

Telephone access charges are questioned

By J. BONASIA
Staff Writer

With the Jan. 1, 1984 breakup of the Bell System looming ever-closer, questions regarding long-distance access charges remain unanswered.

The state Utilities Commission is hearing testimony on access charges which, if approved, will require subscribers to pay a set fee each month in order to have access to in-state long-distance telephone lines.

The access charges are unneeded, said Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, who testified before the commission Monday. Edmisten argued that the long-distance costs should continue to be paid by long-distance carrier companies that can absorb the burden by raising local rates.

rates so high that the phone becomes a luxury item," said Phil Telfer, assistant attorney general. "The result would be a class of society that is phoneless."

Southern Bell has asked the Utilities Commission for permission to charge residential customers $1.30 a month and business customers $3.02 a month for in-state access.

The Federal Communications Commission has already decided to charge residential customers $2 a month and business customers $6 a month for out-of-state long-distance access.

These charges would take effect at the beginning of 1984, when seven independent regional companies assume control of long-distance lines from the Bell System.

Edmisten's task force is basing its assertions on Bell's proposed rates, which are by no means concrete, said Don Elmore, spokesman for Southern Bell.

"Since these access charges are still only suggestions, it's hard to know just who will be charged what," Elmore said.

The Utilities Commission will continue to hear testimony through the month of October before coming to any final decisions on access charges. Southern Bell and several concerned interveners are scheduled to appear before the commission Oct. 11 in Raleigh. Also, the commission plans to hold public hearings Oct. 17 in Asheville, Charlotte, Raleigh and Wilmington.

Gas leak temporarily closes two streets

Airport Road and North Street were closed temporarily Thursday afternoon following the investigation of a possible gas leak at 515 Hillsborough St.

Officer Robert Frick of the Chapel Hill Police Department said that two houses appeared to have been affected by the leak and were sealed off. A crew from Chapel Hill Public Service Gas was sent to contain the leak. No one was evacuated from the area.

WASHINGTON — As the United States prepares to close the books on the 1983 fiscal year, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and foreign finance ministers expressed concern Thursday that staggering U.S. budget deficits might jeopardize the global economic recovery.

Thatcher, here to meet with President Reagan, added her voice to the chorus of foreign complaints this week that the deficits will keep interest rates high and hamper the economic rebound just getting under way.

Thatcher said she feels it is "very harmful, coming out of a recession, to have a high interest rate. It stops expansion... and, of course, if you don't get expansion, you do not get the national income."

WASHINGTON — One of the most conservative Republicans in the House said Thursday that President Reagan and his aides are "deceiving themselves" by declaring the case closed over Interior Secretary James Watt.

If Watt isn't fired, the administration will face a series of embarrassing votes in Congress condemning him, said Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga. Gingrich said he could see no "significant numbers" of House supporters left behind Watt.

But at the White House, presidential aides continued to pronounce the issue settled over Watt's description of five advisers as "a black... a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

CAPE HATTERAS — Tropical Storm Dean continued to be indecisive late Thursday night and stopped dead in its tracks 110 miles off the coast of North Carolina and Virginia.

The storm had been moving on an erratic course at about 15 miles an hour toward the northwest, with sustained winds reaching 70 mph and hurricane-force winds reported in squalls moving ahead of it.

But at 9 p.m. Thursday, the storm was reported to be in the same position it held at 6 p.m. Forecasters were still predicting it would hit the Virginia or North Carolina coast by this morning.

RALEIGH — Preservation of universal telephone service is a major factor in determining whether to charge customers for long-distance access, state Utilities Commission Edward Hippi said Thursday.

The Federal Communications Commission has authorized a $2-a-month charge for residential customers and a $6-a-month fee for businesses to pay for access to interstate long-distance lines beginning Jan. 1, 1984.

Southern Bell has asked the state Utilities Commission for authority to charge residential customers $1.30 a month and business customers $3.02 a month for access to in-state long-distance lines.

"The lower-income customers will have to make a very hard choice between doubled telephone bills or giving something else up," Hippi told the Legislature's Utility Review Commission. "Their budgets are very close."

RALEIGH — The unemployment rate dropped in 86 of North Carolina's 100 counties in August, the chairman of the state Employment Security Commission said Thursday.

Glenn Jernigan attributed the decrease to "continuing improved economic conditions." "This recovery is expected to be sustained for the balance of 1983, and unemployment rates should be well below 1982 levels," he said.

Shrine Club sponsors fish fry:

The Orange County Shrine Club is sponsoring a fish fry today from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the parking lot of University Mall.

All proceeds from the fish fry will go to Shriners hospitals for crippled children and to burn centers. The Shriners support 18 orthopedic hospitals and three burn centers nationwide.
