

Like 1980, Heels have to get minds off loss

By CLIFTON BARNES

It's kind of like last year. The Tar Heels were 7-0 and looking at the possibility of a national championship when the Oklahoma Sooners knocked them down 41-7. This season the Tar Heels were 6-0 and No. 3 in the nation when South Carolina handled them 31-13. A year ago, North Carolina had to get its mind on the Atlantic Coast Conference championship a week after the Oklahoma loss when it played Clemson. The Tigers, though a less talented team, played the Tar Heels tough as UNC pulled out a 24-19 win. This year it's Maryland the Tar Heels must get ready for and Coach Dick Crum said he felt his team would have no trouble getting mentally prepared. "They seem to not like North Carolina very much up there (Maryland)," Crum said at his weekly press conference. "There's no question our youngsters will go up there and play hard. They have a lot of character. "It's different than the Clemson game last year after Oklahoma because we weren't as beat up as now," he said. "We'll go to Maryland with a disadvantage physically."

The Tar Heels were hit hard with injuries and no less than five starters are doubtful for Saturday's game at Maryland. "We'll have more of a base attack because of that," Crum said. That's his way of saying that the offense will be more conservative. But fullback Alan Burrus said his role would not change. "My role is mainly as a blocker," he said. "Sometimes we'll keep them honest by running me up the middle just like always. "We'd won six games in a row and we just stopped doing the things we had to do," he said of the South Carolina game. "We didn't take practice as seriously as we had been since we had just had (fall) break." The only goal the Heels cannot reach now is going undefeated, Burrus said. "Still, we can go to a major bowl," he said. "I guess it was in a lot of people's minds that we might win a national championship, but that's not something that we can discuss on the team." Nose guard Steve Fortson said that the team would move on with the rest of the season and not think so much about the South Carolina game. "Just as you can't dwell on wins you can't dwell on losses," Fortson said. "On Saturday we thought about the loss. On Sunday we reflected on it, but Monday we started thinking about Maryland. "We are fine mentally." But physically it's a different story. With the probable loss of defensive tackle Jack Parry for the Terp game, Fortson will have a different teammate to work with — Joe Conwell, a junior who was red-shirted last year. "I don't see that much problem with the injuries," Fortson said. "When you play together, naturally you get dependent on one another. I always expect Jack (Parry) to be there. But we have confidence in our back ups. "It always hurts to lose great players but it will make us work that much harder. We'll pick up the pieces." Notes: On the injury situation Crum said, "We won't know who we'll have until Thursday. Doctors make the decision, not me." Senior Alan Burrus said that if quarterback Rod Elkins could not play against Maryland, he would not be the leader on offense. "I'm a quiet player," he said. "I don't consider myself the leader or anything. Rod's pretty much the leader on offense. There's been a lot of criticism of (back up quarterback) Scott (Stankavage) but he's in the same category as Rod in leading."

Soccer team aims for title

By LINDA ROBERTSON

The women's soccer team, a pioneer in the sport, has seen its trailblazing payoff in a No. 1 ranking by the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America. As the season winds down, UNC is hoping to live up to that ranking on the field as well as on paper. "We've made no bones about it. Our ambition all along has been to win the national championship," UNC coach Anson Dorrance said. "Our spot in the poll is indicative of the great support from the athletic department and a good recruiting year." Carolina is 17-0, moving to No. 1 after defeating Connecticut Oct. 11. "This is the first year they've had a poll and we don't like to place a lot of value on it," assistant coach Bill Paladino said. "The one aspect of the poll that is important is the fact that the final ranking determines the top four teams who get first round byes in the national tournament." But before the nationals, UNC has a couple of warm-up matches to get through. Friday and Saturday the Tar Heels host the N.C. Round Robin tournament. Warren Wilson College (located near Asheville) and Georgia Tech are scheduled to attend, but Tech, 12-0 losers to UNC Oct. 17, may decline the invitation. The AIAW Region II tournament is slated for Chapel Hill Nov. 6-7. "For the regionals, we've had no commitment from anyone yet except Virginia," Paladino said. "Each of the nine regional champions gets an automatic bid to the nationals and there are three additional at-large bids." The showdown will be in Chapel Hill Nov. 19-22 at the AIAW national tournament. As home team, UNC has a special stake in the action. The semifinals and finals will be held in Kenan Stadium. It may seem a little early to be talking about the nationals, but team members have been thinking about it ever since their second place finish at the national invitational last year. "We're really working toward nationals right now," Liz Phillips said. "We're trying to build up our fitness and keep everybody healthy." Senior Liz Crowley has been with the team since its inception as a club sport four years ago. "The biggest change has been going from having a few stars to having incredible depth and lots of talent," Crowley said. "We used to work hard hoping we could win. Now we work hard knowing we can win." Close games of a year ago became wipeouts this season. UNC beat James Madison and George Washington by one goal last year, but amassed scores of 15-0 and 9-0 this year. UNC has outscored opponents 139-7, including 12 shutouts. "I don't think we had a competitive enough schedule," Crowley said. "But we had a couple tough matches." "So far everything is going just as we planned," Dorrance said. And those plans include a national championship.

YOU KNOW, MIKEY, THIS WHOLE THING MIGHT HAVE TURNED OUT DIFFERENTLY IF I'D JUST STAYED AWAY FROM PEOPLE LIKE MABEL TRAVIS.

SHE OWNS A LUMBER YARD AND I USED TO DO A LOT OF BUSINESS WITH A FEW MONTHS AGO. TRAINS? WHEN I FIRST OUGHT AROUND OF THE INVESTIGATION, I WENT TO SEE HER.

WE'D BEEN PADDING HER BILLS FOR YEARS SO I WAS REAL CONCERNED. WE TOOK A LONG WALK DOWN BY THE CREEK AND I TOLD HER HOW DEVASTATING IT'D BE FOR BOTH OUR FAMILIES IF THE TRUTH EVER GOT OUT.

VERY UNFORTUNATELY, SHE WAS ALSO WIRED FOR SOUND.
