seven and a half minutes, but UNC finally caught up and went ahead for good at 66-64. Clemson did not give in, but the Tar Heels had to hit their free throws to win the game.

"There wasn't any difference in this comeback and the one we had against Virginia (a 65-60 win)," UNC center Sam Perkins said. "We just had to take it easy. We knew we had plenty of time."

Perkins added that he thought it became easier to get the ball inside as the game wore on.

"It was pretty hard at first," Perkins said. "But, as we began to play better, we were able to do more of what we wanted."

The sophomore center also said that he felt the Heels have not been playing their best basketball as of late. Foster even said that there are five or six teams better than UNC.

"It's a natural cycle," Perkins said. "Teams have their highs and lows. I guess the team is at a low right now. We're straining right now and we haven't the consistency."

tremities, said Dr. Joe DeWalt, director of sports medicine at the student infirmary.

DeWalt said fractures also were common for skaters, although the same type of fall will cause different injuries to skaters of different ages. College-age skaters most commonly fracture the navicular bone, the main bone in the wrist.

News in Brief

More evidence presented in murder case

ATLANTA (AP)—Wayne B. Williams asked for permission to take pictures at the scene where the body of one of 28 slain young blacks was found, and he might have provided a talent audition for another victim, witnesses testified Wednesday at his murder trial.

Williams, a 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and aspiring talent promoter, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the youths whose deaths over a 22-month period have been investigated by a special police task force. Williams has denied knowing any of the 28.

Two former sheriff's investigators testified that a man they later identified as Williams asked if he could take photographs of the body of Terry Pue, the 16th victim in the string of slayings, shortly after it was discovered beside a suburban road Jan. 23, 1981.

A friend of Joseph Bell, the 24th victim, said Bell told him he had responded to a talent advertisement placed by a man who resembled Williams.

Chapel Hill police news

Howard Engle, an 18-year-old UNC student, had approximately $500 worth of clothing stolen from dryers in the laundry facilities at Foxcroft Apartments on Jan. 19, according to Chapel Hill police records. Engle, of 333 Cobblestone Ct., said in the police report that he placed the clothes in the dryers at 4 p.m. and discovered them missing when he returned to the laundry room at approximately 8 p.m. There are no suspects in the theft, and the case is classified as pending.

A total of $746.45 was stolen from the optometry office of Dr. Barry C. Adler during a break-in that occurred Jan. 22, Chapel Hill police reports state. A window on the west side of the building, located at 861 Willow Dr. was broken, and the inside of the office was searched for the money box containing the stolen cash. There are no suspects in the case.

According to police reports, Marc Adam Elsdorfer, a 23-year-old UNC student, was arrested Jan. 16 on charges of assault. Elsdorfer reportedly came to the police station after learning that his landlord, Michael Tice, of 200 Sunrise Ln. ordered a warrant for his arrest following a dispute in which Elsdorfer struck Tice with his fist. Tice received minor scrapes and cuts as a result of the dispute. Bond for Elsdorfer was set at $500.

my position, it's just one person in control. It's part of my job to know what's going on. I would rather be held responsible for my own actions instead of having to be responsible for a number of assistants."

Although she has no assistants, there are people who work with Tucker, such as members of the Student Activities Fund Office.

Tucker said she had not had to face any ma-decisions while in office. She said that the big decisions were left to the CGC and the student body president and that the only ones she has had to make are the ones concerning late acquisitions of funds.

Perhaps Tucker has been too busy as student body treasurer to think much about her future. When asked about what she planned to do after college, her quick response was "Get a job."
