

V-ball team finishes low

By TRACY YOUNG
DTH Staff Writer

The UNC Volleyball team, though accustomed to winning, won only three of its five matches and finished ninth in the 12-team Maryland Tournament.

Penn State and Rutgers finished first and second.

"Overall, we did about average," Coach Beth Miller said. "We didn't do as well as we thought we could have done. I just don't think we played well."

In pool play, the Tar Heels defeated Delaware 6-15, 15-9, 15-6. George Washington beat Carolina in the second match 15-12, 13-15, 6-15, but the Heels rallied to defeat Princeton, 15-10, 8-15, 15-10.

"We just made some errors," Miller said. "They're the same things we've done before." She said the Heels needed to try to run their attack in the middle a little more.

Defeating Virginia 15-10, 15-5 in the last game of pool play helped Carolina to finish second behind George Washington in their pool.

In the single-elimination part of the tournament, Carolina lost to Georgetown 9-15, 8-15.

"We could have beaten George Washington, and we should have beaten Georgetown," Miller said. "Both are good teams, but we made mistakes that hurt us more than their ability did."

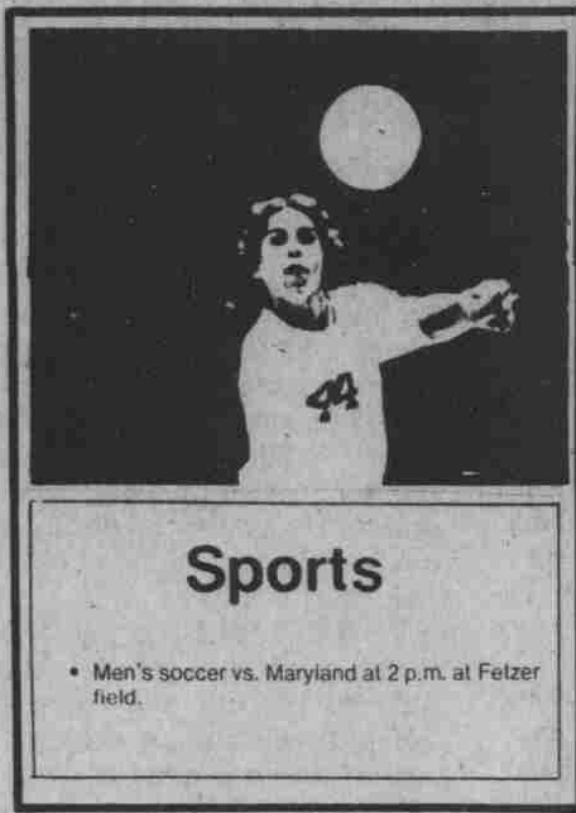

"They're the only two games we lost, and we should have won both."

Statistics showed, Donna Meier, Katie Howard and captain Laura Held with the most kills, but the numbers were nearly equal for all the outside hitters.

On Tuesday night, the 21-5 Heels meet N.C. State in Raleigh.

"We pretty much know how State plays," Miller said. "The main thing we want to do is to play our game and to minimize the amount of unforced errors."

Old Dominion defeated UNC 5-0 in field hockey action Saturday in Norfolk, Va.

Clemson takes tennis title

UNC fails to repeat as champs

By STEPHANIE GRAHAM
DTH Staff Writer

For the first time in five years, the UNC women's tennis team failed to win the ACC tournament. Last year's runner-up, Clemson, took the honors as Carolina finished second and Duke third in the tournament, played this weekend in Durham and Chapel Hill.

"I'm not pleased with the tournament, of course, because we didn't win," UNC coach Kitty Harrison said. "But I am not displeased with the way it turned out today. Out of four singles finals we were in, we won two and didn't play badly in the other two. We also won the No. 1 doubles."

Carolina's singles champions were No. 1-seeded Margie Brown, who won the third flight by defeating Clemson's Jennifer Hirsch 6-2, 6-0, and No. 2-seeded Sandy Fleischman, who beat the Tiger's No. 1 seed, Jan Neville, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4 in the sixth flight. Carolina's No. 2-seeded doubles pair of Margie Brown and Betsey Heidenberger started slowly, but came on strong to upset the No. 1 team of Jane Forman and Jody Trucks of Clemson 4-6, 6-0, 6-1 in the top doubles flight.

"The girls who won today played exceedingly well," Harrison said. "They were all up for it."

The two UNC players who did not win their singles matches Sunday were Heidenberger, who was defeated by Trucks 6-4, 6-4 in the second flight, and Julie Kirby, who lost to the Tigers' Lori Miller 7-5, 6-4 in the fifth flight.

The three-day tournament was played in Durham on Friday and Saturday, but rain Sunday forced the teams to finish play on the two indoor courts at Carolina. Because of limited court space, all consolation play was canceled.

"The tournament was difficult, overall, because of the weather," Harrison said. "It was so cold, and the rain on Friday forced us to double up on two doubles matches on Saturday. Still, it was the same for everyone."

The tournament had developed into a three-way battle among Clemson, UNC and Duke by the finals Sunday. Only one player from any of the other five teams — Wendy Fine of Maryland — even played in a championship match. Wake Forest finished fourth, far below the top three, Maryland and Virginia tied for fifth and N.C. State came in seventh.

Clemson, on the other hand, was represented in every singles and doubles championship, and No. 3-seeded Forman upset top-seeded Fine to win the ACC

Though disappointed with the team's loss, Harrison said she was happy for the Tar Heels who did win on Sunday.

"I am particularly glad for Sandy (Fleischman)," she said. "She is a senior and has never won an ACC singles flight."

The tournament marked the end of the fall season for Carolina. Harrison said that the time before spring play begins will be spent mostly in conditioning and working with weights.

Tigers beat Wolfpack in ACC action

From Associated Press

In the top ACC game of the day, North Carolina State thought it might be on its way to an upset of fourth-ranked Clemson when it jumped out to a 7-0 lead. But the Tigers had other ideas. Their nationally-ranked defense toughened, and Clemson came out a 17-7 victor.

In other conference games, Maryland, despite its 3-3-1 overall record, held on to a tie for the ACC lead at 3-0 with a 24-21 victory over Duke. And Wake Forest and Virginia duplicated that score, with the Deacons coming out on top. Virginia has still to win a game in seven tries this season.

Georgia Tech's record fell to 1-6 with a 27-10 loss to Tulane.

Tulane was out to a 20-0 lead before Tech's Ron Rice booted a 46-yard field goal five minutes into the third quarter. Rice missed a 40-yard field goal attempt in the second quarter.

Tech got a face-saving touchdown with less than six minutes remaining in the game when backup quarterback Stu Rogers hit tight end Ken Whisenhunt with a 21-yard scoring toss.

Rogers entered the game when starter Jim Bob Taylor was knocked out of the game with a shoulder injury midway through the final period. Rogers was 5-5 for all 60 of Tech's yards on the touchdown drive.

Tulane is now 3-4 after its third straight victory. Georgia Tech's one win came with an opening game victory over Alabama.

The Wolfpack, 4-3 and 2-3, started well, driving 59 yards to score the first rushing touchdown of the season against Clemson's highly touted defense.

Then the Tiger defense began to live up to its reputation. N.C. State got one first down early in the second period. Its next came midway through the fourth.

When it was all over, the Wolfpack had 87 yards rushing and 114 passing. Freshman tailback Joe McIntosh was held to under 100 yards for the first time this season.

Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan did not have a great day passing, completing only 3 of 14. But he ran for 104 yards as the Tigers piled up 304 yards on the ground.

"A lot of people around here think we can be the best team in the country," said Clemson coach Danny Ford, whose team boosted its record to 7-0 and 3-0 in the ACC. "I just don't know."

"You better believe they were physical," said the Wolfpack's McIntosh.

N.C. State will try to recover from two straight losses against South Carolina this week. Clemson will go for win No. 8 this season at Wake Forest.

That the Deacon-Cavalier duel was wide open was obvious — 958 yards of passing offense. The difference was Virginia's four fumbles, two interceptions and two dropped passes by Greg Taylor.

One of the passes Taylor dropped was for a sure touchdown, and he accepted the blame. "It wasn't because of anything the coaches did or didn't do. This one was totally my fault."

The Deacon players had some extra incentive in the game because of a statement by Cavalier coach Dick Bestwick earlier in the week that angered some of the players.

"It's a good way to be entertained, that is, if you don't mind losing forever," Bestwick said of the Deacon passing attack.

Deacon quarterback Gary Schofield, national back of the week last week, completed 30 of 46 passes for 373 yards and three touchdowns Saturday.

Duke place-kicker Scott McKinney missed three field goals. That summed up Duke's loss and Maryland's victory.

Maryland held the Blue Devils, 3-4 and 1-2, to four yards rushing, but yielded 397 yards in the air to quarterback Ben Bennett, who completed 31 of 46 passes.
