Heels were up 85-47, and the only thing left for Martin, or any of the Tar Heels to do was shower - and smile.

In the North Carolina locker room following the game, a boyish black man nudged his small frame into the middle of the crowd of reporters that hovered around Jordan.

Clad in a parka, blue sweats and sneakers, he stood reverently and waited for the crowd to clear. Then he announced himself to the surprised Jordan, and asked for his autograph,

It was Eric Ervin, the Panther's starting point guard. And at 5-foot-8, one of Jordan's biggest fans.

"I've obviously done better as a journalist than a novelist," he said. "I'm certainly disappointed, but on the other hand I'm not cast into the depths of gloom about it. I think I've shown growth in each one."

At the Times, Wicker writes an occasional piece for The New York Times Magazine, but his responsibilities consist almost solely of writing his column. "Of course, I'm available if anyone wants to consult with my vast knowledge of journalism," he said, "but nobody ever he spoke with an 18-year-old girl who was arrested, stripped and sexually abused in prison. Schoultz said the Salvadorans, in the center, are hard workers, "the Puritans of Latin America." In order to survive in a land with scarce natural resources, the Salvadorans had to learn skills other Latin Americans lack. He said they have a great entrepreneurial spirit. "Communism is the last thing on their minds," he said. "It's like trying to turn Italy

However, wiping out the center opens the door for communism. "As long as they keep behaving this way, communism is the only alternative," he said. Citing Nicaragua and Iran as examples, Schoultz said repressive right-wing governments, ruling by force, are doomed to failure. Pouring American aid into the hands of the brutal military only increases opposition to the government, he said. "There's nothing you can do to help the far left more."

He said Americans tend to support brutal governments if they perceive a communist threat. Schoultz and the Faculty Committee will attempt to persuade Congress that support of the current government is not the proper way to deal with the communists.

On Wednesday, Schoultz and his group met with members of the National Press Club in Washington. In the future, they will also be lobbying the four congressional committees involved with the aid issue.

Schoultz said he realized his evidence would not stop this certification.

However, he said he hoped the evidence he has gathered will eventually help stop the carnage in El Salvador. "Unless something is done fairly soon, we'll lose the whole thing,"

RALEIGH - Gov. Jim Hunt asked in a statewide television message Monday night for citizens to write legislators in support of a plan to give drunken drivers "swift, sure and severe punishment."

In a live telecast from the library of the Governor's Mansion, Hunt said the most important change proposed in the act is the consolidation of driving under the influence and lesser laws into a new driving while impaired offense that would be "easier to prove in court and would eliminate plea bargaining."

He said prosecutors would have to prove only that the driver's blood alcohol content was higher than .10 percent or that he was impaired by alcohol, drugs or other substances to obtain a conviction.

There would be a mandatory jail sentence if the driver had a drunken driving offense during the past 10 years, was speeding to avoid arrest, was speeding more than 30 mph above the limit, was driving with a license revoked or caused an accident that seriously injured another. He said every convicted drunken driver would either go to jail, do community work or lose his license for one to three months and pay a

Hunt praised the controversial "dram shop statute" portion of the bill which would allow a bar owner to be sued if that bar owner served a drink to a minor or drunken person and that person later caused an ac-

Hunt said he is recommending raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 but would not oppose raising it to 21.

NEW YORK — Contract prices for home heating oil fell Monday and one analyst predicted a drop in gasoline prices following the collapse of an OPEC pricing and production conference. But other analysts predicted that the 13-nation oil producers cartel would reach an agreement in a few weeks or months to stave off a price

Industry analysts said the depth and duration of any price cuts remained uncertain. They noted that any drop in gasoline and diesel fuel prices would be offset at least in part by a nickel-a-gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes on April 1.

RALEIGH — Supporters of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., have established a "Helms for Senate Committee" to collect contributions for a possible re-election bid in 1984. Helms, in a telephone interview from Washington, confirmed Monday that he notified the Federal Elections Commission last week about formation of the group but insisted he still has not decided whether to seek re-election to a third term in the U.S. Senate. Should he decide to become a candidate, Helms wrote that the committee "will be the principle committee for my campaign."

VATICAN CITY - Pope John Paul II is to sign and promulgate a revised code of canon law today that will affect the life of every Roman Catholic from birth to death.

The document, the final overall revision of the church's legal code in 66 years, is 25 percent shorter, simpler and stresses policy flexibility for local bishops. It repeals the simplified marriage annulment process in effect in the United States and Australia since 1970 and reinstates the requirement that all annulments by a marriage court must be reviewed by an appeals

It reduces from 37 to six the grounds for automatic excommunication, the church's most serious penalty, which puts Catholics outside their church and excludes them from the sacraments. The six are moral and physical involvement with an abortion, desecration of the Eucharist.

physical violence against the pope, violation by a priest of the secrecy of the confessional, consecration of a bishop without papal mandate and abuse by a priest of the power of absolution. The roles of lay people and those open to women are increased, and references to "laymen" are replaced with "lay people." However, there is no change in the ban on ordination of women.
