The Campus Y released the results of its teaching survey last week in time to provide preregistering students with information on prospective professors.

Approximately 850 students, or 5 percent of the student body, participated in the survey conducted by the Campuy Y's Committee on Undergraduate Education. The survey resulted in favorable and unfavorable recommedations for professors in 17 departments, said Anna Hall, co-chairperson of the committee.

The survey is a subjective evaluation of professors and thus is entirely different from the Carolina Course Review, Hall said.

The Carolina Course Review is a statistical evaluation

Survey recommendations:

Most favorably recommended accounting professors were David Hoffman, Roger Chope and Gary Armstrong. Also favorably recommended: Richard Blackburn, Nicholas Didow, Leslie Garner Jr., James Littlefield, Richard Levin, Richard Mann, Isaac Reynolds, Howard Rockness, Benson Rosen and Junius Terrell. Unfavorably mentioned: Curtis McLaughlin.

Most favorably recommended art professors were John Dixon, Richard Shiff and Marvin Saltzman. Also favorably recommended were James Gadson, Peter Plagens and Dennis Zaborowski. Unfavorably mentioned: Edson Armi, Jaroslav Folda.

Most favorably recommended biology professors were Lujean Desaix and H.E. Lehman. Also favorably recommended were Kenneth Bynum, James Coke, John Feduccia, Patricia Gensel, Albert Harris, Jim Massey and Darrel Stafford. Unfavorably mentioned: Richard Brown, John Koeppe, Helmut Mueller, Ann G. Matthysse, Seth Reice and Alan Stiven.

Most favorably mentioned chemistry professors were James Jorgenson, Slayton Evans and William Little. Also favorably recommended: Maurice Bursey, Michael Crimmins, Henry Dearman, G.W. Hills, Richard Hiskey, Donald Jicha, Tom Sorrel, Joseph Templeton and Richard Wolfenden.

Most favorably recommended classics proof various courses at UNC. Hall said the Campus Y's survey is neither objective nor scientifically compiled by a computer as is the Carolina Course Review.

The survey consisted of students who voluntarily completed questionnaires, Hall said.

"We were pleased to get 850 responses," she said. "That is not an overwhelming number but those who responded gave a fair representation. We had some real interesting comments."

Students comments as well as survey results were published in a pamphlet available at the Campus Y.

If a professor was exceptionally outstanding, the pamphlet listed comments about him in order to give the student more information about him, Hall said. "We would have liked to include comments on all of them but space wouldn't allow it," she added.

Carl Pletsch and Richard Soloway.

The survey only included information on departments which received a significiant number of responses. The survey also listed the exact number of majors who responded and the percent they make up of the total number of majors.

The classics department received the largest number of responses with 41 percent of all majors participating. Though 22 percent of all sociology majors participated, no one professor was singled out as outstanding, according to the survey results.

This was the first year that the Campus Y conducted the survey, which has been planned since last year, Hall said. "This year we decided to plunge in and get something done," she said.

"The Campus Y has a commitment to service and we wanted to produce something that would be of service to the student body," Hall said.

> and William Thompson. Unfavorably mentioned was Paul S. Hubbard.

science professors were Jeffrey Obler, Richard Richardson and Alan Stern. Also favorably recommended were Enrique Baloyra, Merle Black, Vernon Bounds, Frederick Lee, Michael Lienesch, Lewis Lipsitz, Lars Schoultz, Andrew Scott, Jurg Steiner, Joel Schwartz and Gordon Whitaker.

Most favorably recommended religion professors were Peter Kaufman and Ruel Tyson. Also favorably recommended were David Halperin, Giles Gunn, James Sanford, Jack Sasson, John Schutz, Grant Wacker and William Peck.

Most favorably recommended RTVMP professor was John Bittner. Also fayorably recommended were Robert Allen, William Hardy and Richard Hunter. Special mention to graduate student John Freeman, who received more recommendations than any professor in the department. Unfavorably mentioned was Richard Settle.

No single sociology professor clearly stood out as a fine teacher. Several comments said that the sociology department is weak overall. Most favorably recommended speech communication professor was Robert Cox. Also favorably recommended were V. William Balthrop, Martha Hardy, L. Rosenfeld and Julia Wood.

WARSAW, Poland - Police armed with machine pistols routed 1,000 Solidarity supporters in Warsaw on Sunday, while Cardinal Jozef Glemp traveled to Gdansk and met with Lech Walesa in a strong gesture of church support for the outlawed union.

Police in Warsaw moved in after the crowd flashed victory signs and sang union songs at an unofficial ceremony marking the 40th anniversary of the Warsaw ghetto uprising.

Authorities detained at least three people, including Solidarity's former national spokesman, who told the crowd that if the Warsaw ghetto fighters were alive today they would join Solidarity in the "fight for truth, freedom and human dignity."

At another gathering, Glemp told 10,000 faithful at an outdoor Mass in Warsaw that the communist government has not responded to initiatives to open a dialogue with Solidarity, and that the Polish people are "humiliated before the world."

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Association of Educators won't support Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign to improve public schools until the state increases funding for education.

About 1,500 teachers voted Saturday against endorsing the program on the grounds that it does more for Hunt's political image than for education.
