House overrides president's veto

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Democratic-controlled House dealt a traveling President Ronald Reagan his first major reversal on an economic issue Thursday, voting 301-117 to override his veto of a $14.2-billion money bill he called a "budget-buster."

The margin was 22 votes more than the two-thirds needed to overturn the veto. That sent the bill to the Republican-dominated Senate, where a similar two-thirds vote is needed to enact the bill over Reagan's objections.

GOP Leader Howard H. Baker, Jr. of Tennessee said the Senate vote would be held Friday, and he viewed the outcome as "uncertain." Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is already on record against the veto.

It was only the second time in nearly two years the House has voted to overturn one of Reagan's vetoes, and the first such action on a major spending bill. This vote came as the president was flying from Topeka, Kan., to Utah to on the first trip in his fall political offensive.

Just moments before the tally, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., appealed to Republicans who originally supported the bill to "stay with your conscience."

"Let's get America moving again. And let's not leave these elderly, the handicapped and the disadvantaged behind," said O'Neill, who took the unusual step of casting a vote. As speaker, O'Neill normally votes only in event of a tie.

In all, the measure was about $1.9 billion below the amount originally requested by the president, even though he rejected it as too costly.

But by administration figures, it contained $918 million more in domestic spending than the president wanted for programs such as community service jobs for senior citizens, mass transit, highways, student financial assistance and aid to education. It also cut $2.1 billion from Reagan's defense request, although Congress indicated it would approve that money next year.

Since the bill was actually under Reagan's overall request, House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said the president lost support because lawmakers did not believe it was a budget-buster.

"The president's position is not very defensible when every member gets up and says we're a billion and a half (dollars) under the budget," Michel said.

He added the House was telling Reagan: "We've got a little bit different priorities, Mr. President."

But GOP Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi said the vote didn't mean Reagan has lost his ability to sustain vetoes in the future. "On other appropriations bills, if they're over the budget, we'll have more than enough votes to sustain the veto." Rather than shying away from other vetoes, "I think he ought to bow up."

But Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said that after the setback "he (Reagan) may not be so prone to veto everything."

Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the top GOP member of the House Appropriations Committee, supported the override, and laid the blame for the situation at the doorstep of budget director David A. Stockman.

"He (Stockman) certainly stubbed his toe on this one... I'd say it was as bad as his interview in the Atlantic Monthly. I think he told the president, 'You're riding high. You're going to win this one,'" Conte said.

Earlier, Reagan had fought to make the veto stick by offering a last-minute concession to keep alive a politically popular program providing jobs for 54,000 senior citizens.

"The president called me earlier... and reaffirmed his support for that program," Michel declared as he appealed for votes to sustain the veto. He said the funds could be provided in a later bill.

The GOP leader terms the vote not merely a test of the president's decision, but a test of "sustaining the momentum of that monumental task we set out to accomplish 20 months ago" — bringing federal spending under control.

Michel made his disclosure about the telephone call after his office released a letter from Budget Director David Stockman stressing that the veto would have "absolutely no effect" on the program.

And Conte, a leader in the fight to override the veto, conceded the move would boost the president's chances significantly when the roll was called.

Even so, Conte read a letter from White House aide Kenneth Duberstein, written in July, that opposed future public service jobs for the elderly.

WASHINGTON — Despite a new burst of support from President Ronald Reagan, Senate conservatives fell 19 votes short on Thursday in their first attempt to quell a filibuster against anti-abortion legislation.

But the battle was far from over, and further moves to stem the liberal talkathon were scheduled for early next week.

In Thursday's test, 47 members voted against cloture, the parliamentary term for limiting debate to 100 hours, with only 41 favoring it. Under Senate rules, 60 votes are needed to curb a filibuster.

Both sides had predicted that initial outcome, in part because several senators have yet to return from a congressional Labor Day recess.

Liberals have lined up against the anti-abortion package, sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., saying it is a direct attack on the Supreme Court's ability to interpret the Constitution.

One provision of the bill is a congressional finding that the Supreme Court was mistaken in 1973 when it legalized most abortions.

"This amendment is an attempt to reverse the Supreme Court by statute rather than constitutional amendment," said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., leader of the opposition.

The Helms proposal would also permanently ban direct or indirect federal payments for abortions.

Thursday and sent its warplanes against Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon for the second straight day, reporting four more batteries demolished.

Lebanese radio said Israeli jets also struck Syrian armor positions in Lebanon, heightening the threat of a showdown between the tens of thousands of Israeli and Syrian troops remaining in that war-battered land.

Sources at the Arab summit conference in Fez, Morocco, said the Arab leaders approved Syrian President Hafez Assad's request to cancel the 6-year-old Arab League mandate for his Syrian "peace-keeping force" in Lebanon, enabling him to withdraw the troops. But Israel questioned Assad's sincerity.

"I think this Syrian readiness to leave Lebanon is lip service and there is no reality in it," Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Raphael Pytan told Israeli army radio.

BERN, Switzerland — Vowing never to yield to blackmail, the Swiss government unleashed anti-terrorist police on the Polish Embassy Thursday, rescued five hostages and arrested four gunmen in a bloodless coup that lasted only 12 minutes.

About 20 policemen wearing gas masks and bullet-proof vests stormed the front door with a remote-controlled stun bomb which they hid in a food container to fool the gunmen, who seized the embassy and 13 hostages Monday.
