

Sentence suspended

Judge convicts UNC gridder of assault

By KEN MINGIS
DTH Staff Writer

UNC football player Brian Blados was found guilty Tuesday of assaulting another student and was sentenced to 29 days in the Orange County jail.

The jail sentence was suspended for 30 months, but Blados was ordered to pay any civil judgments against him arising from the Aug. 6 incident. Blados pleaded not guilty at the hearing before District Judge Stanley Peele.

According to the arrest warrant issued Aug. 7, Blados was charged with assaulting and striking Dale Kopezynski, hitting him in the face and breaking his nose. Kopezynski filed the complaint.

Jack Sanders, a witness for the prosecution, described the incident: "I was with a friend outside of Trollis's (Bar) when Dale came out. We were standing around talking when Brian (Blados) and two other guys came over.

"They told Dale to go downstairs before he got hurt," Sanders said. "The next thing I knew, one of them grabbed Dale's shirt. I tried to stand up in front of Blados and kind of calm him down, but he threw me up against a trash dumpster.

"I got back up, but he threw me into a car. When I got up again, Blados was swinging at Dale.

"Dale just dropped," Sanders said. "His nose was really messed up."

The suspended sentence means that Blados does not have to go to jail as long as he stays out of trouble. Brenda Cooper, deputy clerk of Superior Court said. "If he were to go out and get into another fight, the DA could pull his record.

Blados might then be forced to serve this 29-day sentence in addition to whatever else he might be charged with," she said.

Although an arrest warrant was issued, Blados was not actually picked up by the police, Chapel Hill Magistrate W. N. Tyler said. "He received word that a warrant had been issued from the police, and he and his father came in on their own," Tyler said.

"When Blados came in, he was placed under a $200 bond and released, pending his appearance in court," Cooper said. The case was originally scheduled for Sept. 1, but was moved to Tuesday to allow Blados to get an attorney, she said.

Blados has until Friday to appeal this decision, Cooper said. "If he does appeal, then this judgment would not stand; he would go to Superior Court for a trial by jury," she said.

was a burden at all. "But I'd like to see what it looks like," he said. "I've never seen it from the other side."

Roberson said UNC is one of the four major universities that has had a card section for any length of time. He said the others, which include the University of California at Los Angeles, the University of Illinois and Ohio State, expect more participation from their student bodies.

At these universities, the students who buy card-section tickets are expected to go to the games early and practice the stunts, Roberson said, adding that students who made mistakes were usually asked to leave.

"UCLA requires freshmen to sit in their card section and go to the game two hours early to practice," Roberson said. "It's a tribute to our intelligence that the stunts come out and nobody really messes up."

Seats available

Student tickets are still available for Saturday's football game with Miami of Ohio. These tickets can be picked up from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the ticket office in Carmichael Auditorium with a student ID and an athletic pass.

Donors sought

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is scheduled for 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. today in Morehead Cellar and noon to 5 p.m. Friday in Ehringhaus Residence Hall. Students are encouraged to donate blood.

Four seek to invalidate state's redistricting plan

The Associated Press

RALEIGH — Four North Carolina citizens filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court seeking to invalidate the North Carolina legislative redistricting plan recently adopted by the General Assembly.

According to a statement from the NAACP, the suit names as defendants state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, House Speaker Liston Ramsey, the state Board of Elections and its five individual members and Secretary of State Thad Eure.

The plaintiffs — Ralph Gingles, Sippio Burton, Fred Belfield and Joseph Moody — claim the legislators redrew the legislative districts in a way that intentionally diluted the voting strength of black and other minority voters.

By federal mandate, legislative districts must be redrawn every 10 years. State legislators were required to redraw legislative and congressional districts this year to bring them in line with the 1980 census figures.

Federal standards also dictate that each of the state's 50 senators represent an average of 117,489 people each. The approved map deviates almost 23 percent from that figure.

According to federal standards, each of the 120 House members is to represent 48,954 people. The approved map deviates from that figure by more than 23 percent.

According to the NAACP, the plaintiffs contend the new maps violate the constitutional requirements of one man, one vote.

The four citizens are being represented by Julius Chambers of Charlotte and the NAACP Legal Defense Fund. Chambers was out of town and could not be reached for comment, and legal representatives for the NAACP in New York also could not be reached.

News in Brief

Senate debates busing, farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate conservatives finally ended a filibuster Wednesday that had blocked preliminary approval of a proposal to bar federal courts from ordering busing in school integration cases.

The motion to end debate carried 61-36 — one more vote than required — but Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., vowed to continue his efforts to prevent final congressional approval.

Noting that the filibuster began three months ago, Weicker said it would take at least three more months for final passage.

With the filibuster ended, there is little doubt that the anti-busing amendment will be attached to a Justice Department spending authorization measure. But a vote on the bill was put off as the Senate turned to other matters.

Among those was the farm bill. The Senate kept alive proposals to dismantle the government's peanut support program, raising the possibility the entire package for commodity price supports could collapse.

The vote was 53-42 against an attempt to kill proposals to overhaul the current policy. Southern senators, led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., failed in attempts to shoot down the anti-peanut support proposals.

Politburo threatens union

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The ruling Communist Party Politburo, in its strongest attack yet on Solidarity, warned Wednesday of the possibility of bloodshed and declared it would use all means necessary to prevent the independent union from taking political power in Poland.

The party said Solidarity, at its first national congress last week, had embarked on a course of "building an opposition political organization which openly set itself the goal of changing the political system of Poland."

The congress called for free elections, a national referendum on workers' reforms and sent a message of support to free trade-union organizers elsewhere in the Eastern bloc.

The message of support brought a furious response from the Soviet Union and other East bloc news media, which have repeatedly criticized the Polish government and the country's year-long series of labor and social reforms.

U.S. production drops in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's industrial production, crawling upward until midsummer, fell 0.4 percent in August, the government reported Wednesday. Analysts blamed the drop on high interest rates.

August's decline in output by American factories and mines was the biggest since July 1980, at the end of last year's recession. And it renewed talk that the economy may be falling faster toward a mild new recession.

"The big question is does this signal a big drop, is the recession really here?" said Otto Eckstein, president of Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm in Massachusetts.

"The answer is still 'not yet, not yet,'" he said. "But if interest rates stay high another few months, it's recession for sure."

Wednesday's report from the Federal Reserve Board was generally in line with other government statistics showing that the economy was lagging, or even declining, as summer neared an end.
