

Solidarity responds to Soviet accusations

The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity union locals, responding to the Kremlin's furious accusations of anti-Sovietism, countered Monday with angry charges of Soviet interference in Poland.

The independent union summoned its top leaders to Gdansk for a strategy session Tuesday. Union chief Lech Walesa was expected to preside over the drafting of an official response to the Soviet warning.

The Soviet news agency Tass lashed out again Monday, accusing the local chapters of creating "acute conflict situations aimed at overthrowing the existing system," according to a dispatch from Warsaw.

It said Solidarity was preparing to seize power on the assumption that "the authorities cannot offer serious resistance."

A top Polish official said the idea of partnership with Solidarity was dead and buried in Gdansk — where the union held its first congress two weeks ago and outraged the Soviet Union.

Workers at a paper factory in Niedomice issued a sharply worded response on Monday to the Kremlin attack:

"Setting a sovereign government against a sovereign nation is a clear interference in the affairs of our country. ... Saying and writing the truth, showing it in the theaters and cinemas is what the Communist Party Central Committee and the Soviet Union's government called anti-Sovietism."

"Solidarity won't let anybody scare it any more," Solidarity hospital workers in Tarnow said. "Is this the threat of intervention of our ally in Poland's internal affairs?" the workers' statement asked.

East bloc attacks, and criticism by Poland's ruling Communist Party, have grown steadily harsher in tone since Sept. 8 when Solidarity adopted a resolution at its congress encouraging the formation of free trade unions in other bloc countries.

Solidarity, the only independent union in the Soviet bloc, emerged from a wave of strikes last year and has brought about a series of reforms that angered the Soviets and aroused Western fears that the Kremlin might intervene militarily.

Solidarity's press spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz told reporters the Soviet and Polish warnings "have only served to raise the temperature here. Certainly now there is enough fuel to start up everyone."

The East German news agency ADN joined the fray on Monday, saying the major question facing Poland and the rest of the Soviet bloc was whether Communist leaders here would finally "strike back at counter-revolution with all (their) means." It said the crisis "has in the past two weeks reached an extraordinarily dangerous level for the Polish people and socialist state power."

A member of the Polish Communist Party's Central Committee was quoted Monday as saying agreements that launched Solidarity should be renegotiated to define "who is ruling the country, how he is ruling and who is managing."

Walerian Solinski told the newspaper Sztandar Mlodych (Youth Standard) that the party may face relinquishing power and going into opposition to regain strength lost since the strikes last year.

"Activities in opposition, struggle for power, strengthen every party," he said, stressing this would only come about if all other efforts at restoring party strength failed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador's President Jose Napoleon Duarte, appealing for support from President Ronald Reagan and Congress, says he needs more American military and financial aid to bring democracy to the embattled country.

Duarte, who took over as head of El Salvador's civilian-military junta in December, met Reagan at the White House Monday and will travel to Capitol Hill today.

The visit comes at a time when the administration concedes that public support in the United States for the Duarte regime is lukewarm and France and Mexico are calling for negotiations between the government and leftist insurgents in El Salvador.

Duarte said Sunday that he was not in Washington to ask for additional U.S. assistance but rather to explain his plan for democratic development in El Salvador after a "military dictatorship of 50 years."

Haig criticizes Soviet and Vietnamese intervention

The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told the United Nations Monday the Soviet Union and Vietnam were threatening all sovereign nations and the U.N. itself by their intervention in Afghanistan and Cambodia.

Haig also unveiled a new Reagan administration strategy for promoting economic development of poor nations — a plan that puts greater emphasis on private investment and less on government aid.

With Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in the audience, Haig had harsh words for the Soviet Union — which could set the stage for a cool confrontation when he meets with the Soviet leader here Wednesday.

"One of the great dangers to the U.N. charter today and to development itself is the willful violation of the national integrity of both Afghanistan and Cambodia by the Soviet Union and Vietnam," Haig said in his first speech to the General Assembly.

He said he hoped the day would never come when the world accepted the idea that "might makes right."

Gromyko and Soviet Ambassador to the United States Anatoly Dobrynin sat quietly throughout Haig's speech. Gromyko will deliver his own address to the General Assembly today.

Haig's meeting with Gromyko on Wednesday and again next Monday will mark the highest level of contact yet between the Reagan administration and the Soviet leadership.

The purpose is to plan formal negotiations aimed at restraining deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, although Haig said he would raise other issues, including Afghanistan, Cambodia and Poland. He said Sunday he would tell Gromyko the Soviets must not intervene militarily in Poland — where severe economic troubles and the emergence of an independent labor union have created a crisis — if they want improved relations with the United States.

Duarte appeals for U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador's President Jose Napoleon Duarte, appealing for support from President Ronald Reagan and Congress, says he needs more American military and financial aid to bring democracy to the embattled country.

Duarte, who took over as head of El Salvador's civilian-military junta in December, met Reagan at the White House Monday and will travel to Capitol Hill today.

The visit comes at a time when the administration concedes that public support in the United States for the Duarte regime is lukewarm and France and Mexico are calling for negotiations between the government and leftist insurgents in El Salvador.

Duarte said Sunday that he was not in Washington to ask for additional U.S. assistance but rather to explain his plan for democratic development in El Salvador after a "military dictatorship of 50 years."

Hostages may get compensation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel Monday recommended the U.S. government pay each of the former American hostages in Iran $12.50 per day as compensation for their ordeal.

If the proposal is approved by President Ronald Reagan, each of the 52 ex-hostages held in captivity for 444 days would be entitled to $5,550 in compensation.

The $12.50 per day compensation recommended by the commission fell far short of the figure suggested by Brice Claggett, the attorney for the hostages and their families.

"Considering the execution threats, torture and other mistreatment of the hostages, you would be on the conservative side if you were to decide that a court would be likely to pay a minimum of $1,000 for each day of captivity for each hostage," Claggett told the commission.

Independence come to Belize

BELIZE CITY, Belize (AP) — Soldiers hauled down the Union Jack at midnight in the last British colony on the American mainland, as Belize Monday became the world's newest independent nation.

Local churchmen dedicated the new flag and nation "to the glory of God." A tropical downpour drowned out most of the fireworks in Belize, nestled between Mexico and Guatemala on the Caribbean.

But in a brisk ceremony on the seaside lawn of Government House, a mid-night audience of about 800 people saw the British flag lowered for the last time here.

Belize, formerly British Honduras, has had internal self rule since 1964.

More jailed in reactor protest

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Anti-nuclear protesters Monday renewed attempts to block workers from entering the Diablo Canyon atomic power plant. More than 180 were arrested, bringing the seven-day total to 1,290.

Hours later, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission voted to give Pacific Gas & Electric Co. interim approval for low-power testing at the plant, a move that could spark a new push by protesters. The NRC will vote later on whether the plant may go to full power.

PG&E prepared to load radioactive fuel at the plant Monday, despite the weeklong protest.

Budget cuts may have harsh effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — More crime, physical and psychological illness, broken families and racial division are among the possible dire effects of President Ronald Reagan's economic policies and budget cuts, says a harshly critical final report by a lame duck panel of federal poverty program advisors.

Reagan's current course of action could create "social chaos" in the nation, says the 13th and last annual report of the National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity, created in 1964 during former President Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty.
