

Solidarity supporters clash with Polish police

The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Riot police clashed with more than 10,000 Solidarity supporters in two cities Wednesday but allowed Lech Walesa and 2,000 others in Gdansk to demonstrate in peace on the third anniversary of the outlawed independent labor federation.

The police also let more than 1,000 workers march peacefully in Warsaw for two hours. When they moved in to disperse another crowd of 5,000, violence was minimal.

The demonstrations, called by Solidarity's underground committee, were the first on a national scale since the lifting of martial law July 22. However, they were not nearly as widespread as those last Aug. 31.

The biggest turnout was reported at Nowa Huta, the southern industrial city where a worker was killed in rioting May 1 and another was shot by police during a demonstration after Solidarity was outlawed last Oct. 8.

An estimated 10,000 workers poured out of the Lenin steel works after the day shift and marched toward the center of the city, chanting "Solidarity" and other pro-union slogans, a government spokesman who witnessed the march reported.

Riot police blocked them, firing tear gas and spraying them with water cannon, the spokesman said. Witnesses said the demonstrators hurled stones at the police and at streetcars.

Several people were injured, and a number of the marchers were arrested, the official said. Clashes reportedly continued into the evening.

A violent police reaction also was reported in the southeastern city of Wroclaw. Official sources there said the police used tear gas to disperse a crowd that tried to place flowers on the grave of a young worker killed during a demonstration a year ago.

In Warsaw, more than 1,000 steel and automobile factory workers marched without interference from 2 to 4 p.m., the hours set by the Solidarity underground for a boycott of public transport and street marches.

Meanwhile, 5,000 Solidarity backers assembled in central Constitution Square, whistling and clapping at small police patrols who moved among them urging them to move on.

Chanting "Solidarity," "Lech Walesa" and "Bujak" (Zbigniew Bujak, the best-known fugitive union leader), the throng marched off toward the Old Town. Police, without helmets or shields, looked on for about 15 minutes before moving in and forcing the crowd into side streets and arresting one or two leaders.

People trying to rescue those arrested attacked police with their fists, but the police refrained from using their riot sticks. The crowd melted away, and large groups moved leaderless toward the Old Town. But it was sealed off by police in riot gear with water cannon.

In Gdansk, Walesa, the Solidarity chairman, completed his shift at the giant Lenin shipyard where the union was born, and spoke briefly to about 400 supporters outside the yard's main gate.

The workers' monument nearby, the usual center of Solidarity demonstrations in Gdansk, was sealed off by police with full riot gear, and the crowd around Walesa marched to the Church of St. Brygida, the shipyard parish church.

There 2,000 people gathered and followed the labor leader back toward the shipyard about 4 p.m., when the government had said individual workers would be allowed to lay flowers at the monument.

Space shuttle launches triple-duty satellite for India

The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Challenger's astronauts launched a triple duty satellite for India Wednesday and were told by President Reagan that the space flight of America's first black astronaut demonstrates "we are in an era of brotherhood here in our land."

But the astronauts were later startled by the high, piercing sound of an alarm signaling the possibility of fire in an instrument bay. The alarm turned out to be false.

Reagan also found inspiration in the part being played by Dr. William Thornton, who is aboard the shuttle to learn why some astronauts get sick.

"Bill, at 54, the oldest astronaut ever to fly in space, you have an especially warm place in my heart," said the president, who likes to joke about the fact that he is 72. "It makes me think some day I might be able to go along."

The president was at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., and the shuttle was 184 miles high, en route from Hawaii toward the West Coast on its 23rd trip around Earth. The astronauts were ending a day in which they made their $8.36 million satellite delivery, the most important part of their six-day flight.

"I caught you on the way to your bunks for some well deserved sleep, so I'd better cut this short," said Reagan.

He told Lt. Col. Guion Bluford, the first black man to earn the gold pin that denotes an astronaut who has flown, that he is paving the way for many others.

"You are making it plain we are in an era of brotherhood here in our land and you will serve as a role model for so many others and be so inspirational," Reagan said. "I can't help but express my gratitude for you."

Earlier, when Mission Control asked Commander Richard Truly how things were going, he exclaimed: "Shoot, we never had so much fun in our whole lives."

There are three types of alarms on the shuttle, and flight director Harold Draughon said the one that sounded at 10 a.m. EDT "is the most attention-getting system on the spacecraft."

It reacts to gases produced by combustion, but is not a heat sensor.

"It will detect things you can't see or smell or sense," Draughon said.

The astronauts could have thrown switches to activate two fire extinguishers in the avionics bay, or used a hand-held extinguisher through access ports.

Draughon said that since a second alarm didn't confirm a fire, Truly decided the extinguishers weren't needed.

The malfunctioning alarm had been used on the original shuttle, Columbia, and Draughon said it has a history of being overly sensitive. This was the first time such an alarm had gone off in flight.

The flight director speculated that "outgassing" — a release of gas from electronic equipment — might have triggered the alarm.

The satellite, which can handle more than 8,000 telephone circuits and beam television to receivers in 100,000 rural communities, will also improve weather forecasting in India.

"The deployment was on time ... and the satellite looks good," mission specialist Bluford reported as the payload spun away.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Wednesday he does not believe U.S. Marines have been singled out as targets in Lebanon, although messages have been intercepted in which people have said "shoot at the Marines."

"I believe there is no concerted effort to single out the Marines and target them," Shultz told a news conference. But he said some reports — presumably he meant radio reports — have been overheard suggesting that the 1,200 Marines on duty in Beirut are being shot purposely.

"There are conflicting statements," he said. "You get an intercept here or there about somebody saying to shoot at the Marines, and you also get many intercepts that say, 'Oh, the Marines are there. Don't shoot at the Marines.'"

Two Marines have been killed and 14 injured in fighting in recent days around Beirut. The Reagan administration has refused to declare a hostile situation in the Lebanese capital under the War Powers Act of 1973.

A top Marine general will attend funeral services next week for 2nd Lt. Donald Losey and Staff Sgt. Alexander M. Ortega, who were killed by mortar fire in Lebanon.

The Marines announced Wednesday that Lt. Gen. D'Wayne Gray, chief of staff of the corps, will attend a service Sunday for Losey, 28, of Winston-Salem and Tuesday for Ortega, 25, of Rochester, N.Y., in Parkcrest, Pa.

Gray is the third-ranking officer in the Marine Corps.

The bodies of the two Marines were returned to the United States Tuesday. Air Force Col. John A. Doonan, a Roman Catholic priest who is chaplain at Dover Air Force Base, met the plane when it arrived in Dover, Del., at 8:26 a.m. and read brief prayers over the bodies.

TEL AVIV, Israel — A tough battle was shaping up today between candidates jockeying to succeed resigning Prime Minister Menachem Begin, and the opposition Labor Party claimed its support was growing.

A caucus of Begin's Herut Party convened twice on Tuesday after the prime minister made clear his intention to step down, but it failed to find a candidate or even decide how a new leader should be chosen.

Begin's colleagues, whose right-wing Herut party dominates the governing Likud bloc, feel a quick choice is crucial and fear State President Chaim Herzog could ask the Labor Party to try to form a new government if Likud is leaderless. Israeli law requires that the government resign together with the prime minister.
