

Edwards, Miller seek to lead class

Mark Edwards, a junior business administration major from Greensboro, and Chris Miller, a junior political science and economics major from Greensboro, announced their joint candidacy for senior class president and vice president Monday.

Edwards and Miller said that if elected they would focus their efforts on involving more students in senior class government and preparing seniors for what they can expect after graduation.

They proposed a cabinet-structured government and committees to take care of senior class responsibilities. The installation of cabinet heads would allow more interested seniors to get involved, Edwards said.

The candidates also said they wanted to bring in outside speakers to discuss race relations and the kind of discrimination students could expect after graduation.

Edwards and Miller are also investigating having a student committee to work alongside the placement center in attracting companies to recruit at the University.

"We want to push for a committee to be an academic liaison between students and faculty," Miller said, describing another part of the cabinet structure plan.

"Instead of emphasizing tradition we can look back on, we want to emphasize our senior year as a springboard to the future," Edwards said.

Edwards has been speaker pro tem of the Campus Governing Council and member of the Finance Committee. He has also been on the Academic Affairs Committee of Student Government.

Miller has served on the Academics Procedures Committee of Student Government, on the Honor Court and as a student academic adviser. Miller is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

Union to celebrate 50th with all-nighter

Where can a person find mud wrestling, an air band contest, belly dancing, a Rubik's Cube contest, free massages and a birthday celebration in the same building? At the Carolina Union All-Night Birthday Bash from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. Friday.

Though the all-nighter is an annual Union tradition, this year's will be better than past ones, said Ellie Jeffers, student coordinator of the Bash. The all-nighter coincides with the celebration of the Union's 50th birthday, providing the Birthday Bash theme, she said.

"It will be a general night of fun," Jeffers said. "The activities will hopefully appeal to all people."

Jazz lovers will find themselves serenaded by Brother Yusuf and Sister Eve. New-wave musical chairs, a belly dancing exhibition, a dance marathon and a limbo competition are also scheduled.

For people who are into imitating musicians and musical styles, the Union and WXYC are sponsoring an air band contest.

Candlelight blue-pin bowling, billiards finals, simultaneous chess games, a Rubik's Cube contest, Dungeons and Dragons and a pinball tournament offer students a chance to show off their expertise in various games.

Movie-goers and film-lovers will find satisfaction in the Free Flick classic Rock 'n' Roll High School, the dollar film Moscow Does Not Believe in Tears and the various videotapes to be shown.

Art fans will be drawn to the black-light art exhibit and the caricature drawing exhibit. A face-painting booth and a graffiti board will also be set up.

For students who thrive on the bizarre, there will be mud wrestling in Deep Jonah in the basement of the Union. And to remedy aches and pains, especially after the mud wrestling, massages will be offered.

As far as beverages are concerned, the Bash will be strictly BYOB, Jeffers said.

The night will culminate with a birthday finale at 3:30 a.m., including, of course, a cake.

Anyone interested in helping with the Bash is encouraged to stop by 200 Union.

Liberal arts major give undecided more time

Declaring a major can be one of the most difficult decisions a student makes. While most sophomores are preparing to formally declare their majors, they do not have to reach a decision yet, an adviser for the College of Arts and Sciences said Tuesday.

"Sophomores are urged to formally declare a major before leaving the General College," adviser Cynthia S. Dessen said. But students planning to stay in the College of Arts and Sciences can wait to declare a major, she said.

"Some students know right away what they want to major in," Dessen said. "However, many either don't know or change their minds. With a B.A. degree in the College of Arts and Sciences, it's all right to be undecided."

Dessen said that almost all B.A. degree programs require from six to eight major courses, with twelve to fourteen courses taken as electives.

"The advantage of a B.A. is its freedom and flexibility," she said. "A liberal arts program can be completed within three semesters; so a student could possibly wait until the middle of his junior year to declare a major. If a sophomore isn't really sure, he should wait."

Dessen said all sophomores following the B.A. program would be assigned a College of Arts and Sciences adviser. Students who have declared a major will be assigned an adviser from their major's department. Sophomores have until Feb. 12 to decide on a major.

A meeting for students concerned with career planning is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Thursday on the second floor of Steele Building. Students unable to attend will have a chance to attend a second meeting, at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in 206 Carolina Union, she said.

"What we are trying to do is show students how they can follow a B.A. program and use their electives for developing job skills," she said.

Student hit by car, hurt

A UNC student was listed in good condition late Tuesday night at North Carolina Memorial Hospital with numerous injuries after being hit by a car in front of Fetzer Gym at 7:15 Tuesday night.

Melanie Dawn Lawrence suffered fractures in her pelvis and arm and injured her knee in the accident, NCMH spokesperson Kathy Bartlett said. Lawrence is a sophomore from Fleetwood, N.C.

Lawrence tried to cross the street about 40 feet from the crosswalk, stopped, turned back and stepped into the path of the eastbound car coming through the intersection, attending officer Michael Blake of the Chapel Hill Police Department said.

Blake said the driver of the 1978 Oldsmobile, had the green light and was driving about 25 mph in the 35 mph zone. The driver's name was not released pending further investigation.

Poor driving visibility caused by the rain and the dark clothing Lawrence wore attributed to the accident, Blake said.

Another four candidates announce for CGC race

By JONATHAN SMYLYE
DTH Staff Writer

Four students announced their candidacies for seats on the Campus Governing Council on Tuesday.

Tony Delp, a junior political science major from Millers Creek, is running in District 20, which includes Old Well, Popular and Fidelity Court apartments.

Delp said the CGC should work on improving relations between on-campus and off-campus students. If elected, he would set up a student consumer action program to help students receive better services from the committee, he said.

He was a representative in student government at Appalachian State University before transferring to UNC.

Anna Giattina, a junior public policy analysis major from Birmingham, Ala., is a candidate in District 14, which includes Granville Towers.

Keeping in touch with the people she represents, would be her major concern, Giattina said. She also said she would create an approach for linking the Granville Towers senators with the CGC representatives.

Before transferring to UNC, Giattina was on the executive council of student government at Samford University in Alabama.

Berneta Hassell, a freshman from Williamston, is running in District 15, which includes Hinton James and Morrison dormitories.

Hassell said that, if elected, she would work to have the council conduct more thorough research of bills before voting on them.

Hassell is a member of the N.C. Student Legislators, the Black Student Movement and the Young Democrats.

Phil Painter, a junior economics major from Tarboro, is running in District 19, which includes Tarheel Manor Apartments and non-apartment residences in Carrboro.

He said that, if elected, he wanted to continue to ensure that all organizations that apply for funding abide by the bylaws. He said no political group should be funded.

Painter is a member of the 1980-1981 council and chairperson of the Rules and Judiciary Committee. He is also on the Chapel Thrill talent selection committee.
