

Roommate code may offer legal protection

By ROBERT MONTGOMERY
DTH Staff Writer

Students who do not know how to handle problems with their roommates may soon have legal power to make their roommates cooperate.

Although the Roommate Bill of Rights recently adopted by the Residence Hall Association is only a philosophy, the bill may involve legal contracts in the future, RHA President Robert Bianchi said Wednesday.

Referring to a recent article in a Newsweek supplement that quoted him, Bianchi said the article may have been slightly misleading in portraying the bill as a binding contract.

Although the Roommate Bill of Rights represents the philosophy of the RHA, it has not been fully implemented and is not followed to the "letter of the law," he said. The Roommate Bill of Rights is a list of roommates' rights, such as the right to study and sleep and to live in a clean environment. The RHA hopes to add a legal clause and incorporate the bill into a roommate handbook to be issued next year, Bianchi said.

Plans are still tentative for the handbook, but the Campus Governing Council has already earmarked funds for the project, he said.

A roommate handbook would include tips on being a good roommate as well as the bill itself. "We haven't actually started working on the implementation of it (the bill)," Bianchi said, adding that RHA's emphasis was now on its philosophy.

In implementing the provisions of the bill, resident assistants will continue to have a vital role in roommate relations. They will be responsible for explaining the handbook, the Roommate Bill of Rights and any legal contract involved with it, Bianchi said.

Some students said they thought such roommate policies would help on-campus residents, especially those who did not know what their rights in the residence hall were.

For instance, one student said his roommate kept the room too cold with his air conditioner, but that he did not know his rights in the situation.

Mark Hancock, a freshman who lives in Avery, said, "It is a great idea." He said he received a copy of the bill in his orientation package at the beginning of the year.

Some students who have heard of the bill do not know how it really affects them. Jeff Roller, a sophomore in Morrison, said a copy used to be stuck to his closet door but that he was unsure of its purpose.

Jeff Edwards, a sophomore living in Mangum, said he remembered it from last year and thought it was a good idea.

Poland calls Solidarity offer 'step toward realism'

The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity's offer to compromise on the issue of worker self-management could be a "step toward realism," the Polish government said Wednesday. Official sources said the union's offer indicated the start of "some bridge-building" that could ease the confrontation between the government and the independent union.

Union leaders resolved at a meeting Tuesday to let the government keep the exclusive right to appoint managers of state enterprises if the regime allowed workers a veto. The resolution was a step back from the union's previous insistence that it have sole power to hire and to fire managers.

The government official in charge of union affairs, Stanislaw Ciosek, said at a news conference that if the regime treated the new offer "separately from other resolutions, statements and opinions and separate from statements made at the congress, then in my opinion it would be a step toward realism."

The offer was similar to one made by the Polish Parliament, which resumed debate on the self-management issue today. Solidarity, the first union independent of Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc, initially rejected the proposal at its first national congress earlier this month.

It also passed a resolution expressing support for free labor federations throughout Eastern Europe, infuriating Communist authorities who have been calling the union "counter-revolutionary."

Workers at the giant Ursus tractor factory outside Warsaw reacted to the "counter-revolutionary" charges by declaring, "We shall not let anyone insult us and our union organization."

"The counter-revolutionaries and anti-socialists are the rulers who have distorted history, destroyed culture and pushed the country to the brink of destitution," the statement said.

In Belgrade, the newspaper Politika Ekspres, which reflects the policy line of East Bloc maverick Yugoslavia, backed the Solidarity workers and accused the Soviet Union of interfering in Poland's internal affairs.

"When the pressure is predominantly Soviet, anti-Sovietism grows in Poland," the paper said.

Performances Friday the 25th of September and Saturday the 26th at 7:30 P.M. in Memorial Hall on the UNC Campus.

News in Brief

Countries begin high-level talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, relaxed and smiling, exchanged pleasantries Wednesday and started the highest-level meeting thus far between the Reagan administration and the Soviet leadership.

They were expected to decide the date and place to start formal negotiations aimed at restraining deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe. The U.S. side was said to favor mid-November in Geneva.

In Washington, a high-ranking Defense Department official said the United States might approach the Soviet Union within the next six months with proposals for limiting strategic weapons. Richard N. Perle, an assistant defense secretary, said that in any SALT talks, the Reagan administration's aim would be to limit weapons within broad categories rather than producing a detailed agreement such as the SALT II pact.

Cuba to get U.S. broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, accusing the Cuban government of lying to its citizens, said it would set up a new broadcast station patterned after Radio Free Europe to transmit programs challenging Havana's version of the news.

Richard V. Allen, national security adviser to President Reagan, said Cuban media "have lied throughout the two decades of the revolution, they lie today, and will continue to lie to the Cuban people."

The programs, beamed in Spanish, will contain political commentary as well as news and entertainment features.

The programs will contain information such as how many Cubans have been killed in Angola, and will be used to counter Havana's claim that the United States is responsible for an outbreak of dengue fever in Cuba and has sabotaged the Cuban economy, officials said.

The administration hopes to have the new station on the air by next January. Officials said it would have an initial operating budget of up to $10 million.

Crews examine shuttle damage

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Workers were inspecting up to 200 loosened thermal tiles on the space shuttle Columbia on Wednesday, assessing damage from a propellant spill to determine how long the spacecraft's second mission must be delayed.

More than 200 of the spacecraft's 31,000 heat-resistant tiles were affected by Tuesday's spill, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The spill has delayed the shuttle's second mission at least a week and possibly two beyond the scheduled Oct. 9 date, NASA officials have said. But if damage is found inside the craft and the shuttle has to be removed from the launching pad, postponement could be "in excess of a month," shuttle Operations Director George Page said.

Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said, "Considering the mood of the country and that of the Senate, I feel we have done quite well, and the diligent work that has gone into preserving this important program has paid off for our farmers."

Helms' press secretary, Joseph Terrell, said Helms felt the program had worked well and that destroying it would create economic chaos.

"If these programs were coming up for the first time, he (Helms) might not vote for them," Terrell said. "But the peanut industry has existed for decades, and the farmers depend on them for income. To take the program away would economically jerk the rug out from under them."

The main reason for action on the peanut program was the inadequate supply of peanuts in 1980, he said.

Terrell said the initial reaction of the state to the Farm Bill modifications was panic. "But if you take a closer look at the modification, you might say that the peanut industry is better off. The peanut farmer is not going to suffer," he said.
