

group

One Carrboro resident in the group, who asked to remain anonymous, said one of the positive aspects of the group was the fact that there is no time restriction, as there is for example, when one visits a therapist. "With a therapist you get 50 minutes and that's it," she said. When one is working with the court counselors, "you feel like all these other people need them too, and you just can't take up all their time."
"The group allows you the time," she said. "You can really get out your feelings. Once you get it all out, you can deal with it a lot better."
"We've formed some common bonds," she said. "There's always someone available that you can really confide in — they've been through it."
She said she comes out of the meetings feeling energized. "I do get very excited about it," she said. "I didn't know what to expect the first time. After the first meeting, I knew I wanted to go back."
"I think one of the main objectives for the group was to find methods of coping," she said. "We've talked a lot about taking care of ourselves. I think that's the direction we need to go in. (The parents need to learn to) enjoy some parts of life even though we're in this stage where we have to live through some tough problems."

"They kind of lose their perspective on life and what's going on," Lloyd said. "Parents are people, too. They forget that they have needs and wants and that they do have a right to these things. No one's life should be totally immersed in another person's life. You just have to realize at some time that they (the children) may change and they may not."
The Carrboro resident said she realized that her children would make their own choices as to the paths their lives will take. Because she realizes this is the child's decision, if the child makes the wrong choice, "it won't ruin my life."
"Now I set realistic goals," she said. "I'm not thinking that this is just a phase that may be over tomorrow. I'll just know that I gave it my best shot and that's all that one can do — the best that one can."
The next meeting of the Parents on Trial Group will take place Monday, Sept. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation.

soldier, he said. He said he was always given the order not to shoot any civilians but only terrorists when the unit attacked any villages or camps. "But when the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) put its headquarters in west Beirut for civilian protection," he said, "Israel had no other choice but to bomb Beirut."
Mike Harrell, a member of the Emergency Committee on Lebanon of Chapel Hill, proposed the building of a national mass movement to force the U.S. government to halt aid to Israel. "We must recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people in self-determination," he said.

Harrell suggested four points that the committee had developed toward this goal:

- U.S. and Israel withdrawal from Lebanon.
- No U.S. military aid to Israel or any other Middle East country.
- No U.S. troops in Middle East.
- Self-determination for the Palestinian people.

IF YOU WANT TO KNOW WHERE IT'S AT, JUST ASK ME!

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

SO HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE AERO-SPACE INDUSTRY, YOUNG MAN?

WELL, SIR, I KNOW IT'S THE FUTURE...

IF WE'VE LEARNED ANYTHING FROM RAGING MONETARISM, IT'S THAT THE BALLOONING HIGH-TECH DOWNTURN WILL INTERFACE WITH THE FALLING YEN AND OTHER BITTER, PROXY ROLLERS...

TAX CREDITS ASIDE, IT'S THE AMORTIZING OF THESE SLEIGHSH LIENS THAT FUELS SKIDDING INFLATION AND BURGEONING COST-EFFECTIVENESS. EVEN WITH A SKYROCKETING DOWNTURN, THE AEROSPACE INDEX COULD SURGE.

IN OTHER WORDS, YOU KNOW NOTHING.

WELL, I HAVEN'T HAD ANY FORMAL TRAINING, IF THAT'S WHAT YOU MEAN.
