Frats vote point system change, sorority league discussed

Scott Sexton and Cynthia Knight, two greek IM leaders, decided changes needed to be made in greek IM's and recently found the IM-Rec hierarchy approachable and agreeable.

Sexton of Kappa Psi led the forces of smaller fraternities that felt the then-present frat point system, which emphasized participation, actually favored the larger fraternities. He got his frat point system changes after the frat IM managers were polled and a meeting was held to discuss the subject.

Knight of ZTA decided a sorority league, within the present instant scheduling and with no point system, would help boost a sagging sorority participation in IM's. Letters were sent out to sorority IM managers and the Panhellenic Council, and if the interest is there, Knight will get the support of the IM-Rec program.

According to Assoc. IM-Rec Director Marty Pomerantz, the approved frat point system changes will be effective "retroactively to the beginning of the Fall semester." "Points awarded (or deducted) on the basis of achievement, sportsmanship and forfeits will remain unchanged," Pomerantz said.

"Points awarded for participation, as defined in the IM calendar, have been revised to better reflect the popularity of and number of participants needed for certain sports," he said.

The new limits on the numbers of teams which will receive participation points are as follows:

SPORT	FRAT DIVISION	MEN'S REC DIVISION
basketball	2	3
football, softball, volleyball	2	1
all minor team sports	2	2

Pomerantz stressed that the limit on men's rec teams applies to receiving points only. "There is never a limit on the number of teams that can enter," he said.

ZTA's Knight didn't like the choice between the very recreational women's rec divisions and the sparse but usually highly skilled women's competitive divisions.

"I want to put together a sorority league because the girls in my house prefer playing in less competitive situations," she said. "I also feel a league would increase participation in intramurals among women."

Asst. IM-Rec Director Janis Matson, who remembers when the women's competitive point system was discontinued at the request of most women participants several years ago, supports the league and thinks it could fit easily in the present instant scheduling system.

To date, neither Knight nor the IM-Rec office has received much feedback from the sorority managers. Sorority managers should contact Knight at 933-2793 or the IM-Rec office.

Thetas of yesterday are shown accepting the last women's IM point trophy. ZTA's push to organize sorority league may boost participation without returning to a point system.

Darren Biehler: 'Super Star'

Granville CW's Darren Biehler held off a stiff challenge from Granville DW's Bucky Ransdell to win the first annual Super Stars competition held last weekend.

Biehler's victory earns him the title of UNC's 1981-82 Most Outstanding IM-Rec Athlete. His and Ransdell's names will be submitted to Newsweek's college supplement which annually recognizes outstanding IM-Rec athletes.

Competition was extremely close, according to Assoc. IM-Rec Director Marty Pomerantz. Ransdell forced an obstacle course run-off by tying the score during the first course run. Other events were 100-meter dash, long jump, football throw, soccer kick, 50-meter swim, two-mile run, leg press, badminton serve, and basketball free throw.

Biehler and Ransdell finished with 79 points. Granville DW's Meadows finished third at 67½, Stacy's Jess Mogul fourth at 66, DW's Reggie Carpenter fifth at 60 and CW's Joel Broadway sixth at 48½. Mogul, who won the 3000-meter run in this year's track meet with a time of 9:41.3, was inadvertently left out of last week's track results.

Ransdell also finished second in last year's "Intracathlon," forerunner to Super Stars.

In other IM news, Lewis "Sleehrats" defeated the Dental "Healers" 15-13 to take the recent men's competitive "Napoleon's" basketball tournament. Winning team members include Gregg Pace, Jeff Irvin and Brent Centry, while the Healer outfit consisted of Ed Hickman, Rob Prewitt, Mark Dale, Bobby Miller and Tom Prewitt.

Delta Upsilon, Pi Phi, Stacy, and Craige Alumni are the kings of the team table tennis world this season. DU "Blue #1" defeated Sig Ep for the frat title and Stacy "Millenium Falcons" defeated Everett "II" for the residence hall championship.

The Craige alums, calling themselves the "One More Time" referring to Craige's all-campus table tennis championship last fall, defeated the MBA "Gators" for the grad/ind title. Phi Phi's "Arrows" downed Ruffin "Rivals" in the women's division and Chi Phi "Blue #2" defeated Granville DW "Bombers" in men's rec.

Table tennis champs are: DU, Tim Edwards, Rob McNeil, Tim Condon and Richard Batchelder; Stacy, Joe Bell, Chuck Wilkerson, Alan Wright, Parks Welch and Richard Lord; Craige Alumni, Rick Ammons, Jon Weston-Dawkes, Tom Wayne and Paul Nelson; Pi Phi, Robin Waters, Karen Culbreth, Martha Mattingly and Kate Wellford; Chi Phi "Blue #2," Billy Sutton, Scott Davis, Lee Bolden and Harrison Smith.

Old Well "Zag Nuts" defeated Bacteriology "Samoa Blue" 11-2, 11-6 to take the recent "Wimbledon" volleyball tournament men's competitive division. Winning team consisted of Will Owens, Charles Wright and Amanda Thomason.

James "Triple Threat" defeated "ESE" of the Environmental Sciences and Engineering Department 11-4, 11-0 for the rec divisional final. Triple Threat members are Kevin Fairly, Tim Cooke and Mike Bennett.

In the Wimbledon women's division, Kappa Alpha Theta's "Sandy Beaches" "won" without playing a game. None of the other nine entered teams showed up to play so Sandy Benson, Sandi Campbell, Terese Packett and Anneli Zeck have IM champion T-shirts for their efforts.

Today is the new deadline for floor hockey, with play set to begin after fall break. Next week, co-rec activities hold the IM-Rec spotlight, with the first annual Co-rec Super Teams starting Sun., Oct. 25, and the 15th annual Co-rec Sports Day coming around again Wed., Oct. 28.

Co-rec Sports Day, hosted this year by UNC Greensboro, pits Greensboro, UNC Charlotte, State and UNC in a free-for-all competition in badminton, billiards, bowling, golf, racquetball, table tennis, tennis and volleyball.

State has won this traditional intra-state event five years in a row, and there's nothing that UNC Asst. IM-Rec Director and this year's UNC Sports Day coordinator Janis Matson would like to see any better than for the streak to come to an end.

"Forfeits have killed us in the past," she said. "If we can fill teams in every event, then we have an excellent change of winning."

"We have good athletes here, and in the events we have entered in the past, we have done well. It (Sports Day) is fun. We are hoping that people will want to take a day off and come with us to Greensboro to win."

Matson is looking for undergraduates only, as dictated by Sports Day rules. Participants will leave Chapel Hill at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 28 and will return by 3 p.m. All events require teams of two males and two females except racquetball, one male and two females and volleyball, three males and three females.

Assoc. Director Pomerantz also reported that a small but enthusiastic group participated in the National Jogging Day prediction runs last Sunday.
