

Calling Cards part of third party charge changes

By SUSAN SULLIVAN
Staff Writer

It's more difficult to charge phone calls unless you have a new, money-saving calling card, following recent changes made by Southern Bell.

Without the card, callers charging a call to a third number from a pay phone must first get authorization from someone at that third number, Ladd Baucum, a Southern Bell spokesman, said recently. If no one answers or the third party refuses the charge, the call does not go through.

Baucum said the telephone company loses more than $400,000 a year from third number frauds.

But in an effort to crack down on those frauds and save the company and customers money, Baucum said a new service, the calling card, is being offered.

The calling card has a number printed on it that is keyed by computer to the customer's personal account, and customers can charge calls to their home phone with less expense than by calling through the operator.

Baucum said the cards were designed to be used with push-button phones for service without operator assistance, but can be used on dial phones with the help of an operator, at the same reduced charge per call.

Baucum said that each call made with a calling card costs 30 cents, as opposed to 70 cents for third party calls and $1.70 for person-to-person calls.

"By the end of January of this year there will be 627,542 calling cards in use in North Carolina out of just over one million customers," Baucum said. "There is no change for the cards, and no interest is charged."

The procedure for using a card is simple, Baucum said. If a customer is calling from a private or business push-button phone, he must dial 0 and then the number he wishes to reach. A tone will sound, after which the customer punches in his calling card number. It is instantly checked by computer, and if it is validated, the call goes through.

In push-button pay phones, after the tone, a recording directs the customer to punch in his number. The procedure for rotary dial phones is similar. After dialing 0 and the number, the customer tells the operator that he wishes to use his calling card and he gives the operator his card number.

Calling cards may be obtained by contacting the local Southern Bell office.

In the story titled "Seniors sponsor Saturday 'Frolic' fund raiser" (Friday, Jan. 28), The Daily Tar Heel incorrectly reported that the Franklin Street Frolic was scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 4. The fund-raising event, sponsored by the senior class, will actually take place Friday, Feb. 4. The DTH regrets the error.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan sent Congress advance copies of his $848.5 billion budget for 1984 on Sunday, and Democratic and Republican leaders agreed he faces a major struggle over proposed cuts in social programs, a $30 billion increase for defense and standby tax increases.

The budget — predicting a deficit of $208 billion this year and $189 billion in 1984 — will be released formally on Monday, but the administration already was deploying senior officials to defend it.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Congress eventually will come around to the president's view when it discovers the size of the spending cuts and tax increases needed to bring deficits down.

Reagan's budget calls for curtailing spending on programs such as food stamps, welfare, subsidized housing, and nutrition programs for children, as well as providing a six-month delay in cost-of-living increases for the blind and disabled and increasing out-of-pocket costs for recipients of Medicare and Medicaid.

In addition, Reagan wants an actual reduction in spending on hundreds of domestic programs taken as a group. This so-called freeze would be applied unevenly, though, with spending on programs such as Head Start increasing and funds for Amtrak cut below 1983 levels. Federal pay and pensions would be frozen for a year, though.

Congressional leaders said Sunday that Reagan will probably have to accept changes in standby tax proposals for a $5-a-barrel oil tax and an income tax surcharge beginning in October 1985.

RALEIGH — Pressure is mounting on the General Assembly to consider raising the 3 percent sales tax to generate money for construction projects and highways. Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, introduced a bill Friday to phase out the food tax, raise the sales tax and raise the tax on new cars. He also outlined a plan for spending the money primarily on construction of water and sewer projects, public schools and highways.

Earlier in the session, Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, introduced a bill to raise the sales tax from 3 percent to 4 percent. He wanted to earmark the money for school construction, water and clean air projects and highways as well as for raising state employees' salaries and other operating costs.

"Everybody feels a need to address the revenue problem," Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said last week.

Gov. Jim Hunt based his proposed 1983-84 budget on estimates that state tax revenues will increase about 8.8 percent next year. He is asking that all of that money except $95 million go for continuing operations at current levels.

The $95 million would pay for lifting the freeze on state workers' and teachers' salaries. The salaries were frozen last year as a budget-cutting measure.

Omitted from the budget were $30 million in requests for capital projects in the University of North Carolina system and millions of dollars in requests from community colleges for upgrading facilities and training equipment.

WARSAW, Poland — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops proclaimed "with great joy" Sunday that Pope John Paul II will return to his native Poland on a second pilgrimage June 18.

The announcement was in a letter read from pulpits in Poland and released simultaneously at the Vatican. It marked the first time the long-expected visit has been announced in Rome.

The June 18 date was first circulated in November following a meeting between Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski and the Polish primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp. Despite Sunday's confirmation, initial reactions from some Poles were skeptical.

case to their attention. Copytron tries to help individual professors who use its services to understand the law. "I think they were fairly good about letting me know about legal ramifications," Leinbaugh said.
Photocopying copyrighted materials is a tiny portion of local copy center business. Copytron does only approximately five large packets a year. Universal does fewer, although it also copies a number of workbooks written by University professors. Copy Quick has only two packets. UNC Printing is selling nine packets typed up by professors.

"The number of ways you can get in trouble (with copyright law) is just endless," said John B. Adams, a journalism school professor who teaches a course in media law. "The law is a very tough law — if it's enforced."
