

University-leased property at Kerr Lake gives students an alternative to studying

By ROSEMARY WAGNER
Staff Writer

The University has great news for those students who want to get away from the rigors of academia and university life. And it does not require much money or time.

But it does mean sun, fun and water. "We have federally-owned land at Kerr Lake that is leased from the United States Army Corps of Engineers," said Fred Schroeder, director of the department of Student Affairs. "We've had the land for 25 years," he said. "The University first got in in 1954. Soon there will be new brochures about the land at the (Carolina) Union desk."

The brochure describes the beautiful, 230-acre peninsula that the University leases on Kerr Lake. In the area, there are picnic tables, about 50 campsites, and a concrete launching ramp for anyone who wants to bring a boat to the lake. And it is all only an hour and a half drive from Chapel Hill.

"There is some sandy beach and the water warms up about the first part of May," Schroeder said. "Both sailing and motor-boating in the lake are popular."

The University rents out four canoes for only $5 a week-end. The grounds are ideal for those who will be here during the summer, and in the fall the place is really beautiful.

"There are three electric wells which have tested, potable water," he said. "It's a rustic area with privy-type facilities. But it's simply a nice, relaxing place to be. There are a few regulations, but as long as you are not stepping on somebody's toes, we don't get upset about anything."

The Chapel Hill Kerr Lake Recreation Association requires members to pay both a membership fee and a user fee. "In order to maintain the area, such as cutting the grass and taking care of garbage, we have to charge a fee on a self-sustaining basis," Schroeder said. "All the monies go to maintaining the area."

There are a number of different types of fees which are all discussed in the brochure. "We try to allow people to play just for the privileges they select," he said.

"Our intention is to make it open to students at a much less fee than faculty and staff pay." The current membership fee per year is $7.50 for each student.

"For students, the bottom financial line comes down to a membership fee for $7.50 and the user fee for $2.00 per night per adult," he said. That means a member can bring a couple of friends and stay one night and two days if each of the friends pays two dollars.

A special rate has also been worked out for large groups such as residence halls and fraternities. A "group-use" area reservation costs $15 a night plus one membership.

'There is some sandy beach and the water warms up about the first part of May. Both sailing and motor-boating at the lake are possible.'

Fred Schroeder Director of the department of student life.

Memberships to the association can be bought at the Student Union or at the Office of Student Affairs in 01 Steele Building. Anyone going to the lake must pay a user fee and obtain a key before they go because the grounds are behind a locked gate. The key may be picked up at the Office of Student Affairs during regular office hours or at the campus police during non-office hours.

For more information, Kerr Lake brochures are at the Union desk.

AP, 'N.Y. Times' take two

Winners of Pulitzers announced

The Associated Press

NEW YORK—The Associated Press and The New York Times each won two 1982 Pulitzer Prizes on Monday. The Kansas City Times and The Kansas City Star won the Pulitzer for general local reporting and a Times staffer was cited for national reporting.

The gold medal for public service went to the Detroit News for a national investigation that produced five dozen stories on "a pattern of deception and unresponsiveness" in the way the U.S. Navy reported shipboard deaths of sailors to their families.

In the arts and letters categories of the 66th annual Pulitzer awards, Sylvia Plath, a poet who became an idol of feminists some years after her suicide two decades ago, was awarded a Pulitzer for the posthumous volume, The Collected Poems.

Novelist John Updike won the fiction prize for his best-selling Rabbit in Rich, and Charles Fuller's A Soldier's Play received the drama prize.

The prizes, most of which carry $1,000 cash awards, were announced by Michael I. Sovern, president of Columbia University, which administers the competition.

AP's Saul Pett received the feature-writing prize for his encompassing portrait of American government, and Ron Edmonds of the AP was honored in spot news photography for his series of pictures of President Reagan as he was hit by a would-be assassin's bullet.

John Darnton's dispatches to The New York Times from Poland won the international reporting prize and the Times' Jack Rosenthal was cited for editorial writing.

The staffs of the two Kansas City newspapers won the general local reporting prize for their coverage of the Hyatt Hotel disaster and its causes. The two papers produced more than 340 stories and hundreds of pictures in tracing what went wrong with the skywalks of the hotel that collapsed and killed 114 dancers last July 17.

In addition to sharing that prize, the Times won a second when its Rick Atkinson was honored for national reporting. Atkinson was cited for what the Pulitzer Board called a memorable series on "America's chaotic management of its water resources" and other national stories combining "solid reporting and stylish writing."

poll

cellent or pretty good rating. In last fall's Carolina Poll, 62 percent had rated Reagan's performance as good or excellent.

"I think the Carolina Polls are terribly inaccurate," said Republican Chairman and state senator David Flaherty. "We've run out polls on the same thing and gotten completely different results."

But Phil Meyer, a journalism professor whose classes conducted the polls, said, "I think it's accurate within the normal limitation of surveys of this sort. In 95 out of 100 surveys of this sort, the sampling error would be within 4 percentage points."

In the poll, 12 percent of the respondents gave Reagan an "excellent" rating, 36 percent "pretty good," 31 percent "only fair," and 20 percent "poor."

In last fall's poll, 22 percent gave Reagan an "excellent" rating, 40 percent "pretty good," 23 percent "only fair," and 13 percent "poor."

"I think the Reagan administration has been as bad as anyone has possibly feared," said James Prethor, head of the political science department. "I think it is the reversed Robin Hood point of robbing the poor and giving to the rich—eliminating the social security funds and corporate income tax, and the tremendous increase in unemployment. It's a pretty bleak picture."

housing

But on a proportional basis, the housing department has had more problems with regular double-occupancy rooms than with tripled rooms in the past, Harpster said.

The main concern of the housing department is the student's economy, he said. "There will probably be a 9 to 15 percent rent increase for off-campus housing this year, compared to maybe a 3 percent increase in on-campus rent," he said. "We want to provide access to educational opportunity for as many people as we can."

As for tripling outside this permanent tripling plan, Harpster said, "We don't plan at the present time to do more tripling or quadrupling of rooms, but I believe it would be unwise to rule that option out at some later date."

With expectations of 3,200 freshmen next fall, there could be a limited amount of additional tripling of rooms on campus, Graham said.

Off-campus freshmen

The issue of freshmen living off-campus next year has been decided by changing the Freshman Residence Requirement to the Freshman Residence Guarantee, Harpster said.

All freshmen would be guaranteed on-campus housing if they wanted it, and the guarantee will come with a strong recommendation that they live on campus, he said.

"We believe students and their parents have a much better baseline for determining the students' level of maturity and ability to handle an apartment or some other off-campus housing situation."

A number of students mentioned the proposed cuts in financial aid as reasons for Reagan's drop in popularity.

Elgina Friday, a freshman from Gastonia, said, "As far as Chapel Hill is concerned, I think students here are more concerned with financial aid now, and I think he'll be even more unpopular if his proposed bills come through to cut funds, especially for minorities."

"I think he's overlooking the college students," said Kim Spearman, a freshman from Fayetteville. "We're the backbone of America's future."

Other indicated dissatisfaction with the president's foreign policies, especially the situation in El Salvador.

"I voted for him, but now I don't like him as much," said Greg Meeker, a junior from Short Hills, N.J. "One reason is the American advisors in El Salvador. And with the Polish crisis, he was pretty much the cause of the imposition of martial law. Reagan was getting too much into the affairs of Poland and it brought the Soviets to a breaking point. I still think he makes a good figurehead, which is what the president is supposed to be."

Louise Crosby, a Canadian citizen who is attending a program for religious studies for journalists at UNC, said, "I personally don't like his emphasis on involving the United States in El Salvador. I think more time and effort should be devoted to working for peace."

Glenn Miller, a junior from Claremont, said, "I think that a lot of the things that he's done are positive steps towards making the nation stronger. Lately he's gotten more belligerent in his foreign policy than I approve of. At least he's making an effort."

Some people said they were dissatisfied with Reagan because he was not living up to his promises.

"I don't ever feel that he addresses the issues," said Beth Rambo, a graduate student from Chapel Hill. "I always feel that he's giving double talk. He talks more about ideas than actions."

Steve Meis, a junior from Winston-Salem, said, "People are starting to figure out that the world isn't as simple as he makes it out to be."

Others said it was still too early to fairly evaluate the president's performance.

Kent Bandy, a senior from Chapel Hill, said, "We've got to support him still. He's doing a better job than Carter did because he's actually doing something and sticking to what he said. He's not been the most effective president, but with the situation we're in right now, I don't know what person or what president could do better."
