Third PLO group leaves Beirut despite delays

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Cheered on by their leaders and exhorted to conduct "merciless underground war" against Israel, some of the PLO's most radical guerrillas sailed from the port of Beirut Monday on a ship bound for South Yemen.

Both sides of the divided capital erupted into volleys of victorious gunfire as Moslem west Beirut saluted the third group of departing guerrillas, and residents of the Christian eastern sector celebrated the election of Bashir Gemayel, the rightist leader of Lebanon's biggest Christian militia, as president of Lebanon.

The trucks bearing the guerrillas to the port were delayed about an hour when a car bomb exploded a mile away and Palestine Liberation Organization security officers checked the convoy route for more explosives. No one was hurt in the blast.

The loading of the fighters onto the ship also was delayed while some turned over rocket-propelled grenade launchers, not covered by the U.S.-negotiated agreement that allows each departing guerrilla one pistol, rifle or machine gun.

Meanwhile, the Tel Aviv military command said its soldiers returned bazooka fire from PLO forces in east Lebanon Sunday night without taking any casualties. It also said those troops were shelled but did not know if the artillery fire came from PLO or Syrian positions in the area.

Israeli spokesmen in east Beirut and Israel's state-run radio said 620 PLO guerrillas were on the Cypriot passenger ship Alkyon, which sailed at 4:30 p.m., 10:30 a.m. EDT, for Aden, capital of Marxist-ruled South Yemen at the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula. But the PLO and Lebanon's state radio said 1,000 were aboard.

On Saturday and Sunday, nearly 1,500 guerrillas left west Beirut, where an estimated 7,000 PLO fighters had been trapped by Israeli troops who invaded Lebanon June 6. Another 1,000 guerrillas are slated for sea evacuation to North Yemen on Tuesday.

In Limassol, Cyprus, hundreds of Palestinians shouting for revenge against Israel jammed the rails of the Cypriot ferry Sol Phryne as it steamed off to Tunisia after unloading 21 jeeps that had delayed the ship's departure from Beirut Sunday.

Israel blockaded the Beirut port for six hours, saying the jeeps violated the evacuation agreement. But the ship was allowed to leave with 1,095 guerrillas after the United States said the jeeps would be unloaded in Cyprus, and the blockade was the only major hitch so far in the guerrillas' departure.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes said, "it is remarkable that it is proceeding as well as it is, given the conditions on the ground, the complexity of the operation and the number of parties involved."

He said the United States was concerned about the situation in eastern Lebanon, which he called "very volatile."

Israel calls the scheduled 14-day operation an "expulsion" and Prime Minister Menachem Begin has contended it will give his country a long period of peace.

The PLO repeatedly has claimed a political victory in Israel's failure to storm west Beirut during the three-month siege, and residents of the Moslem sector on Monday gave the departing guerrillas the same hero's sendoff accorded their comrades during the weekend.

As the convoy wound through the shell-shattered streets, crowds of women chanted in ululating Arabic and children held their hands aloft in "V" victory signs. The volleys of machine-gun fire were so steady they sounded like a crowd stamping wooden stadium bleachers.

The guerrillas — most from George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and Nayef Hawatme's pro-Moscow Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, two of the most radical factions of the PLO — had assembled in the west Beirut sports stadium and both Habash and Hawatme were on hand.

The men hugged and kissed their leaders, chanting "With blood we defend you, Palestine," and brandishing unloaded submachine guns with photographs of PLO chief Yasser Arafat on the barrels.

In an interview on the PLO's Voice of Palestine radio, Salah Khalaf, the PLO security chief code-named Abu Iyad, vowed a "merciless underground war" against Israel.

Khalaf, reputed mastermind of the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, declared, "our underground fighters will penetrate Israel from all directions. The world will witness in the coming days that kind of action that will make Menachem Begin's hair stand straight up."

For the first time since the guerrillas began leaving, victorious gunfire also echoed through Christian east Beirut to celebrate the election of the 34-year-old Gemayel as Lebanon's seventh president in 39 years of independence from France. He succeeds President Elias Sarkis, whose term expires Sept. 23.

Gemayel, whose 8,000 Christian militiamen fought a PLO-leftist alliance in the 1975-76 civil war, was elected on the second ballot by a vote of 57-0 with five abstentions. There are 92 Parliament members, 51 of them Christians, and Gemayel's supporters had trouble beating a Moslem boycott to rally the required quorum of 62. Lebanon 2

In a broadcast on the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio, Gemayel called for "a new era of peace, security and tranquility."

But an angry newscaster on the leftist Moslem Voice of Arab Lebanon radio station cried, "a day of shame. A military governor has just been appointed for Lebanon at Israel's orders."

The Moslem and leftist leaders who opposed Gemayel, the only declared candidate, say they fear his militia will attack the Moslems, many of whom had considered the PLO protection against their Christian enemies.

Israeli officials and reporters watched the loading of the Alkyon from an apartment building in east Beirut, as did Republican Rep. Ramond McGrath and Democratic Reps. James H. Shuer and Mario Biaggi, all of New York.

"Perhaps Lebanon has an opportunity now to become a sovereign state," McGrath said.

The departure of the guerrillas so far has been supervised by about 300 French troops, who will be joined this week by 500 more French soldiers, along with 800 U.S. Marines and 500 Italians.

BRIEFLY

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — To the joy of Christians and the despair of Moslems, 34-year-old Christian militia commander Bashir Gemayel was elected Monday as president of war-torn Lebanon.

"I hope that we can say today the war has come to an end and a new era of peace, security and tranquility has begun," declared Gemayel over his Phalange Party's Voice of Lebanon radio.

As soon as news of Gemayel's parliamentary election was broadcast, Christian-controlled east Beirut erupted in celebration, with people firing submachine guns in the air, motorists honking their car horns and ambulances and fire engines sounding their sirens.

ROME — Premier Giovanni Spadolini formed Italy's 42nd postwar government Monday with the same parties and ministers of the previous one. It includes the Socialists, who brought down the last government because of a tax bill, but relented when Spadolini promised to introduce the measure again.

Spadolini's action ended one of the 36-year-old republic's shortest government crises — 17 days compared to an average of nearly a month — and marked the first time the makeup of the Cabinet was unchanged.

Spadolini, of the small Republican Party, presented the list of 28 ministers from five parties to President Sandro Pertini. It will be sent to Parliament on Monday for the obligatory vote of confidence, and is expected to win easily.

MBABANE, Swaziland — Royal elders laid King Sobhuza II — "The Lion of Swaziland" — to rest in a secret cave Monday as 200 tribal chiefs and other elders met to discuss a successor to the world's oldest and longest-reigning monarch.

Sobhuza, who succeeded to the throne in 1921, died early Sunday at the age of 83. He left more than 100 widows and at least 600 children.

He also left the tiny mountain kingdom — about the size of Wales, with a population of 600,000 — in a quandary over the future ruler and his role in the explosive politics of southern Africa.

PARIS — The government ordered the French subsidiary of an American firm Monday to defy President Reagan's embargo and begin scheduled deliveries this week of U.S.-licensed equipment for the Soviet pipeline that will carry natural gas from Siberia to Western Europe.

Last December, Reagan prohibited U.S. firms from supplying equipment for the gas line in retaliation for Soviet support of the martial-law crackdown in Poland. In June, he ignored the wishes of America's European allies and extended the embargo to include foreign companies manufacturing equipment or technology under U.S. license.

American officials also argue that the Soviet military budget will benefit from the $10 billion a year Moscow is expected to earn from gas delivered through the pipeline.

RALEIGH — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says he did what was best for the state's tobacco industry when he voted for, and then against, a tax increase doubling federal cigarette taxes.

Helms and Sen. John East, R-N.C., first voted for the $100 billion Reagan administration-backed tax bill before reversing course when the measure came up for a final vote. The measure raises federal cigarette taxes by eight cents per pack.

Helms first voted for the bill as "the lesser of two evils," said Helms' administrative aide Clint Fuller. Otherwise, the bill would have failed in the Senate and Helms thought tobacco's chances would have been even worse in a subsequent tax bill, Fuller said, adding that the strategy "ultimately did not work out."

WASHINGTON — Fifty-one senators — a majority — have signed on as co-sponsors of legislation to ban oil and natural gas drilling in millions of acres of wilderness preserves, the principal sponsor of the bill said Monday.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who introduced the bill, said the decision by 51 of the 100 senators to join him demonstrates the lack of public support for Interior Secretary James G. Watt's wilderness policies.

The bill is identical to one passed 340-58 by the House on Aug. 12. It would affect about 34 million acres of federally designated wilderness areas and tracts under study for wilderness protection, including several areas in western North Carolina.

The bill would immediately remove the land from mineral leasing. The president could seek to reopen areas for drilling, but only with a declaration of overriding national need and with the consent of Congress.

WINDSOR — Trial for state Rep. Ronald Taylor, D-Bladen, on charges of conspiring to burn warehouses belonging to state Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington has been continued until Aug. 30, court officials said Monday.

Taylor, 29, earlier pleaded innocent to charges that he solicited and conspired with two Bladen County men to burn the warehouses on April 23.

Taylor, who won nomination for a fourth legislative term in the June 29 Democratic primary, also faces federal charges in connection with the Federal Bureau of Investigation's probe into political corruption in Columbus County.

Protesting foreign propaganda

Polish martial law authorities attack media

The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Outraged by recent protests and apparently fearing more, Poland's martial-law authorities said Monday they had demanded a halt to Western radio "slander" and warned demonstrators to scrap any new action.

The Foreign Ministry summoned diplomatic representatives from the United States, Britain, France and West Germany to protest "propaganda subversion against Poland," the state-run news agency PAP reported.

U.S. Embassy officials said the deputy chief of mission was called in last Friday, and British sources said their charge d'affaires was summoned. Officials of the French and West German embassies could not be reached for comment.

The state-run media has grown increasingly harsh in attacks on foreign radio broadcasts heard here in Polish, apparently since some have described police repression of anti-government protests to commemorate the two-year anniversary of the independent Solidarity union. The union was suspended when the Communist government decreed martial law Dec. 13 and crushed 16 months of labor unrest.

In May, the government expelled two U.S. Embassy attaches it accused of "undermining the stability of the state." The two, science attache John W. Zerolis and cultural affairs officer James D. Howard, were accused in connection with their meeting with Polish scientist Ryszard Herczynski. The U.S. State Department said Herczynski gave them copies of proposals for a scientific grant and three bulletins issued by Solidarity but Polish officials said the materials "hit at the interest of Poland."

The new diplomatic protests appeared to underscore that concern is growing among Polish officials with the approach of Aug. 31, the date underground Solidarity leaders have called for nationwide protests. The date marks the anniversary of the independent labor movement formed during Baltic shipyard strikes in August 1980.

PAP quoted the Foreign Ministry as claiming Western shortwave stations such as Radio Free Europe, Radio France International, the British Broadcasting Corp.

and the Voice of America with "slandering the Polish state authorities, backing activity of illegal groups and broadcasting untrue news and commentaries."

"The Polish Foreign Ministry demanded the stopping of this kind of activity and reserved for itself the right to adopt appropriate measures," PAP said. Such steps were not specified but the agency said they might include protests filed with "the appropriate international organizations."

Two key Polish newspapers on Monday carried harshly worded, front-page commentaries warning that violations of martial law would meet "decisive, firm opposition."

Poles were warned not to participate in any new protests, suggesting to some observers that authorities want to isolate so-called "extremist" underground Solidarity leaders and feel confident they can do this.

"These are not mass events, either in scope or range," the Communist Party daily Trybuna Ludu said of demonstrations over the past 10 days. "Nevertheless, they are very perilous, bringing with them the danger of unrestrained, uncontrolled reactions."

Zolnierz Wolnosci or Soldier of Freedom, the voice of the army's political board, said those who would "sow unrest... should be fully aware that any attempt at undermining state authorities must meet with decisive reactions."

In dispersing the most recent protests, police have brandished truncheons and threatened to spray water hoses, without actually using the weapons. But in what appeared to suggest tougher action will be taken, Trybuna Ludu said:

"Restraint and distrust will not suffice in the face of opposition. They must be firmly counteracted."

In a separate dispatch, PAP reported three leaders of the suspended Independent Students' Union turned themselves in to police in Warsaw and were released after questioning. The three were among several union and student activists who have reportedly surrendered in the past month.

The agency said Jerzy Boruc, Ryszard Marszalek and Pawel Rosciszewski, founders and leaders of the student union at the farming academy here, had been in hiding since Dec. 13.
