Elections today to fill CGC seats

λ.

By MARK STINNEFORD Staff Writer

Elections will be held today to fill five empty graduate seats on the Campus Governing Council in districts 2, 3, 4, 5 and 8.

Polls will be open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Carolina Union, Y-Court, Craige, Wilson, Scuttlebutt, School of Law, School of Medicine, Rosenau, Kenan Labs and Hamilton.

Graduates must present a valid student ID to vote and must belong to the district in which they vote.

But the ballots will be blank in three of the races.

Only two students filed petitions by the Oct. 18 filing deadline, Elections Board Chairman Chris Cox said Monday.

Carol Solow, a graduate student in the School of Social Work, is running in district 2. William Barlow, a graduate student in the department of city and regional planning, is running in district 4.

Rebel Cole, a graduate student in the School of Business Administration, is running as a write-in candidate in district 3. Cole served as CGC representative from district 4 until August when he was forced to resign because he transferred out of the economics department.

Chris Capel, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Federation, said the lack of graduate candidates was not due to apathy but a lack of knowledge among graduates about positions available.

"I honestly don't think graduate students know that roughly one-third of the seats on the CGC are open to them," Capel said. "I think there are people out there who want to get involved and are just as interested as undergraduates about the quality of campus life."

The CGC seats up for grabs are as follows:

District 2, which includes the art, dramatic art, education, music and social work graduate schools and departments.

District 3, which includes the botany, chemistry, marine sciences, math, operations research and systems analysis, physics, statistics and business administration graduate schools and departments.

District 4, which includes the anthropology, city and regional planning, computer science, economics, history, political science and sociology graduate schools and departments.

District 5, which includes the anatomy, bacteriology, nutrition, biomedical engineering, genetics, neurobiology, occupational therapy, physical therapy, pathology, pharmacology, physiology, rehabilitation counseling, speech and hearing and dentistry graduate schools and departments.

District 8, which includes the classics, comparative literature, English, folklore, geology, Germanic languages, journalism, linguistics, library science, philosophy, RTVMP, recreation administration, religion, Romance languages, Slavic languages and speech graduate schools and departments.

Rainfall raises University Lake level 14 inches to 43 below full

By TRACY ADAMS Staff Writer

The recent rainfall in the Chapel Hill area pushed up the level of University Lake by 14 inches, but mandatory water restrictions remain in effect, Orange Water and Sewer Authority officials said Monday.

"At this time the (mandatory) restrictions remain in effect," said Everett Billingsley, executive director of OWASA. "We're in better shape than we were before, but working with uncertainties like the weather make it difficult to determine if the restrictions can be lifted."

Pat Davis, an OWASA spokesman, not as unusual as it seemed. "When you have a 31-square-mile watershed, it takes time for the water to flow in," Davis said. "The light rain also helped the ground reach its saturation point, when all the water started flowing in the streams and eventually into the lake."

Davis said 2.19 inches of rain were recorded at water plant from 8 a.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday.

"The rain in October has been abnormal," Billingsley said. "We've had about two times the normal amount."

While it was raining in Chapel Hill over the weekend, most UNC students were out of town for Fall Break. Their absence helped ease the water consumption level. Consumption averaged four million gallons during the break and was 3.7 million gallons Sunday. OWASA's target level is 5.5 million gallons.

Billingsley said he met Monday with officials from the Orange County Commissioners, Hillsborough Town Board and the Orange-Alamance Water System to discuss solutions to the county prob-

Volleyball team wins Maryland tourney

From staff reports

The UNC volleyball team captured the University of Maryland Invitational this weekend at College Park, Md.

On Friday, the Tar Heels defeated George Mason, 15-7, 15-8, then beat Delaware, 15-4, 15-7, 5-15, 17-15. UNC won three more matches Saturday, beating Georgetown, 15-4, 15-9, and Clemson, 15-9, 14-16, 15-7, before defeating Princeton, 15-9, 15-4, in the championship game.

The Tar Heels had defeated Maryland Thursday in College Park, 15-9, 13-15, 15-13, 15-6, and are now 5-0 in the ACC. Their overall record is 17-6.

UNC plays Duke at 8 p.m. today in Carmichael Auditorium.

Amy Machin scored three first-half goals to lead the secondranked North Carolina women's soccer team to a 9-0 rout of N.C. Wesleyan Sunday at Fetzer Field.

UNC, which played many of its reserves for much of the game, also got goals from Joan Dunlap, Kathy Kelly, Allison Lippard, April Heinrichs, Stacev Fnos and Senoa Allan.

3. North Carolina	7-0	8. Michigan
4. Florida	6-0-1	9. Illinois
5. Auburn	6-1	10. Maryland

The Tar Heels dominated the rain-drenched game by outshooting Wesleyan, 45-6, while holding the Bishops scoreless with the goalkeeping of Beth Huber and Kathleen O'Dell.

The victory gives UNC a 14-1 record. The Tar Heels have not lost since their season-opening defeat against top-ranked Connecticut.

The Kentucky women's golf team captured first place in the rain-shortened Lady Tar Heel Golf Tournament Saturday at Finley Golf Course. North Carolina finished third out of 19 teams in the eighth annual tournament.

The tournament, originally scheduled for 54 holes, was cut to 36 holes after rain forced cancellation of Sunday's third round.

Kentucky carded rounds of 302-310-612 to defeat secondplace South Florida by six strokes. North Carolina, with rounds of 319 and 309, finished 16 shots behind the Wildcats.

Duke's Mary Ann Widman won the individual title with 74-72-146. UNC's low scorer was Page Marsh, who finished sixth at 77-75-152.
