

Week honoring Circle K highlights group's deeds

By DALE JENKINS
DTH Staff Writer

N.C. Gov. Jim Hunt has declared this week the 14th annual Circle K Week in North Carolina. Chapel Hill Mayor Joseph Nassif signed a proclamation Monday supporting the UNC chapter of the inter-national service organization in the week's events to recognize the club and its activities.

Sam Reep, president of the UNC club, said, "It (Circle K) offers a chance for leadership, service to the community and campus, plus a chance to meet other people who enjoy helping others."

The club's active membership has tripled this year, and Reep said he was pleased with the effect this growth has had on the group's overall outreach, he said.

"We've been able to do more projects than last year since we have a larger group and can, therefore, minimize schedule conflicts," he said.

The club has participated in such projects as the Great American Smokeout, trick-or-treating for UNICEF and the after-school program at the Lincoln Center. Members also sold balloons for the American Cancer Society and are volunteering as coaches for the Orange County Special Olympics and selling tickets for the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club Pancake Jamboree. Reep said he was pleased with the increase in projects the club has been able to help with this year.

An information table will be in the Carolina Union on Thursday, Friday and Monday with Circle K members there to answer questions about the club, Reep said. This is the first step in the membership drive for the spring semester.

Stan Campbell, faculty adviser for the club and associate director of Carolina Annual Giving, said he was pleased with his first year with the club.

"I guess the highlight would be working with Sam (Reep) to get the membership up and getting financial support from the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club," he said. "Also, the good feeling you get when you're out with people who care about people who are unfortunate and can't help themselves."

The UNC Circle K Club has also increased the awareness on the UNC campus that a collegiate Kiwanis Club exists, Campbell said. This is a positive step for the K-family, which consists of Kiwanis Clubs, Circle K Clubs, high school Key and Keywanette Clubs and junior high Builders' Clubs, he said.

Campbell said he was pleased with the focus of the club. "I think the distinctive factor is the service to the community and helping out with disabled children and the elderly," he said. "To me, that's what makes it exciting."

To cap off the observance of Circle K Week, a meeting for all prospective members is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in 209 Union. Anyone with questions should contact Sam Reep at 933-4650.

"It's been an incredible experience for me," Orr said. "We gave it a really good shot. When you run up against guys like Mike Vandenberg and Mark Canady, it's tough."

"Who knows what went wrong," he said. "We weren't winners tonight, but there's not a loser on my campaign."

Orr said he was pleased with the overall tone of the campaign. "It was super-positive the whole way."

Smith, who came in fourth, said he was shocked that he did not do as well as he had hoped. "I just thought I'd do a lot better than I did," Smith said. "I'm doing worse than I did last year."

Canady said that if there were a runoff, he would work harder. "I'm talking no classes for the next week," he said. "I've already missed two weeks."

"If there is one, you can bet it'll be closer (than tonight's election)," Canady said.

Vote counting began shortly after 8 p.m. Canady took a small lead with votes from the Law School ballot box. Vandenberg lost only one other box, Craig, as he built up a strong lead.

In the end, it was the South Campus residence halls, Hinton James, Morrison and Ehringhaus that made the difference. Vandenberg won all three, although his largest margin was 43 votes.

Canady said he had expected to do better on South Campus.

"The feeling was that I might have taken it (South Campus) for granted," Canady said. "I didn't do that. But I should have realized I should put my greatest effort where my greatest strength was. Mike was just stronger than I thought," he said.

After the vote counting machine was repaired, the crowd once again grew in size. Each of the candidates was surrounded by supporters and campaign officials.

As each vote total was announced and Vandenberg's lead widened, his supporters let out cheers and applauded.

Watching the vote totals at one point, Orr winced as another Vandenberg victory was announced.

"We're sagging," he said.

Before the South Campus votes were tallied, Vandenberg's percentage of the total hovered between 51 percent and 53 percent. In the end, though, enough votes were recorded to put the final outcome in doubt.

In other results, Perry Morrison and Scott Templeton won uncontested races for the presidencies of the Carolina Athletic Association and Residence Hall Association.

Scott Phillips and LuAnn Craft led the race for senior class president and vice president. Phillips and Craft received 738 of the 1,473 votes cast, unofficially. Mark Edwards and Chris Miller received 378 votes. A total of 357 votes were cast for write-in candidates.

During the board meeting, Jacobson said that write-in votes and official certification of the results would not be dealt with until sometime today.

News in Brief

Jobless funding added to budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans and Democrats swapped charges on the House floor Tuesday about who was to blame for the recession. But officials said almost everyone would vote for $2.3 billion in additional benefits and services for the unemployed.

President Ronald Reagan has asked for the money to prevent states from running out of money for unemployment benefits and to restore budget cuts he won last year in funds for employment service workers.

Leaders of both parties said they expected that the House would give final approval to the plan by early evening, along with another measure to increase spending on low-income energy assistance by $123 million.

January storms caused real damage

A massive storm spread snow and ice from the Texas Panhandle to Boston on Tuesday, dealing another staggering blow to the eastern United States, where property damage this winter is more than $343 million.

As the new storm moved in, the Insurance Information Institute in Kansas City, Mo., released figures estimating property damage from five January storms at a record $343.9 million. This figure, which does not count losses to businesses that were forced to close, is more than double the previous high of $163.5 million, reached in January 1979. The institute said most of the damage was east of the Continental Divide.

The worst storm of the month swept across 38 states between Jan. 8 and Jan. 14, causing $200 million in damage, primarily in the Midwest. Damage claims included collapsed roofs, flooded houses and traffic accidents.

Area survey shows price drop

Chapel Hill area gas prices are dropping, and drivers can expect the trend to continue until spring, Quentin Anderson, public relations director for the Carolina Motor Club, said recently.

Prices across the state dropped 4.5 cents per gallon during the last nine months. "That's about half as fast as they went up," he said.

"Gas prices are dropping because there is an oversupply of gas," said Don Ward of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association.

The oversupply is the result of a demand decrease brought on by unemployment and conservation, he said.

Imports have not slowed to meet demand because many importers are locked into contracts, Ward said. "Refineries have lowered their operating capacities, but are still turning out more than the market can bear."

In a Daily Tar Heel survey of area gas stations, self-service prices averaged 122.4 for regular gas, 129.8 for unleaded and 137.1 for premium. Full-service price averages were 135.7 for regular gas, 141.8 for unleaded and 146.3 for premium.

Both self-service and full service prices have dropped about 2.5 percent since December.

Brook said every case was different.

"If you're going to Chapel Hill and you're from Goldsboro, the election officials just want to know if you're planning on living there in Chapel Hill or just going to school," he said.

"Overall, in North Carolina, the questionnaire has been readily accepted," Brook said. "I'm confident that it's a questionnaire that has proved useful to most schools...it helps establish the facts for both parties—election officials and students."

Brook said he guessed everybody needed to make a complaint once in a while. "I guess since it's almost springtime, everyone needs something to do," he said.

Other than the time delays, Jacobson said the elections produced no major problems or complaints. Three polling sites ran out of ballots for about 10 minutes but the names were recorded of all students who came by during that time and they came back and had a chance to vote, he said.

Two candidates, and possibly a third, will have to pay fines for exceeding their spending limits, Jacobson said.

Presidential candidate Tim Smith will have to pay $60 for exceeding his $400 limit by $11.78, and Residence Hall Association presidential candidate, Scott Templeton must pay $24 for exceeding his $160 limit by $1.25. Both candidates have agreed to pay the fines, Jacobson said.
