Chi Phi wins, sailing trip planned

Chi Phi's "Bucketheads" ended its tag football season with a perfect 15-0 record as it defeated Law "Ernest T. Bass" 7-0 for the all-campus title last Wednesday night on Carmichael Field.

Bass, the grad/ind division champion, finished its season with a 9-1 record. It was to play residence hall champion Teague A "Hairless Horseman" in the first round of the all-campus playoff, but Teague defaulted. Chi Phi had received the first round bye because of last year's all-campus winning Phi Delt fraternity team.

The game was a defensive matchup with both teams sluggish offensively, according to football coordinator Rob Frye. Chi Phi scored midway through the first half and managed to hold Bass. Both teams had brief offensive flurries in the second half only to be stalled. Bass' last second "hail mary" pass fell incomplete in the endzone at the whistle to end the game, Frye said.

UNC Aquatics Director Marybell Avery and the IM-Rec Sports Program are teaming up to offer the UNC community its newest IM-Rec activity, a spring Bahamas sailing trip. A slide show/organizational meeting will be held this Saturday, Nov. 7, 7 p.m. in 112 Saunders Hall.

The trip is slated for May 14-23 including round trip time to Ft. Lauderdale and will cost $440, excluding the Ft. Lauderdale round trip, Avery said. Only the first 23 people to sign up will be taken, she said.

Avery said the $440 includes seven nights on the boats, consisting of two 41-foot Morgans plus two smaller boats, food, insurance, airport taxi, flight from Ft. Lauderdale (small plane) to the boats, customs and taxes.

"We are going to rough it," Avery said. "It is going to be a field-study type trip." She said that participants will cook their own groceries.

Activities included on the trip will be skin diving, snorkeling, sailing and maintenance (of boats), cooking and some exploring of the islands. Areas to be visited are Marsh Harbor, Abaco, Great Harbor and Berry Island.

Contact Avery for more details at 962-2124.

IM tennis competition is slowly winding down, but the women's rec division was the only one completed at press time. McIver defeated Granville South Sixth for that title. The 11-member McIver roster consists of Ronda Troy, Sheila Colby, Abby Burke, Catherine Olive, Kay Hoover, Margaret Dees, Kathy Helms, Mary Pearson, Wendy Schruher, Lisa Battigelli and Beth Little.

Law "Ernest T. Bass" will meet Carolina Apts. "Service Aces" for the grad/ind title. Fraternity division is down to DU, Chi Psi, Pi Kap and Pika.

Top seven teams in floor hockey at press time were Sigma Chi, James "Gang," Morrison C, "Webbwood Icemen," TEP "Rangers," "Retorts" and IM-Rec "MASH."

UNC bombs out at Co-rec Sports Day

N.C. State's IM-Rec program continued its domination of sport day activities by outpointing UNC Charlotte and UNC Greensboro and demolishing Carolina in the annual Co-rec Sports Day Oct. 28.

Carolina's poor showing was due to this program's annual sport days nemesis, forfeits and poor participation. Despite heavy publicity and extensive recruitment by Asst. IM-Rec Director Janie Matson, UNC had to forfeit in golf and table tennis and was under-manned in several other events.

State finished with 30 points followed by Charlotte at 25, host Greensboro at 22 and Carolina with nine.

"I really don't know what else we can do," Matson said. "State shows up with full entries, has a grand time and heads back to Raleigh with the trophy."

Matson and the UNC IM-Rec hierarchy has come up with a plan that might turn the tide in this spring's Big Four Sports Day that State also usually wins.

"We are going to award participation points for the men's competitive units (residence halls, fraternities and grad/ind) that have a certain number of participants for these sport days," she said. "The sport days, or extramurals as they are known by, are an important part of the total IM-Rec sports program."

Carolina was led in Greensboro by Debby Flowers' billiards team that finished second to State. Billiards was introduced to the Co-rec Sports Day this year replacing archery because UNCG does not have archery facilities. Flowers and teammates John Cleetwood, Nancy Cleetwood and Kim Davis were recruited on the even of the competition, thrown together and performed well.

There wasn't a whole lot to crow about for the folks from the Hill. UNC finished dead last in golf (forfeit), table tennis (forfeit), tennis, volleyball, badminton and bowling. The racquet ball team led by Eric Plott, Ellen Goldberg and Pam Burwell finished third.

Other UNC participants were Maria Siasacas, Kathy Neville, Andrew Mousmouelles, Fred Pearlmac, David Welch, Greg Brownstein, Teresa Parrish, Tim Cox, Scott Whisnant, Rob Hickerson, Kris Cox, Lisa Culler, Dee Dee Cheston, Tony Joyce, Amy Springer, Mel Kelly, John Splain, Mike McDowell, Linka Schlitz and Julia Kohn.

"We appreciate the people that took the time to go," Matson said. "We had good athletes there, but we were just short a few people in several of the events that we had participation in, and that is a big disadvantage."

For State, this year's trophy marks the 14th one in the 15-year activity, having tied in 1974 with North Carolina. UNC won the inaugural event in 1967.
