Begin may order inquiry of Beirut massacre

The Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Prime Minister Menachem Begin may have to concede to increasing pressure from his Cabinet and order a full-scale investigation of Israel's role in the Beirut massacre of Palestinian refugees, Israel radio reported Sunday.

Justice Minister Moshe Nissim was quoted in the daily newspaper Maariv as saying a formal judicial inquiry "now seems inevitable."

The state radio said five of Begin's 20 Cabinet ministers have rejected his proposal for an informal investigation by a judge who would not have subpoena power. Two of the dissenters represent the National Religious Party, which holds a crucial six votes in Begin's 64-56 majority in Parliament.

Interior Minister Yosef Burg told Israel radio he had reversed his previous support for a limited inquiry because Supreme Court President Yitzhak Kahan refused to head the limited investigation.

His NRP colleague, Education Minister Ze'evulun Hammer, has said he would resign in protest unless a full and formal investigation was made.

Israel radio said Burg and Hammer were joined in their demand for an investigative committee with subpoena powers by Industry Minister Gideon Patt, Minister Without Portfolio Mordechai Ben-Porat and Aharon Uzan, who holds the portfolios of Labor, Welfare and Immigration.

On Saturday 400,000 Israelis attended the largest anti-government demonstration in Israel's 34-year history to protest Begin's refusal to investigate the massacre.

Speakers at the rally also called for full troop withdrawal from Beirut, the resignations of Begin and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

On Sunday the military command announced Israeli troops will withdraw next Wednesday from Moslem west Beirut and the international airport south of the Lebanese capital.

The Foreign Ministry said the pullback from Christian East Beirut would take a bit longer.

It was the first time Israel had set a date for a pullout from the Moslem sector of Beirut.

The Reagan administration has been demanding an Israel troop withdrawal since the massacre by Lebanese Christian militiamen 10 days ago.

An estimated 800 U.S. Marines had been scheduled to land in Beirut Sunday to join French and Italian peace-keeping troops in an effort to help the Lebanese government assert its authority. But U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib told Defense Minister Ariel Sharon on Saturday that the Marines would not go ashore until Israel withdrew its forces from all of Beirut.

The White House issued a statement later saying, "We expect the U.S. contingent to land soon after the Israelis complete their withdrawal following the intervening Yom Kippur holiday."

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, contending that Soviet "mischief-making" is continuing in Poland, Afghanistan and elsewhere, has all but written off a summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in the near future.

Earlier this year, U.S. and Soviet leaders expressed their interest in a summit. President Reagan invited Brezhnev to meet with him in New York in June, and the Soviet leader responded with a call for a summit in Europe in October.

But now, U.S. officials said, talk of a summit within the administration has all but vanished. The precondition set by the White House in May — improvement in Soviet behavior — has simply not developed, in the U.S. view, said the officials, who asked not to be identified.

Besides the continuing coolness between Washington and Moscow, there is serious doubt that the 75-year-old Soviet leader is well enough to meet with Reagan.

The decline in summit prospects also reflects failure of the administration to influence Soviet foreign policy, the officials said. For example, U.S. sanctions against companies supplying parts for the Soviet natural gas pipeline have not reversed the repression in Poland but have caused friction between the Reagan administration and its European allies.

BONN, West Germany — Voters in the state of Hesse gave strong support Sunday to the Social Democratic Party in an election seen as a test for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, whose coalition government collapsed nine days ago.

Schmidt's Social Democrats blocked the conservative Christian Democratic Party of a predicted absolute majority. The liberal Free Democrats, who quit Schmidt's coalition Sept. 17, were left out of the state Parliament for the first time since 1970.

Despite the strong showing for Schmidt's party — some 10 percentage points higher than predicted in opinion polls — Christian Democrat leader Helmut Kohl and Free Democrat Party chief Hans-Dietrich Genscher said they would meet Monday to continue their effort to form a new national coalition.

Franz-Josef Strauss, head of the Bavarian Christian Social Union that is crucial to the plan to unseat Schmidt through a vote Friday in the federal Parliament, said his party leaders also would meet Monday to review the Hesse results.

AMMAN, Jordan — King Hussein discussed the Lebanon crisis with Philip C. Habib for two hours Sunday after the U.S. special envoy arrived from Tel Aviv, Jordanian officials said.

They gave no details of Habib's meeting with the Jordanian monarch, who has praised President Reagan's plan for a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement as "very courageous."

The plan, announced Sept. 1, calls among other things for turning the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip into a Palestinian confederation with Jordan. About 1.3 million Palestinians live in the territories Israel captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

A senior State Department official in Washington said Saturday that Hussein's support was vital to the plan, which Israel opposes on grounds it could lead to creation of a hostile independent Palestinian state on its borders.

fire

Most of the second and third floors were burned, and the first floor suffered water and smoke damage, he said. "I would say it took an almost complete rebuilding of the fraternity house," Shaw said. "The sleeping areas practically had to be rebuilt, and the roof was completely burned."

Reconstruction of the house took about four months, according to Grace Franklin, the cook at Pi Kappa Phi for the past 25 years.

"I left that night and didn't come back the next morning because they called me that night and told me the house burned down," Franklin said.

It took 30 firemen to put out the Pi Lambda Phi fire, which burned most of the first and second floors of the house.

Robertson said open stairways were usually the main reason fires spread from lower to upper floors because they cause drafts that were dangerous in a fire.

In addition to the Pi Kappa Phi and the Pi Lambda Phi fires, the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Nu and Zeta Psi fraternity houses have all suffered serious fires in the past 15 years.

The DKE fire in 1971 caused an estimated $200,000 damage and seriously injured two fraternity brothers. Both the DKE and the Sigma Nu fires destroyed the fraternity houses. Robertson said the Zeta Psi fraternity house has had two serious kitchen fires in the last eight to 10 years.

All of the fires in which a fraternity house was destroyed had undetermined causes. Robertson said it was hard to tell the cause of a fire when the house had been destroyed. In most of the cases, both fire officials and fraternity residents agreed that the fire was caused either by faulty wiring or by a burning candle, cigarette or match.

While most sororities have house mothers who take care of fire safety in the houses, most fraternities leave fire safety up to the brothers themselves.

Lambda Chi Alpha president Mike McFalls said one brother in his house is assigned to be fire marshal for the fraternity. This person is usually a volunteer fireman in his hometown, McFalls said. Also, brothers are kept informed of available fire exits in the house, he said.

"The main thing is that we pass our fire inspection every month," McFalls said. He added, "I think in some ways the fire department is too picky."

McFalls said the fire department made the fraternity keep locks off doors that connect rooms with fire escapes. "I'd say we've had one robbery we can attribute to that (no locks on rooms with fire escapes) within the last year," he said. He added that it was difficult to keep robberies down in that situation.

"Otherwise, the fire department is very courteous and fairly helpful," he said. "So far we haven't had any fires."

Mike Hoozier, Delta Upsilon president, said his fraternity organized work parties to keep the house clean and free of fire hazards. He said there were smoke alarms in each hallway, one fire extinguisher on each hall and four fire escapes.

Hoozier said the only problem they have had was a dead battery in a smoke alarm.

Bonnie Fass, Panhellenic Council president, agreed. "It's really not one of our responsibilities to enforce houses," she said. The Panhellenic Council did not have any regulations concerning fire hazards. "It's an individual sorority thing," she said.

A member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, Joy Patterson, said her house had smoke detectors in every room, fire extinguishers on every floor and two fire escapes. She said the Tri-Sig house had never had a fire, to her knowledge. "They (the fire department) are picky, but that's good," she said.

For the record

In the story titled "Weekend Men" calendar elicits controversy," (Friday, Sept. 24), The Daily Tar Heel incorrectly reported that 30 men applied to be in the calendar, and that the names were drawn from a hat. In fact, 50 men applied, and the applicants were selected by a committee. The DTH also incorrectly attributed the last quote to Karen Humphries instead of Arline Rocky. The DTH regrets these errors.
