

Women knocked out of NCAA's

From staff reports

North Carolina, in its most successful season ever, came up just two points short in an upset attempt against eighth-ranked Georgia Saturday in a 72-70 squeaker in the first round of the NCAA women's basketball tournament.

UNC was unable to score after Georgia's Teresa Edwards hit a free throw with nine seconds remaining. The Bulldogs, 25-6, advance to the Mideast semifinals against Indiana on Friday. The Tar Heels ended their season at 22-8.

Georgia led for most of the first half and held a 37-33 halftime edge before UNC took the lead early in the second period. Down by as many as six at one point, Georgia used a full-court press to claw its way back into contention.

All-America forward Janet Harris, who was held below her 21-point scoring average by the sagging Tar Heel defense, hit a couple of foul shots with 2:25 remaining in the game as Georgia regained the lead. UNC's Pam Leake hit a 12-foot jumper for the last North Carolina lead of the game, 70-69, with a little under two minutes to play.

Wanda Holloway, who knocked in a team-high 19 points off the bench, hit what turned out to be the game winner for Georgia, at the 1:05 mark.

Edwards missed the back end of a one-and-one from the line, but the miss proved insignificant when Leake was called for an offensive foul after taking the rebound the length of the court in the waning seconds of the UNC season.

UNC coach Jennifer Alley called the game "tremendous" for both teams. "We played our hearts out and gave it everything we had," she said. "If we can play the nation's eighth-ranked team to a two-point game, I'd say we must be the ninth-ranked team. We played one of our best games of the year."

For Kathy Crawford and Henrietta Walls, the loss marked the end of their careers. Walls tallied 10 points and five rebounds before fouling out with 1:45 to play. Crawford, already the all-time leading scorer for North Carolina with 1,806 points, moved into a tie for the single-season mark with a 21-point effort.

Tresa Brown added 20 for the Tar Heel cause and Leake handed out a career-high nine assists.

For the Bulldogs, Harris tallied 17 points and Lisa O'Connor hit for 15.

The UNC baseball team forgot what it was that brought it to a 19-2 record Sunday, as the Tar Heels dropped a pitchers' duel to N.C. State 1-0 Sunday in Raleigh.

The big bats of B.J. Surhoff, Pete Kumiega and Jeff Hubbard — responsible for the slew of wide margin victories this season — fell silent as North Carolina could produce just four hits against Wolfpack pitcher Mike Pesavento.

UNC pitcher Brad Powell matched Pesavento's four-hit performance, but he walked two men in the sixth, and then gave up a double by Tracy Woodson to give N.C. State all it needed to win.

On Saturday in Chapel Hill, the Tar Heels found themselves in another one-run game — this time against Duke. But North Carolina produced enough hits and just enough runs to beat the Blue Devils 4-3 in 10 innings.

Tom Reed notched the win to bring his record to 2-1, and after this weekend the Tar Heels stand 1-1 in the ACC and 19-3 overall.

Faculty Council approved a resolution granting "leave-of-absence" status to students leaving the University for constructive purposes, such as studying abroad. Currently, students studying abroad have to apply for readmission when they return.

Under the new policy, students would not have to apply for readmission on their return. They also would be given the opportunity to pre-register for classes and to be considered in the housing lottery and for financial aid for the semester of their return.

Tournament — the longest practice of the year — and trying to get used to playing without the 30-second clock and the three-point line.

"We needed it," Matt Doherty, who picked up 14 points, four rebounds and four assists Saturday, said. "We played terrible against State. We were getting used to the shot clock, or the lack of it. I think we've adjusted."

The Tar Heels adjusted well to the return to the conventional NCAA rules, shooting 65.8 percent from the floor, 72.2 percent in the second half. North Carolina took everything the Dukes' flex offense could throw in the final 20 minutes and buried the JMU attack under a barrage of finely executed plays.

And that almost flawless second-half surge came with Michael Jordan — 16 points on the day — sitting under a four-foul cloud. Jordan committed his fourth foul with a full 19:53 left in the game, and still went on to slam-block two JMU jumpers into the crowd.

Sam Perkins rolled up 18 points and six rebounds, and Brad Daugherty rounded out the starting five scoresheet with five points and three rebounds.

The only time in the entire game that the Tar Heels didn't look sharp came in the opening minutes, when North Carolina turned the ball over six times in the first seven possessions. But after the first five minutes, it was all North Carolina.

The Tar Heels hit the road next weekend to take on Ohio State in Syracuse, N.Y., on Friday, a matchup made possible by the Buckeyes' 79-74 win over Syracuse Sunday afternoon.

Jordan, Braddock, Doherty and Perkins repeated "hungry" over and over in the locker room Saturday; the Tar Heels see themselves as a team that wants to win the NCAA Tournament badly.

"It all comes down to this tournament," Doherty said. "We came out hungry, we came and played hard."

"We were all pumped up this week, we just have the desire to win."

Helms

"Some time ago I offered an amendment to cut all federal government spending 6 percent across the board," he said. "You wouldn't have believed the opposition that arose — no one could take a 6-percent cut. I calculated that such a cut would have saved the nation $103 billion."

Social and moral issues also remained a high priority for both Helms and East.

"See if you can find a problem in government that is not a moral problem," Helms said.

"I shall always believe that little children should have the right to pray in school," Helms said. "And I shall never believe it is right to bus school children across set school district boundaries in a city to satisfy a federal judge's ruling."

"We can't sit out this fight ... if we do we are helping the other side," he said.

East also took a firm stand on moral issues, saying that "no one is trying to impose any morality on anyone, but there's nothing wrong with speaking up for principles that lie deep within you."

"There's pressure to conform in Washington," East said. "In order to get good press, you have to conform. Washington is a mean place sometimes. Have you every read the Washington Post or The New York Times? It makes The Raleigh News and Observer look like child's play!"

East praised Sen. Helms by saying he is a man of principles and that it is no wonder that next to Ronald Reagan, Helms is the most admired conservative in the nation. "And I say second to Ronald Reagan only because he (Helms) isn't president," he said with a laugh.

In response to being viewed as the media's No. 1 enemy, Helms responded, "I appreciate the compliment."

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE ARE COUNTING... ON YOU

In Niger, 4 out of 10 children will die before their fifth birthday. In the Philippines, 70 percent of the population is malnourished. In Honduras, the average yearly income is $255. In other countries, people have to walk a full day to find wood for heat or cooking. These sad figures add up to catastrophic problems for millions of people in the Third World. But the facts are that Peace Corps volunteers in nearly 60 developing countries are helping these people survive today's problems and become self-sustaining tomorrow. Whether it's in the area of food production, energy conservation, economic development or health services, millions of people are counting on you as a Peace Corps volunteer. Why not try your hand at the toughest job you'll ever love?
