

U.S. diplomat escapes injury from lone gunman

The Associated Press

PARIS (AP) — A lone gunman of "Middle Eastern type" fired seven shots Thursday at U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian Cahpan outside the diplomat's Paris apartment, the U.S. Embassy said. The bullets missed their mark and the gunman escaped on foot.

Chapman ducked behind his car and escaped the hail of bullets that left at least two holes in the rear of the vehicle, which was not armor plated, authorities said.

"My first reaction was one of surprise. I thought, why me? You read about these kinds of things in the newspapers, but you never think it is going to happen to you," Chapman said.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the attack, which police said occurred around 8:45 a.m. (2:45 a.m. EST) as Chapman was walking toward his home.

Chapman, 60, is the embassy's highest officer pending the arrival of new ambassador, Evan Griffith Galbraith.

The diplomat, talking to reporters at the embassy three hours after the shooting, refused to comment on reports that U.S. officials here had received an anonymous tip that Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy had sent an assassin to kill an American attache.

"I have no sweeping statements on that," he said. "There is no basis for making speculation from the incident."

Describing the attack, Chapman said, "I was just walking out of my house and I noted a young man on the right about 50 feet away. He had a black beard, big, jet-black eyes and an athletic build. He was a very handsome young man — a Middle Eastern type."

Chapman said the man put his hand in his black leather jacket and walked toward him.

"Instead of going back into the house, I stupidly continued on," he said. "I heard shots and saw him walking rapidly toward me with his hand extended. I ran forward and ducked behind the car."

"He then started walking rather quickly away. There were several witnesses and one young man tried to pursue him," he said.

Chapman, who took up his post in Paris in December 1978, said the attacker said nothing during the shooting. "The attacker emptied his gun, apparently very quickly, and didn't have time to really aim at Mr. Chapman."

The chauffeur, who was unarmed, also escaped injury. The attack, believed to be the first against an American official in Paris, came amid reports that Khadafy was planning attacks on U.S. diplomats in Europe in retaliation for the downing of two Libyan jets in a dogfight with U.S. Navy fighters over the Mediterranean last August.

Increased University Lake usage fees possible

By DEAN LOWMAN
DTH Staff Writer

The Orange Water and Sewer Authority gave preliminary approval to raise University Lake usage fees for two UNC groups Wednesday.

The UNC Crew and Sailing Clubs will be required to pay $15 per boat and $5 per participant per semester to use the lake if the proposal is approved in the monthly board of directors' meeting Thursday. The usage fees would go into effect Jan. 1.

Present rates are "$3 to $5 to $7, depending on the size of the boat," said Doug Terry, water plant superintendent. No charge is made per participant.

Everett Billingsley, OWASA engineer, said the agency had re-assessed the groups' use of the lake and the fees it was charging before proposing the increase.

"The groups are ... currently using University Lake at just a token fee," Billingsley said. "This would help keep their fees in line with that of the general population's fees, which will also increase on Jan. 1."

Even with the increase, the average member of the crew or sailing clubs would only pay about 12 cents per usage if the lake were used twice a week, Billingsley said.

New religious organization holds worship service Sunday

The Black Interdenominational Student Association, BISA, a newly formed organization, will hold its first worship service at 11:15 a.m. on Nov. 15 in the auditorium of the Carolina Union.

The aim of the association is to perpetuate the United States' constitutional right to freedom of religion by providing an alternative avenue for fellowship of students with various religious affiliations.

"It's just an alternative," BISA Chairperson Jesse Cureton said. "It has come from a need for black faculty and students on campus to relate on other than an academic level."

BISA will conduct seminars, discussion groups and lectures on various issues including the Moral Majority and how it affects religion. A bible study will be held regularly.

The speaker for the Sunday service will be the Rev. Harold G. Wallace, vice chancellor for University Affairs. The BSM Gospel Choir will be the musical guests.

"I'm really pleased to see the organization. It is one more expression of student creativity," Wallace said.

Stockman

basis of the best evidence and judgment available.

"Mr. Stockman stated that he shared the president's concern and disappointment. Notwithstanding his continuing commitment to the president's policies and programs, Mr. Stockman then offered the president his resignation."

"Following further discussions of these issues, the president decided not to accept Mr. Stockman's resignation."

Reagan canceled a luncheon meeting with Vice President George Bush on Thursday to see Stockman. The president passed up an opportunity to endorse Stockman during a morning visit to the new Washington studios of ABC News.

Asked if Stockman could continue as an effective spokesman, Reagan replied: "When I leave here today I'm going back to have a meeting with Dave Stockman. That's all I can tell you."

Since the article began circulating in the capital Tuesday, Democrats have pointed to it as proof of their long-held contention that Reagan's budget and tax-cut program cannot succeed.

Congressional Republicans have said increasingly that the article may destroy Stockman's credibility as the president's chief salesman for the program on Capitol Hill.

OWASA's Committee of the Whole also heard a long-range plan that was being developed to upgrade its facilities. The 15-year, seven-project plan involves the extension and rehabilitation of several interceptors and pump stations, Billingsley said.

Although the improvements would cost about $8 million, Billingsley said no ideas were presented about raising money for the projects.

"Asked by a reporter if he agreed with Stockman's published statement that the president's tax-cut plan was a 'trickle-down' program, Reagan said, 'No.'"

"Trickle-down" refers to a theory that tax cuts for the wealthiest will eventually help everyone.

At the White House session, Stockman expressed his regret to Reagan and congressional Republicans over his characterizations of the Reagan program.

On Wednesday, administration officials said they were standing behind Stockman "today."

Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker, after the White House meeting, said Stockman was given the floor by the president and delivered what Baker called an apology — although he said Stockman never used that word.

"Clearly he was embarrassed and unhappy," Baker said. The Tennessee senator said Stockman's published comments had been "indecisive" and predicted Democrats "will have a field day."

Rep. Robert Michel, the House GOP leader, left the White House meeting praising Stockman's dedication and work, saying, "I believe in him."

In one section, Stockman said of the budget: "None of us really understands what's going on with all these numbers."

News in Brief

Companies suspended from bidding

RALEIGH (AP) — Nine electrical companies indicted this week on anti-trust charges were suspended Thursday from bidding on state contracts.

The Capital Building Authority, which oversees contracts for construction of most state building companies from further bidding after receiving a recommendation from the state Department of Justice.

In another development, U.S. Attorney Sam Currin said he had directed the FBI to begin an investigation into the most recent bid-rigging allegations involving electrical contracts. In a prepared statement, Currin said the FBI probe would focus on all aspects of the bid-rigging allegations, with special emphasis on construction projects financed with federal.

Hostages released in jail ordeal

JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP) — Two federal prison escapees being detained at the Ashe County Jail Thursday released a police chief and a jailer held captive for 13 hours, officials said. No injuries were reported.

The release came shortly after authorities reported the armed inmates, who may have been joined by a county prisoner, had taken "the run of the jail" and demanded a van for their escape.

Chief Jailer James Johnson reported at 7:40 a.m. that the hostages had been released following a night of negotiations.

The captors took four hostages at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, but released two of them — a matron and a clergyman — after their demands for a second gun were met, authorities said.

The hostages were held in a cell, and the inmates threatened to take some of the 10 other county prisoners captive, said Ashe County Sheriff Richard Waddell.

Egypt conducts autonomy talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Hosni Mubarak held a meeting with three key Israeli ministers Thursday in an attempt to spur Palestinian autonomy talks that remained deadlocked despite the resumption of ministerial-level negotiations.

"There is much to be done," an Israeli official said after the representatives of Israel, Egypt and the United States resumed negotiations Wednesday in Cairo. "There has not been a breakthrough so far or a breakdown."

He said neither side offered any specific new proposals in the two-hour session. Egyptian officials said the Egyptians again pressed the Israelis to halt the spread of Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territory and to take other measures to bring the Palestinians into the Camp David peace process.

Voting suspended in U.N. race

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council suspended balloting in the secretary-general's race and was discussing ways to end the Chinese-American deadlock blocking the re-election of Kurt Waldheim or his replacement.

Neither Waldheim, the Austrian incumbent seeking an unprecedented third term, nor his Third World challenger, Tanzanian Foreign Minister Salim Ahmed Salim, showed any readiness to withdraw after eight rounds of balloting. Both were vetoed on each one, Waldheim by China, which is committed to a Third World candidate, and Salim by the United States.

The Chinese had been expected to conclude that Salim did not have a chance and to abandon him after demonstrating their commitment to the Third World. But a Russian council source said indications were that the Chinese were prepared to veto Waldheim indefinitely.

There was no indication that the United States was prepared to withdraw its opposition to Salim.

Workers get radiation contamination

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A gas leak in an auxiliary building at a Sequoyah nuclear plant reactor left 12 workers with traces of radioactive material, the Tennessee Valley Authority said Thursday.

Spokesman Gil Francis said radioactive gas was detected on the hands of two of the 12, who washed their hands and returned to their jobs Tuesday night. The leak was not reported until Thursday.

Radioactive particles were detected on the clothes or shoes of the remainder of the workers, who waited 30 minutes to allow the radioactive material to disappear through natural decay, Francis said.

Spokesman Carl Crawford said four of the workers were plant operating officers, while others were public safety officers on patrol.
