

Six All-Americans join lax team for shot at third national crown

It took a while for it to sink in, but the UNC lacrosse team did win its second consecutive national title, defending perennial lacrosse power Johns Hopkins 7-5 on May 29.

"We were in kind of a daze," UNC head coach Willie Scroggs, formerly of Johns Hopkins, said. "It was a great feeling of accomplishment. And there was one heck of a celebration in Charlottesville after the game."

The win raised North Carolina's record against Johns Hopkins to 3-1. After Hopkins routed UNC 16-9 in the 1976 NCAA quarterfinals in Baltimore, Md., the Tar Heels came back to win a 14-13 match in the 1981 NCAA title game and a 13-12 regular season game this year.

In this year's title match, held in Charlottesville, Va., the Heels turned the tables on the Blue Jays. Instead of exhibiting a flashy offensive style, characteristic of the fast-break Tar Heels, they defeated Johns Hopkins at their own game — a slow tempo, set-up game.

Some Blue Jays players said they weren't surprised to see the zone, but not quite so much. The strategy kept Hopkins off balance and jammed in the middle, making close shots virtually impossible.

"(The zone had) the magnitude to dictate what they do and it worked. It made them go to the outside," Scroggs said.

"For any championship team, college football, basketball, what you've got to have is an outstanding defense. We felt we had as good a defense as any lacrosse team."

The test this year will be if UNC can maintain its top defense after losing three defenders and four midfielders to graduation. Second team All-American Gary Burns, honorable mention Jamie Allen, and Roy Messinger leave from the defense, while John Basil, Doug Hall, Steve Stenerson and Kevin Griswold, named as an honorable mention All-American, leave the midfield.

Five first team All-Americans return to this year's squad — John Haus, Michael Burnette, Pete Voelkel, Jeff Homire and Tom Sears. In addition, senior Dave Wingate was named to the second team and Randy Cox was honorable mention. UNC's second-time NCAA champion returnees will be joined with eight freshman recruits this year, six of them high school All-Americans.

"I think it's an outstanding class," Scroggs said. "We get about eight to 10 recruits a year. It will be very difficult for these eight to crack the lineup."

Among those recruits on defense are Dan Andrews, Taylor Classen and Tom Haus. Haus, brother of senior defender John Haus, is an "outstanding prospect", Scroggs said. Other recruits include Jim Kester, John Murphy, Robby Hussell, Joe Seivold and Mike Tummillo.

Their first opportunity to play for the Carolina blue and white will be Sept. 25, when UNC plays Army in a 4:30 p.m. exhibition match on Fetzer Field following the Army-UNC football game.

UNC athletes busy over summer

UNC All-American Sue Walsh and freshman Polly Winde competed in the U.S. World Swimming Championships in Equador earlier in the summer. Walsh, who trained in Chapel Hill during the summer, finished second in the 400-meter medley relay and placed third in the 100-meter backstroke behind two East Germans. She also added a fifth place finish in the 200-meter medley backstroke.

Winde, who joins the nation's No. 3 women's swimming team from Baltimore, Md., was fifth in the 200-meter individual medley. She joined Walsh in the U.S. Swimming Championships August 18-21, along with assistant swimming coach Marie Santo, who served as head manager.

Junior Eric Ericson participated in both the World Game trials in Mission Viejo, Calif. and in the National Sports Festival in Indianapolis, Ind. He won the 100-meter backstroke and placed second in the 200-meter medley backstroke at the festival.

Head Coach Frank Comfort was as busy as his swimmers this summer, coaching the South team at the National Sports Festival in July. Comfort, beginning his sixth season with the Tar Heels this year, was also one of four coaches selected by the U.S. Olympic Committee to head the U.S. team in a dual meet against the Soviet Union in Knoxville, Tenn. Aug. 26-28. He was an assistant coach for the South team in 1979 when the festival was held in Colorado Springs, Colo.

After the UNC lacrosse team wrapped up its 1982 season, amassing a 26-game winning streak and a second consecutive NCAA championship, two team members took part in the World Lacrosse Games in Baltimore, Md. Playing against competition from Canada, Australia and English, UNC goalie Tom Sears was voted the most outstanding goalie in the games. Joining him on the U.S. team as a coach was fifth-year UNC assistant coach Don Zimmerman. Attackman Michael Burnette was named as an alternate.

Junior golfer John Inman continued his winning ways this summer with a victory in the Eastern Amateur in Portsmouth, Va. Former 1982 teammates David Whitfield, John Spelman, Billy Williford and Mike West also had excellent summers, head golf coach Devon Brouse said.

Spelman won the Southeastern Amateur, was fourth in the Porter Cup in Niagara Falls, N.Y. and made the final eight in the Western Amateur in Bar Harbour, Mich. Williford finished second in the Rice Planters Amateur and tied for third in the Eastern Amateur. West won both the N.C. State Amateur and the Carolinas Amateur. Whitfield won the Orange County Invitational.

UNC sophomore golfer Page Marsh won both the Carolina's golf tournament in Charlotte, N.C. and the Twin-State Tournament in Greenville, N.C. Incoming freshman Cathy Johnston won the Future Legends, a prestigious tournament in Austin, Texas. Senior Cathy Reynolds also played in Austin this summer, qualifying for the Women's Western golf tournament.

The ACC champion North Carolina baseball team went to the NCAA South Region Baseball Tournament in Columbia, S.C., but lost to the Citadel 9-4 on May 27 and then dropped a 1-0 decision to East Carolina the following day. Tournament favorite South Carolina advanced to the College World series after capturing the regional title.

Former North Carolina baseball players fared well this season in professional ball. Eddie Waynick, who played for the 1981 squad, had hit 12 home runs for the Winston-Salem Red Sox as a designated hitter with 2½ weeks left in the regular season.

Dave Droschak, who was second in the ACC with 49 strikeouts last year, signed as a free agent with the St. Louis Cardinals single-A team in Springfield, Ill., after the June draft. Through 28 innings, he had a 1-1 record with a 1.20 earned run average.

Shortstop Chris Pittaro was drafted by the Detroit Tigers and has been playing regularly for their Macon, Ga., farm team, batting .265.

Worthy joins another national champ

Power forward James Worthy of the Tar Heels switches from one championship team to another come September.

In March, Worthy led the Tar Heels to the NCAA championship. He will attempt to help the Los Angeles Lakers defend their world championship after being named the No. 1 pick in the June National Basketball Association draft. Worthy has been attending summer classes in Chapel Hill and will report to training camp in mid-September.

The draft proved successful to the other Tar Heel seniors also. Point guard Jimmy Black was drafted in the third round by the ACC-laden New Jersey Nets. Over half of the Nets roster consists of former ACC players including Mike O'Koren and Phil Ford, who was obtained in a trade with Kansas City.

Chris Brust and Jeb Barlow were both drafted by the Denver Nuggets in the sixth and seventh rounds, respectively.

Some of the returning Tar Heels participated in summer action. Sophomore Buzz Peterson and freshman Curtis Hunter participated in the U.S. Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival in Indianapolis. Peterson and Hunter played for the South squad in the four-team basketball tournament.

Sophomore Michael Jordan played with a U.S. all-star squad on an international tour. The team played in Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

Several other players were in Chapel Hill over the summer attending summer classes.
