18 million in state financial aid and a proposal to appoint a student representative to the UNC Board of Governors will be the main issues discussed when 16 student body presidents of the 16-campus UNC system meet in Wilmington this weekend.

The University of North Carolina Association of Student Governments is an association that discusses issues which affect the 16 UNC campuses. The group makes recommendations to the Board of Governors and lobbies state and federal legislators.

UNCASG President Scott Norberg said Thursday the group would meet in committees to discuss the various topics before making recommendations to the full assembly.

The Black Ad Hoc Committee will focus on the recent desegregation consent decree handed down after an 11-year battle between UNC and the federal government, Norberg said.

The decree calls for increased black enrollment at the traditionally white schools, 29 new bachelor's and master's programs at the predominantly black universities and equal financial support per student for "colleges with similar missions." A provision to the decree requires that, in essence, all professors at the predominantly black universities must have a doctorate or appropriate terminal degree to be appointed or gain tenure.

North Carolina Central University Student Body President Curtis Massey said Thursday that he and several presidents at the predominantly black universities were upset over the vagueness of the decree and that they would like to draft a statement citing reasons for their opposition.

Massey said presidents of the predominantly black universities had discussed the decree at a black leadership workshop held in Raleigh in July.

The lack of enforcement procedures in the document invites further neglect of the black universities, Massey said.

Massey said one of the major complaints was against funding.

"Even though the consent decree mentions funding, it is hard to become equal when you've been neglected for 10 to 12 years," Massey said.

The provision that restricts appointments and tenure for professors without doctoral degrees is another point of contention with Massey. Massey said the provision would do away with the identity of the black universities.

"We all know from experience that those persons holding Ph.D.s aren't necessarily the best instructors," Massey said.

Massey said he would like to see UNCASG unite to show its dissatisfaction with the decree.

Norberg said he hoped the presidents would be able to reach an agreement on the statement. Norberg added that since the decree was a settled issue, he would like to concentrate on looking beyond the decree for improvements.

"The consent decree doesn't even mention the concept of retention," Norberg said. Norberg said the recruitment of the best blacks to predominantly white universities and the best whites to predominantly black universities was not going to do any good unless there was a conscious effort to make the students feel comfortable once they were in the schools.

The Program and Policy Committee will consider a proposal to ask the state for $18 million in financial aid loans for both state and private universities in North Carolina. The committee will also study a proposal to have a student representative appointed to the Board of Governors, Norberg said.

If UNCASG supports the proposals, a resolution will be sent to the Board of Governors for consideration. If the board approves, a bill must be sent to the state General Assembly for approval.

News in Brief

Union calls for vote, freedom

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Solidarity, in a bold new challenge to communist authorities, ended its unprecedented national congress Thursday with a demand for free elections and a ringing call to "build a Poland such as our fathers couldn't."

The 896 delegates, who for six days debated policy and politics, also urged the independent union to get control over the mass media, worker self-management and freedom for "political prisoners," and gave a vote of confidence to their leader, Lech Walesa.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass, in one of its most savage attacks since the free labor movement was founded in Poland a year ago, criticized the congress as "an anti-socialist, anti-Soviet orgy" and charged Solidarity with an "open struggle" against the Polish party and government.

TMI to pay $25 million in claims

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal judge has approved the largest damage settlement ever for a nuclear accident — $25 million for economic and health testing costs stemming from the 1979 accident at Three Mile Island.

But it may take at least six months before the eligible 20,000 people and businesses will have their claims processed and paid, Elizabeth Honeywell, clerk for U.S. District Judge Sylvia Rambo, said Thursday.

Under the settlement approved Wednesday, $5 million will go for a new public health fund that will pay for radiation monitoring and cancer detection programs in the Three Mile Island area. The remaining $20 million will go toward satisfying economic loss claims.

Cost force Union to decrease locator service

By LYNN PEITHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

The Carolina Union, which runs the Student Locator Service, recently cut back the service because of a limited amount of funding, Howard Henry, director of the Carolina Union, said Thursday.

For the record

The DTH incorrectly reported Thursday that property taxes in Chapel Hill increased with the town budget adopted by the Town Council June 29. Property taxes actually decreased, though many residents will pay higher tax bills because of the county's property re-evaluation. The DTH regrets the error.

In the story "Nursing scores improved," (Thursday, Sept. 9), The DTH incorrectly reported that 83.1 percent of the 1981 UNC-CH nursing school students passed the licensing exam. That figure, reported by an official of the nursing school on Wednesday, was actually 83.2 percent.

In Thursday's story "CGC says no to fee for service," The DTH incorrectly reported that 700 people used the Student Legal Services annually. The correct figure is 1,700.

"We're trying to hold the line on expenses," Henry said. The service, reached by dialing 962-3758, provides requested students' phone numbers and addresses. While the locator used to have an average of three students manning it at a time, it now uses two student operators.

The Union is trying to avoid any fee increases. "We're trying to make the student fees go as far as they can go," he said.

Awaits confirmation

O'Connor goes before hearing

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sandra Day O'Connor, trading cautiously toward Senate confirmation as a Supreme Court justice, said Thursday she supported the death penalty for some crimes and was opposed to forced busing to desegregate public schools.

In her second day of testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, O'Connor said she twice spoke personally with President Ronald Reagan before it was announced she was his choice to become the first woman justice on the court.

She declined to describe those conversations, but said no promises were made on how she would vote on any particular issue. "I was not asked (by Reagan) to make any commitment concerning ... how I would resolve any issue that might come before the court," O'Connor said in answer to a series of questions from Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa.

She said it would be improper to discuss what subjects she talked about with Reagan during those conversations, one of which was held at the White House.

O'Connor said her views on forced busing were shaped by a childhood experience of riding 75 miles in a daily round trip on a bus from home on an Arizona ranch across the desert to school. "I found that very disturbing to me as a child," she said. "I am sure that other children who had to ride long distances as a child shared that experience."

While emphasizing she was not talking about the constitutional or legal reasons for or against busing, she said as a device for integrating schools it "can be a very disruptive part of a child's education program."

As an Arizona state senator, she favored legislation urging federal legislation forbidding busing for desegregation, she said.

and their current school phone numbers and addresses.

The basic costs for the service are the salaries for the student operators and the phones. The student listing the service uses is a copy from the records office.

The service is presently operating 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

On the death penalty, O'Connor recalled sponsoring legislation to revive capital punishment after the Supreme Court struck down statutes in most states, and then applying the same statute later as a state judge.

"I felt it was an appropriate vote then and I have not changed my view," she said.

However, she added without elaboration that she opposed legislation in Arizona which made the death penalty mandatory for some crimes.

There were continued statements of support from most committee members, including Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., one of the panel's most conservative members. Denton observed at one point he believed O'Connor's views on abortion were more conservative than his own.

On the sensitive issue of abortion, she told Sen. Denton, "For myself it is simply offensive to me. It's something that's repugnant to me and something in which I would not engage."

However, in her exchange with the conservative lawmaker, she said, "We are obligated to recognize that others have different views."

"Would I personally object to drawing the line at saving the life of the mother? No, I would not. Are there other areas? Possibly," said O'Connor when she was asked about what exceptions to abortion curbs she might favor.

The committee, which is expected to conclude three days of hearings today, is likely to vote Tuesday to recommend O'Connor's confirmation, with the full Senate confirming her nomination Wednesday.
