Protesters demand hiring of blacks

By ROSEMARY OSBORN Staff Writer

The voices of protesters rang out on the UNC campus Wednesday as marchers demanded that the University hire more black faculty members.

About 40 students marched from the Pit to South Building where a short rally was held to protest the small percentage of faculty positions held by blacks.

While 8.8 percent of the students at UNC are black, only 2.7 percent of the faculty are black. This represents a decline in employment because the University had a 3.0 percent black faculty in 1980.

UNC senior William E. "Chuck" Hennessee, an organizer of the rally, said Tuesday that University administrators are using invalid excuses for not hiring more blacks. "University officials say there aren't Ph.D. candidates out there and they say that the salary freeze is stopping them," Hennessee said. "They also say the Southern stereotype is a problem."

Hennessee said those excuses were unacceptable. "If they were offering the right amount of money, any black Ph.D. would jump at the chance to come here," Hennessee said. "As far as the governor's salary freeze goes, that's no excuse because that doesn't go into effect until next year."

According to Hennessee, black students need black teachers for role models and advisers. "We don't have any black advisers in the general college," Hennessee said. "Every black student looks at things from a black perspective, and they need to see black faces."

Chancellor Christopher C. Fordham told WXYC reporters Tuesday that University administrators had been making their best effort to increase the number of black faculty members. "I made a long talk at the last faculty council meeting and had referred to it at both the September and October meetings urging every faculty member to assist in this process," Fordham said.

"I cited increasing the number of black students as the basic justification for the compelling need for increasing diversification and adding additional black faculty members," Fordham said, He said that department deans are being encouraged to hire more black faculty members.

Gillian Cell, UNC affirmative action officer, said Wednesday that the small number of black faculty members was not representative of the effort expended in the recruitment of black faculty members. "Failure to increase numbers doesn't mean that no effort was made," Cell said.

Cell said part of the problem comes from the fact that hiring is a seasonal activity.

Hennessee said Wednesday that the marches would continue until the University showed an improvement in the number of black faculty members. Hennessee said the marchers also want an increase in the number of women holding faculty positions.

Hennessee said he agreed with the policies of Fordham, but he said the chancellor needed to put more pressure on faculty department heads and Cell.

WASHINGTON - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Wednesday he would not seek or accept the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination even though he believed it was his to claim. With his children alongside, he cited overriding obligations to them for the decision to dismantle a budding campaign.

"I don't think there's any mystery I would like to be president," he said. "Were the decision to be made solely on political grounds, I would have made a different announcement today."

The withdrawal of the Massachusetts senator came 451 days before the first presidential primary, in March 1984.

MEXICO CITY - Vowing not to "allow our homeland to crumble through our fingers," Miguel de la Madrid became president of Mexico on Wednesday and announced a 10-point program to combat a deepening recession and widespread official corruption. De la Madrid, a 47-year-old economist, took the ceremonial red, white and green sash of office from outgoing President Jose Lopez Portillo during a ceremony at the new House of Representatives.

The program calls for sharp government spending cuts, job guarantees and continuation of public works already under way. It also includes tax increases, food programs, new standards in public housing, keeping the banks under the national control imposed by his predecessor, adjusting exchange control mechanisms to market conditions, restructuring the federal administration and promoting a mixed economy.

MADRID, Spain - Spain's first Socialist-majority Parliament elected former labor lawyer Felipe Gonzalez to a four-year term as premier early today.

The Socialist Party leader won 207 votes in the 350-seat lower house of Parliament - 31 more than the simple majority necessary to designate a new head of government.

King Juan Carlos was to administer the oath of office to Gonzalez this afternoon.

There were 116 votes against Gonzalez and 21 abstentions. Five deputies were absent. Parliamentary President Gregorio Peces-Darba did not vote.

Gonzalez, 40, had been expected to win confirmation easily since his party has an absolute majority in the legislature for the first time ever, with 202 -seats.

RALEIGH - The N.C. Board of Law Examiners granted a law license Wednesday to a man who had been denied a license because he was convicted of impeding traffic during a demonstration.

"Mark Alexander Charns has satisfied the board that he is possessed of good moral character," the board said in a three-page report after questioning the 1982 graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School.

A three-member panel of the board had refused in October to allow Charns to practice law, saying his March 27 arrest for impeding traffic at Fort Bragg showed he did not have the "character and general fitness requisite for an attorney."

WASHINGTON - WSEX-FM president Darrell Peters has decided to fight the Federal Communications Commission over its denial of his request to use the call sign.

In his petition for reconsideration, Peters' Washington attorney, James Weitzman, notes the agency has granted permission to use such call signs as KISS, WLAY, KINK and WLUV.

According to Weitzman, Peters' request to use WSEX has nothing to do with the station's programming plans.

Study presents view of old, new N.C. Christian Right

By J. BONASIA Staff Writer

Although conservative Protestants such as Southern Baptists and United Methodists are often sympathetic with the goals of the new Christian Right, they oppose the tactics of the fundamentalists, a recently released UNC study stated.

These tactics of the new Christian Right include its "self-righteous, holier-than-thou theological and moral stance, its unwillingness to compromise ..., its lack of compassion, and its UNC professor of sociology Anthony R. Oberschall and graduate student Steve Howell presented the 23-page study titled "The Old and New Christian Right in North Carolina" at the annual meeting of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion in Providence, R.I. last month.

"The relationship between the New Christian Right and the Old Religious Right is one of competition, rivalry and suspicion mixed with hostility based on the accumulation of past rivalries and conflicts," the study stated.

The study also stated the Moral Majority was a

Carolina, and, as we learn more about other states, elsewhere as well. Like the secular humanists it decries, it is largely the creation of the mass media and of fund raisers," the study said.

The study points out that the Moral Majority of North Carolina has no grass-roots membership or organization.

"They claim the 10,000 people on their North Carolina mailing list as members," Oberschall said in an interview. "It's comparable to calling those who receive the Sears catalogue members of Sears. carrying members" were not necessarily a part of an organization like the Moral Majority.

"Of course these people aren't readily identifiable," Thomas said. "We're just giving voice to some widely held values and principles, expressing them from the bottom up."

Michael Lienesch, UNC assistant professor of political science, said he thought Oberschall's analysis is accurate, although certain conclusions being drawn from it are wrong.

Lienesch said Moral Majority's symbolic politics" involving direct computer mailing methods only take a few people to operate effectively.

The study was the result of a year and a half of research and field work by Oberschall and Howell. It incorporated information from term papers prepared by Oberschall's Sociology 111 undergraduate students.
