

Restructured '83-84 cabinet is announced

By LIZ LUCAS
Assistant University Editor

Student Body President Kevin Monroe formally announced his cabinet members Monday afternoon, as well as some structural changes in Student Government committees.

Several changes were made in the structure of the committee system, Monroe said, citing the combination of the former Educational Policy and Academic Procedure Committees into one committee, and the combination of the former Town Relations and Transportation Committees into one committee.

"We combined these committees because the areas of interest tended to overlap a lot," Monroe said. "Combining the committees cut down on the bureaucracy, too," he said.

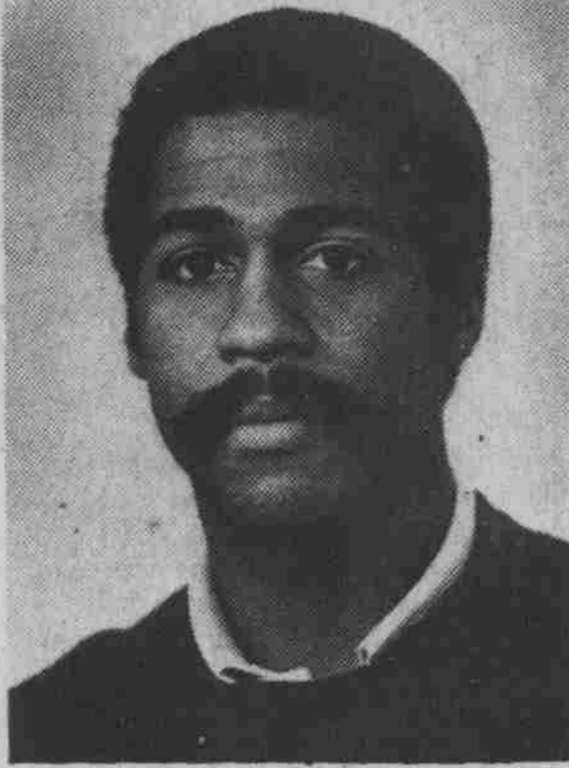

The State and National Committee, a joint committee under former Student Body President Mike Vandenberg, has been separated this year into two separate committees, Monroe said.

"The issues the two committees deal with do overlap, but some (issues) are so important that it deletes from the energy of the whole committee to have them lumped together," Monroe said.

The 11 cabinet members, who will be chairmen of the Student Government executive committees, were selected through an application and interview process. Monroe interviewed each applicant, he said.

"I mainly looked for motivation, drive and overall concern for Student Government in the applicants," Monroe said. "I also looked at their suggestions for making Student Government better as a whole and their new ideas for the particular committee they were applying for."

Susan Gaddy and Brad Ives were selected co-chairmen of the Communication and Publicity Committee. Gaddy is a sophomore political science and economics major from Durham, and Ives is a freshman political science and economics major from Brevard.

Mark Scuria will serve as chairman of the Educational Procedures and Policies Committee. He is a sophomore chemistry major from High Point.

State Affairs Committee chairman for the 1983-84 year will be freshman Garret Weyer, from New York.

The National Affairs Committee will be chaired by Richard Batchelder, a junior political science and history major from New Bedford, Mass.

Angie Robbins, a junior broadcast journalism major from Charlotte, was selected as chairman of the Housing Committee.

Steve Knox will serve as chairman of the Food Services and Health Affairs Committee. He is a junior business major from Davidson.

The new Student Services Committee chairman is Vic Doggette, a freshman from Jacksonville.

Tommy Shealy, a junior political science major from Atlanta, was chosen chairman of the Town Relations and Transportation Committee.

Carol Mulholland was selected chairman of the Scholarship Aid and Student Stores Committee. She is a sophomore political science and French major from Raleigh.

Academic Advising Committee chairman will be Jerry Blackwell, a junior political science major from Kannapolis.

Cina Mack, a sophomore biology major from Huntersville, was chosen as chairman of the University Relations Committee.

And Judy Thompson, a freshman from Apex, was selected as director of the liaison service, which this year will fall under the Student Services Committee.

Finance Committee to hold budget hearings

By MARK STINNEFORD

The funding requests of 34 campus organizations will fall under the magnifying glass of the Campus Governing Council Finance Committee beginning today as the committee begins the process of proposing a budget for the 1983-84 fiscal year.

This year, the process will involve cutting about $100,000 from the budget requests of student organizations. The CGC is responsible for allocating funds received from the Student Activities Fees.

Student groups have requested about $350,000 for the next fiscal year, while the CGC should have about $250,000 to allocate, including money from Student Activity Fees and taken from the General Reserve Fund, said CGC Finance Committee Chairperson Doc Droze (District 22).

Many of the necessary cuts can be made by eliminating padding in the budget requests of student organizations, Droze said.

"You can expect a certain amount of padding," Droze said. "Due to the conservative nature of last year's Finance Committee, I can understand groups putting a little extra in their budgets to ensure receiving the appropriate amount of funding."

In proposing funding, the Finance Committee will also rely heavily on qualitative review of student organizations' programs completed Monday by three CGC subcommittees, Droze said. The subcommittees, consisting of members from the CGC Student Affairs and Rules and Judiciary committees, gave proposed programs priority ratings based on factors such as diversity and cultural value, as well as the recognition they provide the University.

The effectiveness of the qualitative review was probably increased because of greater coordination between the subcommittees involved in the review, said CGC Speaker James Exum (District 15). Procedures for examining and evaluating programs were standardized, Exum said.

"In the past, the subcommittees have submitted entirely different types of reports, making them very difficult for the Finance Committee to weigh," Exum said. "We've tried to eliminate that problem this year."

The process was also conducted with greater openness, Exum said. Unlike last year, members of student organizations were allowed to remain in the hearing rooms after their testimony to observe the rating of their programs, Exum said.

"Whether organizations agreed with the rankings we gave their programs or not, they were right there when the decision was made."

"From the comments I've received from the organizations, they felt the qualitative hearings were held in such a manner that they could have more impact on decision making," Exum said.

Opposition also was voiced by residents concerned with the rezoning of Hilltop Street and Homestead Road extension to accommodate higher density residential building.

A man identifying himself only as Spike acknowledged that he probably was the oldest person at the meeting. Although refusing to give his age, he said that he had lived on Hilltop Drive since 1936. To allow the owner of property on Hilltop Drive to build high-density dwellings on the 16-acre tract would not be fair to long-time residents of that area, he said.

The owner of the land asked the council to approve the re-zoning of the 16- to 17-acre tract from R-2 and R-4, allowing 213 units on the site instead of the present 81.
