

Chapel Hill to get $519,600 block grant

By KATHIE COLLINS
Staff Writer

Chapel Hill will receive $519,600 and Carboro $98,437 for community improvements through the Community Development Block Grant program.

The Town of Chapel Hill applied for $750,000 early this summer, said Greg Feller, assistant to the town manager. Not all of the projects were approved, however, and the town received 70 percent of the funds applied for.

Current plans for the money include construction of new sewer lines and paving of streets in the University Heights area. Twenty percent, $86,800 will be used for a local option, Feller said. This option has yet to be specified.

Money for these projects will be reimbursed to the town as the projects develop.

Carboro originally applied for $223,125, but received only $98,437, said Roy Williford, planning and economic director. Of the $98,437 granted, $75,000 will be loaned to Francis Chan, owner of a medical equipment manufacturing operation and a Chinese restaurant. The loan will enable Chan to hire 16 new employees. The remaining $23,437 will be used in a local option to provide extra parking downtown, Williford said.

A total of 89 North Carolina cities and counties have been awarded more than $48 million in these block grant funds for 1983.

The grant money will help create or save approximately 1,400 jobs and will improve 1,900 substandard houses, according to a statement from Gov. Jim Hunt.

A rating system was devised to determine grant recipients. Competitors were chosen by the percentage of benefits going to low-income families and by community need.

Cobey non-committal about plans for '84

The Associated Press

RALEIGH — Republicans from the 4th Congressional District say they have tried to persuade William W. Cobey to abandon his expected bid for governor and run instead for Congress from the district for the second time.

"He was very non-committal," said Ernest C. Pearson, chairman of the Wake County GOP. But he said Cobey "asked what we thought about the timing of his announcement if he should go for Congress."

Larry E. Norman, a Louisburg attorney and Franklin County GOP chairman, said the leaders visited Cobey this week.

"We went to see Bill and ask him to run for Congress again," he said. "We didn't get any commitment except that he'd consider it carefully."

Cobey said in an interview Wednesday that he was "not ready to say anything yet" about his plans.

"It's certainly gratifying to realize that the district party would be so united in my running," he said. "It's certainly a factor and well-appreciated."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has suggested that Cobey run instead for lieutenant governor as the running mate of Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C.

But Cobey said he's not interested in the idea, and Helms' chief political strategist, Thomas F. Ellis, also criticized the suggestion.

"I appreciate Sen. Helms expressing confidence in Rep. Martin and myself," Cobey said. "He is probably right. We could have a formidable campaign. But I really don't have any interests in that direction."

Helms made the suggestion in a news conference in Dunn last week.

Martin has announced as a Republican candidate for governor, and state Sen. T. Cass Ballenger plans a formal announcement this month.

Cobey ran a strong race for lieutenant governor in 1980 and lost a close contest to Ike F. Andrews for the 4th District seat in 1982.

In both races, he had the strong backing of Helms' National Congressional Club, which backs conservative candidates.

"We told him that some things were done wrong in his last campaign, the negative advertising, for example," Norman said. "Ideally, we'd like him to be the Republican candidate instead of the Congressional Club candidate."

And there are no laws governing how nations defend their airspace, said UNC Assistant Law Professor Mark Weisburd, a specialist in international law.

"A country is not required to let planes from other countries fly over it," Weisburd said. "Nations do have a right to control their airspace. I don't know any rule of how nations govern their airspace."

International law is very fuzzy on responding to violations of airspace, he said. The downing of the Korean jet is "one of those situations where it's dangerous to speculate," Weisburd said.

In interviews Thursday afternoon, many UNC students were puzzled and shocked about the downing of the plane.

Norma Marchman, a freshman from Eden, said, "Of course it will hamper relations with the United States. The Russians are going to have to explain this and somehow be reprimanded to the satisfaction of all nations involved."

"Russia owes us an explanation concerning what happened," said Scott Cabaniss, a freshman from Baldwin, Md. "There's no excuse for it."

Kelly Lewis, a junior from Camp Lejeune, took a more cautious view. "I think there should be a U.S. response but it should be careful and appropriate," she said.

Steve Grathwohl, a freshman from Charlotte, said, "If there was no radio contact made with the Korean jet, I think that the strongest form of protest should be made to the Soviet Union. It's not worth going to war over, but the closest thing to it."

TEL AVIV, Israel — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, a former guerrilla leader and secret agent, won his Party's nomination Thursday to succeed outgoing Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Israel Radio reported. Shamir was elected by a majority of his Herut Party's central committee.

Shamir defeated Deputy Premier David Levy by 437 votes to 302, election chairman Yohanan Vinitzky announced. There were seven void votes.

If he can form a coalition, Shamir is expected to continue Begin's tough nationalist policies which the two men forged when they fought together in the underground for Israeli independence in the 1940s.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — U.S. special envoy Richard Stone says Salvadoran leftists have rejected elections as a means of resolving the country's civil war and termed that stance "unacceptable."

As Stone conferred with President Alvaro Magana on Wednesday, Salvadoran army troops bombarded guerrilla positions on a volcano east of San Salvador, and the Constituent Assembly asked the Defense Ministry to investigate the kidnapping of one of its alternate members.

In other Central American developments, Nicaraguan military officials said U.S.-backed rebels advanced into the northern province of Atagapa after being driven out three months ago.

After meeting with Magana, Stone flew to Bogota to confer with Colombian President Belisario Betancur and said he would fly to Caracas today to meet with Venezuelan President Luis Herrera Campins.

Along with Mexico and Panama, Colombia and Venezuela are members of the Contadora group. The group is seeking a peaceful, regional solution to the Central American conflicts.

WASHINGTON — Former President Jimmy Carter, who recently described the Salvadoran government as "one of the most bloodthirsty" in the world, said Thursday he believes the United States should support that government while insisting on improved protection of human rights there.

Speaking with reporters after testifying in private before the National Commission on Central America headed by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Carter said he agrees with the administration that it is proper for the United States to oppose Nicaraguan-based subversion and to support the Salvadoran government.

"At the same time, we should pursue aggressively the alleviation of social suffering and the enhancement of human rights," Carter said.

Carter said he has no doubt that such a policy would win adequate support from the American public and Congress when combined with U.S. support for regional peacemaking efforts.

PARCHMAN, Miss. — Jimmy Lee Gray, convicted of raping, sodomizing and suffocating a 3-year-old girl, waited Thursday to die in Mississippi's gas chamber just after midnight, having lost a last-ditch appeal to the nation's highest court.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused in a 6-3 decision to stop Gray's execution, apparently dashing his last hope to avoid stepping into the stainless-steel death chamber. His execution was set for 12:01 a.m. today.

"He appears to be relatively calm," Corrections Commissioner Morris Thigpen said of the slightly built Gray, who waited in a small death row cell a few feet from the gas chamber.

"He seemingly accepted what is going to happen," Gray, 34, spent the day meeting with friends and ministers and talked on the telephone with his mother and brother, who live out of state.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Black consumers plan to give a five-day demonstration of black purchasing power in 29 cities across the country starting Thursday.

The show of black economic muscle, titled Black Dollar Days, will last through Labor Day in 29 cities in 17 states, Greenville consultant L.R. Byrd said Wednesday. Byrd was hired by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to coordinate the national campaign, which will include Columbia and Greenville.

Participants in the program — patterned after local projects held previously in Greenville, S.C., Greensboro and Atlanta — have been asked to use $2 bills and Susan B. Anthony dollars when making purchases between Thursday and Monday.

RALEIGH — Federal laws are so weak in protecting North Carolinians from hazardous waste that the state should ban burial of some wastes, concludes a task force examining the state's future.

The task force recommendations were being considered Thursday and today by the state Goals and Policy Board in the Department of Administration for possible inclusion in its annual report to Gov. Jim Hunt.

Stabbing victim's condition improving

Dorothy Hill, a UNC graduate student and former editor of the Carolina Quarterly who was the victim of a stabbing early Wednesday morning, was listed in "fair condition" Thursday at N.C. Memorial Hospital, a spokesman said.

Her "fair condition," meaning her prognosis is favorable, improved from its earlier listing as "serious."

Chapel Hill police said Thursday that there were no suspects and that an investigation was continuing.

Hill, 39, of 308 Elliott Road, told police she was sleeping in her apartment early Wednesday morning when she was stabbed once in the chest and once in the abdomen.

"I was awakened by the pain and opened my eyes to see a man running out the door," Hill told police. She could not identify her assailant.

From 1979-1981, Hill was editor of the Carolina Quarterly, a literary magazine that publishes fiction, poetry and photography. She is on leave from the English department where she is working on her doctorate degree.
