

Homecoming

Steve Streater to crown queen

By LYNN PEITHMAN

Homecoming, though not the Carolina Athletic Association's main activity, "involves the most people from the student body." "It's not our main function (but) it's the most fun thing we do. This is something we're doing for the students with the students."

The CAA's goal is to have one activity that people next year will look back to and remember Homecoming by. That activity may be this year's half time show, since it has the biggest audience, and should be the biggest effort, Theriot said.

That's part of the reason why Theriot asked former UNC baseball and football star Steve Streater to do the honors of crowning this year's Homecoming queen. Theriot said he wanted to get a football figure who was known to both students and alumni.

"I'm really looking forward to it," Streater said. "They asked me to do it, so anything to help out. Especially against Clemson, it's going to be a good game. . . everybody is going to be psyched for it."

Jake Kelly, athletic representative for Student Government, said, "I think that Steve is such a part of our football and our spirit here that if we're going to break the tradition, we did it well."

Traditionally, the past year's Homecoming queen crowns the next year's. Carla Roberts, last year's Homecoming queen, is coming back for the Homecoming activities, however.
