

New campus publication pokes fun at tradition

By KYLE MARSHALL
DTH Staff Writer

Since a third campus newspaper began publication last week, many students have questioned the need for a multitude of campus media, but at least three UNC students say they feel presently provided coverage is not enough.

Identifying themselves as Moe, Larry and Curly, the students have begun a publication known as The Occasional Free Mimeograph, to be distributed around campus this morning.

The three editors said Monday they were inspired by the present campus publications. "One night before this all began," Larry said in a top-secret staff meeting yesterday, "We were sitting down to eat dinner, when we noticed that the three campus newspapers were before us. This gave us the idea to start our own publication."

Today's one-page issue contains endorsements for student body president and Daily Tar Heel editor, as well as the offices of "student underwear inspector," "student apathy association" and "student body movement." The paper also welcomes letters that "either agree with our point of view completely or disagree in such an absurd fashion as to make our opposition appear illiterate."

Distribution sites for the paper include the Carolina Union desk, and "some of the finer places in the Union such as in rest rooms and near vending machines," Larry said.

The editors said the paper would be published on an occasional basis. "In our next issue, we would like to do an expose on the Duke short-range nuclear ballistic missile. We expect violent reaction to our newspaper, possibly even fire-bombing."

Moe described the editors as being very diverse, and Curly said, "None of us have the same psychosis."

Funding for the Mimeograph does not come from student fees. The group said that a few individuals support them, and that they steal their money. They won't be hiring reporters, but anyone who wants to write for the paper can help by paying for it.

"We would like to thank all the little people who made the paper possible," Larry said. "We'd also like to invite all human beings to our Videocam Game Saloon on West Franklin Street."

Dorm plan petitioned

By DAVID CURRAN
DTH Staff Writer

Prompted by the recent decision to triple and quadruple dorm rooms on campus next year, McIver Residence Hall residents submitted a petition Monday to Associate Director for Residence Life Jody Harpster voicing student opposition to the new University plan for increased occupancy.

The 500-signature petition, started by Robin Fullilove and roommate Cheryl Hales, appeared to impress Harpster who said that in light of the number of signatures, they (the housing office) would have to reconsider the situation.

Harpster said he would submit the petition to Donald Boulton, acting housing director, but told Fullilove not to leave the office thinking they would automatically eliminate the decision to increase occupancy.

Although they have had support from the Residence Hall Association and Student Government, Hales and Fullilove have taken on the fight against the housing office almost single-handedly, Fullilove said.

"People in Student Government thought what we were doing was great, but they were afraid of signing it (the petition), Fullilove said. "I guess they were afraid of getting in trouble."

Housing authorities have said the increased occupancy was not due to increased enrollment for next year, but admissions office spokesman A.R. Strickland said they were expecting to admit about 50 students more this year than the 3,200 admitted last year.

Hales and Fullilove attended a meeting with Boulton and Harpster that was called hurriedly by McIver and Kenan dorms after the announcement of the increased occupancy for next year.

"They're contradicting themselves by saying the plumbing and wiring will withstand the increased occupancy and then saying it will be checked soon," said Hales.

Boulton has said the increased occupancy would be experimental, but as Hales said, "They are not going to buy all of that furniture if it was just experimental for only one year."

Hales and Fullilove agreed that probably little will come of their petition, but said they at least wanted the housing office to know student opinion on their decision.

'Yack' and 'Cellar Door' editors picked

The UNC Media Board selected the editor and business manager for the 1982-1983 Yackety Yack and editor for the 1982-1983 Cellar Door Monday night.

Danny Kester, a junior actuarial science major, was chosen for Yackety Yack. He gave several ideas for improvements to the Yack, including having more informative copy with groups of pictures, listing members of group shots such as fraternities and focusing the yearbook's content on the University.

Kester has been on the Yack staff for three years, as assistant staff manager, business coordinator and business manager.

The business manager for the yearbook is Rodney Nicholson, a junior business major, sales manager for last year's Yack.

Lila Hanft was selected as editor for the Cellar Door. Hanft is a junior majoring in English and was poetry editor for last year's Cellar Door.

Hanft said she would like to encourage more applications from students to broaden the base for selection of quality material.

News in Brief

Reagan sends budget to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan formally sent Congress his 1983 spending plan Monday, challenging Democratic critics to substantiate charges that his is a budget for the rich. "It is not true," he insisted.

The $757.6-billion proposal signed by the president projects record deficits of $98.6 billion this year and $91.5 billion for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1. Reagan said he hadn't given up his now-distant goal of bringing the budget into balance, but this plan, more than his previous one, encountered bitter rhetoric from Democrats and open acknowledgment by Republican leaders that it would not get through Congress unscathed.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Reagan's chief Democratic antagonist, charged after a short courtesy briefing at the White House that the budget showed the president "has forgotten his roots and associated with that country-club style of people."

Williams' parents cited for contempt

ATLANTA (AP) — The judge in Wayne B. Williams' murder trial cited Williams' parents for contempt of court Monday for participating in a radio call-in program about the case.

Judge Clarence Cooper charged Homer and Faye Williams with violating his order barring potential witnesses from talking with members of the news media about the trial.

Meanwhile, a pathologist told the jury that the charges against Williams "just don't make any sense" because he could find no evidence of foul play.

Williams, a 23-year-old free-lance photographer and self-styled talent promoter, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks slain here in a 22-month string of deaths. There have been no arrests in the 26 other cases.

Iran kills guerrilla leaders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian security forces on Monday killed the acting commander of the Mujahed En Khalq — the major opposition force against the Tehran regime — in a raid on the group's hideout in the capital, Iranian news services said.

Killed along with Musa Khyabani were his wife and Ashraf Rabi'i, wife of the Mujahed En's exiled leader Massoud Rajavi, according to the news agency IRNA.

If the report by IRNA and Tehran radio is accurate, the killings would be the heaviest blow dealt by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's fundamentalist regime to the guerrilla group.
