

Students involved in commissions

By J. BONASIA
Staff Writer

For most students, knowledge of state government never extends beyond a class or two in political science. But for three UNC undergraduates, participating in state government is a firsthand reality.

Julie Chiu, James Slaughter and Tony Lathrop serve as full voting members on commissions to Gov. Jim Hunt.

Chiu, a 20-year-old political science major, has served on the N.C. Competency Testing Commission since October. She was one of the first students to work with the 13 educators and school superintendents who administer the state high school Competency Testing Program.

Dr. Jim Hemby, chairman of the commission, said student input was an asset.

"These particular students have been making significant contributions in the short time since they've been with us," Hemby said. "They represent an age group a lot closer to the test than any of the other commission members."

Chiu said being involved with the commission had been a valuable experience.

"I've learned by talking with these others what education is meant to do, especially here in North Carolina," Chiu said.

Lathrop, 21, and Slaughter, 18, both hope to attend law school, and both are the first youths to work on the Governor's Crime Commission. The 35-member panel serves as the chief advisory board to the governor on the criminal justice system.

"Youth appointments were created to give people our age a voice," Lathrop said. "I think it's good because I'm interested in law, and I'm getting hands-on exposure to the criminal justice system in this state."

Slaughter was also enthusiastic about the youth appointments.

"Our state is always a leader in youth programs, and I believe this program is one of the first of its kind in the country," he said.

Pam Kohl, director of the state Youth Involvement Office in Raleigh, said the program was developed in 1978 by the Youth Legislative Assembly, a mock high school legislative session which drew up the bill.

"Young people were involved every step of the way, from writing up the bill to lobbying and speaking out in support of it," Kohl said.

In its original form, House Bill 1350 proposed youth appointments to 20 commissions. That number was later trimmed to four, and the bill was approved by Hunt to include youth appointments to the Parks and Recreation Council, the Juvenile Law Study Commission, the Governor's Crime Commission and the Competency Testing Commission.

Duke Power Co. seeks rate increase

By BONNIE FOUST
Staff Writer

Duke Power Company filed for an annual $113 million rate hike Tuesday that would increase the average customer's monthly bill by $4.61.

The 7.6 percent rate increase was requested to cover the costs of construction at the McGuire nuclear station, losses incurred by the cancellation of two nuclear power stations, higher fuel costs and rising operating and maintenance costs.

The impact of this increase on Duke Power's 19,000 Chapel Hill customers cannot be determined until the proposal has been approved or rejected by the North Carolina Utilities Commission, John Kincaid, district manager of Duke Power in Chapel Hill, said.

"We reviewed expenses for September 1981 to September 1982, and based on those expenditures a 7.6 increase was needed," Kincaid said.

"We won't have a decision or know the impact on the customers until late September or early October," he said.

This year's proposed increase is small compared to the company's last two requests for rate increases. In its last request, Duke Power asked for a 14 percent increase but was only granted a 4.38 percent by the commission.

The company recognized the state's poor economic climate and purposely held down the amount of the proposed rate, William H. Grigg, Duke's executive vice president for finance and administration, said.

Kincaid said that although the rate increase is justified, he doubts if the commission will grant all of the request.

"Over the last several years not all that has been requested has been granted," Kincaid said. "It's hard to tell what will happen."

Robert Fischbach, executive director of the public staff of the N.C. Utilities Commission, said that the staff was encouraged that Duke Power requested only half of what the company sought in its last two cases.

He said that the utilities commission's public staff would examine the proposal and make a decision sometime in September.

If the rate increase is approved, the average residential bills would rise from $59.45 to $64.06.

Seniors in other UNC schools should contact their respective deans to find out when their degree application cards are due.

Trials need witnesses

The UNC School of Law is sponsoring the 1983 National Mock Trial Regional Competitions Feb. 14-16. A total of seven law schools will compete in the competitions, and the winning team will go to Houston, Texas, in March for the national competitions.

As the sponsoring school, UNC needs four witnesses and a bailiff for each of the 17 mock trials. Volunteers are needed for these roles as soon as possible. Any students interested in participating should call Bill Mills between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 688-8058.

with Painter's statement that the students were being "sighted" on the fee increase referendum. But they were sighted because they were uneducated about the actions of the CGC, not because they were not given every option on every referendum issue, she said.

"Education is a responsibility that we've been slack on," Cargal said. "It doesn't reflect badly on the students, it reflects badly on us and on the media on campus."

And Vandenberg said that the CGC had "a really strong commitment to educate people, and not to carry out our own petty ideologies."

CGC Speaker Bobby Vogler (District 14), who stepped down from his position during the meeting to participate in debate, questioned the council as to their reluctance to pass the referendum bill.

"Last semester during budgeting I heard a lot of people tell student groups seeking funding, 'If we had more money...'" Vogler said.

"If you saw the Daily Tar Heel this morning — or what little there was of it — you know these groups need more funding. Why am I hearing now, 'If we only had less money...?'"

WASHINGTON — Recovery from the long recession will probably be slow at first, with unemployment remaining high, President Reagan's chief economic adviser told Congress on Wednesday. But he added that it was "a cautious and prudent estimate" from "a very cautious guy."

And the adviser, Martin Feldstein, said President Reagan may eventually be proven correct in the hope he expressed Tuesday that a strong recovery already is under way.

The official administration forecast is that the economy will grow 3.1 percent from the fourth quarter of 1982 to the fourth quarter of this year after the effects of inflation are discounted from the figures.

Many private analysts say the economy did begin expanding in January, ending the recession that began in July 1981.

Food shipments to some Eastern cities were curtailed Wednesday by a truckers' strike that has erupted into warfare on the highways with more than 300 trucks damaged, one driver slain and 27 people injured.

Mike Parkhurst, head of the association which claims to represent 30,000 of the nation's 100,000 independent truckers who own and operate their own rigs, called the strike Monday to protest scheduled increases in fuel taxes in April and highway use fees in 1985.

While the independents represent about a fifth of the nation's truckers, they haul about 90 percent of the produce.

RALEIGH — A U.S. District Court jury Wednesday convicted Columbus County Judge J. Wilton Hunt Sr. of racketeering and interstate gambling.

Hunt was among 21 people arrested in July on federal charges stemming from the federal investigation into corruption in Columbus County, named Colcor.

"I don't believe you can print what I think about the FBI," Hunt told reporters after the trial.

Hunt was convicted of taking $7,000 in bribes from undercover agents to fix traffic tickets and reduce bonds. He was also con-
