Volleyball team begins ACC play against Wake

The UNC women's volleyball team continued its dominance of the Southeast with a three-game sweep of Appalachian State Friday in North Carolina's season opener.

The Tar Heels, coming off three ACC championships and two national tournament appearances in just three years, appear primed for another successful season.

Coach Beth Miller returns six players from last year's squad, which posted a 26-13 record and got a berth in the NCAA tournament. The returners include the three captains: first-team All-ACC selection Donna Meier, secondteam pick Linda Kantz, and Sandy Schmidt.

Miller is setting her sights high again in 1983. "It gets tougher every year," she says. "Our goal again is to win the ACC tournament and to do well in the NCAA."

Joining the captains for another season will be senior Mercedes Ballbe, and two sophomores - Kim Rose and Krissy Ibach.

Miller will be counting heavily on the experience and leadership of the team's "Donna (Meier) is one of our middle blockers and a very good offensive player," Miller said. "Linda (Kantz) will run our offense as the setter. She has good court awareness. Sandy Schmidt is an outside blocker and we need her to have a good season."

Four freshmen could also play important roles for the team, which went undefeated against ACC opponents in 1982. Jill Berkebile, from Johnstown, Pa., will probably start or should at least see plenty of action. Heather Ostrem and Dawn Wood are both strong players competing for starting roles. A fourth freshman, Mindy Kindy, has lost a little time at the start of the season because of a sprained

The Tar Heels' 15-4, 15-10, 15-9 victory at Appalachian State should help prepare the team for a tough ACC schedule which starts tonight with a match at Wake Forest. Five teams have a realistic shot at the conference title this year, Miller said.

"Duke was a surprise last year," she said. "They're going to be strong and so will Clemson, N.C. State and Maryland."

Of repeating last year's perfect record against ACC rivals, Miller speaks in subdued tones.

"It's tough to do. If someone had told me last year we would do that, I would have laughed. We will certainly try to duplicate that record, though."

If the contest at Wake Forest tonight goes as expected, the Tar Heels should be 2-0 when they host East Carolina in their 1983 home opener in Carmichael Auditorium Thursday night. N.C. State will come to Chapel Hill next Tuesday.

The Tar Heels also face some of the nation's best teams in four tournaments before hosting the first Tar Heel Classic in November.

Chances are good that it will be another successful season for the Tar Heels, but the rest of the ACC teams will be looking to put an end to UNC's string of conference titles.

As Miller said, "It gets tougher every
