

Building renamed to honor UNC's Brinkhous, Bullitt

By JIM YARDLEY
Staff Writer

UNC honored the first two chairmen of the department of pathology this weekend when it renamed a medical school building for Dr. Kenneth Brinkhous and the late Dr. James B. Bullitt.

The preclinical education building was renamed the Brinkhous-Bullitt Building in honor of the two men's service to the University.

The School of Medicine also dedicated its new hospital and medical technology laboratories and unveiled a portrait of Louise Ward. Ward is the founder of medical technology education at the University.

All of this took place Friday and Saturday as part of activities sponsored by the department of pathology, the division of laboratory medicine and the division of medical technology. Seminars were also held on topics such as microbiology, clinical toxicology and cytology by University professors and alumni.

"I am very pleased and happy about this honor," Brinkhous said. "I am gratified to have been associated with this great University for so many years."

Brinkhous came to the University in 1947 and was chairman of the pathology department from then until 1973. He still serves on the faculty in the department. Brinkhous was elected to the National Academy of Science in 1972 and in 1981 he received the Gold-Headed Cane Award of the American Association of Pathologists, the highest honor given to pathologists.

"Dr. Brinkhous is known throughout the world for his work with blood coagulation, which led to the first effective control of hemophilia," said medical center spokesman Kathy Bartlett.

Bullitt served as chairman of the pathology department from 1913 until 1946 and was particularly interested in tumor research, Bartlett said. He studied trichinosis in rats and was particularly well-known for his interest in medical history.

Kenneth Brinkhous

"Dr. Bullitt is regarded as one of the four great leaders in the UNC School of Medicine during the first half of the 20th century," Bartlett said.

Montoya's performance full of vitality

By STEVE CARR
Staff Writer

Bringing folk music into the concert hall is not a totally revolutionary concept. Stravinsky incorporated Russian folk tunes into his earlier ballets, and Bela Bartok made a life-long obsession out of recording the burly, earthy Hungarian melodies.

There is, however, a certain novelty to a concert based solely on folk-like Flamenco music, but any doubts that guitarist Carlos Montoya was not equal to the challenge were quickly dispersed when he stepped onto the Memorial Hall stage Friday night. His technical and expressive control over the guitar were more than evident.

Flamenco music originates from the gypsies of Andalusia, a province in Spain

Its origins can be traced even further to Oriental and Jewish cultures. It lacks a strict meter and is rather limited in its melodic and harmonic content; however, it is heavily ornamented and evocative in mood.

The most interesting aspect of Friday night's concert was that there were none of the traditional Flamenco dancers or singers. The whole force of the concert rested on a solo guitar.

Montoya, 80, gave a performance that was full of vitality. And in some of the more lively, dance-like pieces, the minor chords were strummed with incredible bravado. In lyrical passages, Montoya maintained full control over the plucked notes, especially those on the fingerboard. Oddly enough, there was a coherence to these violent mood sways. Much of the music was improvisational, and Montoya lent his own interpretation to the pieces. Perhaps the bridge between the gutsy chords and the tender melodies can be attributed to Montoya's own arrangements and his improvisational skill. The guitar lost its traditional role as an accompanying instrument and brought in all the qualities present in Flamenco music.

Montoya's musical perspective gave the entire program an indisputable unity. Although there were more than 15 pieces on the program, the concert was actually one long, masterful, technical showcase for a genuine artist.

It was more than a novelty — the concert became a unique musical experience that also made sense.

Independent group to do 'DTH' campus calendar

As of Nov. 10, the Daily Tar Heel's Campus Calendar will be coordinated by the Carolina Student Fund.

The calendar, which has appeared daily in the past, will now appear only on Thursdays.

The format of the new calendar will remain similar, said Scott Baker, the CSF member in charge of the calendar.

"It will pretty much be the same as it has been in the past, but it will include more fraternity and sorority activities," he said.

Submissions for the events occurring on or after Nov. 10 should be taken to a drop box that will be placed outside the CSF office on the third floor of South Building. They must be turned in by 5 p.m. on Tuesdays before the Thursday of its publication.

DTH editor Kerry DeRochi explained the reasons for the change.

"The CSF was organized to coordinate student activities," she said. "This is a perfect way to coordinate those groups and increase communication between them."

"Also, it will be presented in a more readable form. Students can cut it out once and have the entire week's activities before them."

The calendar will continue to be limited to University-recognized organizations, but will include more social activities open to the entire campus. It was limited to campus organizations last year after space limitations and an increased number of submissions forced the size of the calendar to be reduced.

The CSF was organized last year by the administration of former Student Body President Mike Vandenberg to coordinate the fund-raising activities of all campus organizations so they would not overlap. It has since become an independent organization headed by president Maria Baxter.

The CSF got off to a start when the Athletic Association presented it with a check for $15,000 from receipts from last year's Thanksgiving football game.

— JIM ZOOK

BLOOM COUNTY

by Berke Breathed

CAMPUS CALENDAR

Compiled by Reggie Holley

TODAY'S ACTIVITIES

- The Committee for Hunger Responsibility will meet at 4 p.m. at the Campus Y.
- Remember the Die-In. Its sponsor, STAND, will meet at 3:30 p.m. at the Campus Y to discuss films, speakers and nuclear missiles.
- The UNC Outing Club will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union. All interested may come and join.
- The Performing Arts Committee will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union. Check desk for room number.
- Delta Sigma Pi will hold a business meeting at 6:30 p.m. in 300 Old Carroll.
- An interviewing workshop conducted by Career Planning and Placement will be at 2 p.m. in 210 Hanes.
- Christian Aerobics will be held at 5:30 p.m. at the Baptist Student Center.

COMING EVENTS

- The UNC Young Democrats will present a forum for the 1984 Democratic candidates for state attorney general Tuesday at 7 p.m.
- Maramatha Ministries invite you to a miracle service Tuesday at 7 p.m. in 104 Howell Hall. Evangelist Nick Pappis will speak.
- Meet Democratic candidate for [Governor] Eddie Knox Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. in 211 of the Union. Candidate Knox will depart at 3:45.
- The November 12th Coalition for the protests march against U.S. intervention in Central America will meet Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in 321 Greenleaf.
- Law School Admission Test is due December 3. Applications must be postmarked by Thursday, Nov. 3. Applications are available in Nash Hall.

The Democratic Socialists of America will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in 316 Greenleaf.

The Undergraduate Geography Association will have a meeting on Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the student lounge on the third floor of Saunders.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

- Dus Wandere Oktoberfest! Put on your Lederhosen and come to the Oktoberfest Friday at 8 p.m. The event will be held at the Community Church on Mason Farm and Purefoy roads.
- Career Planning for the Liberal Arts Student is a course for freshmen and sophomores who are undecided about career direction and major (Special Studies 90, Section 2, Spring Semester). To register, contact the instructor in Nash Hall.
- Sign up for the Union squash tournament at the Union desk Nov. 1-11. Men and women of all skill levels are welcome. Prizes will be awarded. More information is available in room 200 of the Union.
- The United Christian Fellowship will be having a revival Oct. 31-Nov. 4 at First Baptist Church. Services start at 7:30 each evening. The speaker will be the Rev. Mack Timberlake.
- The Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity will hold a party Saturday from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. in Upendo Lounge.

A NEW CONCEPT IN STUDENT-ORIENTED CONDOMINIUMS COMES TO DOWNTOWN CHAPEL HILL.

Chancellor Square is in the avante garde of university-oriented condominiums sweeping the country with appeal to students, young professionals, parents and investors. Fifty-one townhouse-style and garden style condominiums are available at Chancellor Square.

Convenience

Located on Church Street across from Restaurant La Residence, Chancellor Square is within walking distance of the UNC campus, shops, restaurants, and famous sights and sounds of Chapel Hill.

Quality

High standards in materials and design will assure durability and create an ambiance consistent with the famous "village" character of downtown Chapel Hill. The buildings are of brick construction and each unit is complete with solid wood cabinets, full appliance packages, ceramic tiled bathrooms and other quality appointments throughout.

Sociality

Residents will enjoy meeting with friends in a beautifully landscaped courtyard with summer house, barbeque grills and recreational equipment. Stimulating social and cultural opportunities of the University are only minutes away.

Equity

Ownership with or without financing will build equity that represents a return on investment. An inquiry will bring you details about investment and tax advantages of ownership.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL OR WRITE:

Chancellor Square
P.O. Box 782
Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514
Phone: 919/942-7475

Chancellor Square

Dress Deliciously for Halloween!

Wear your Häagen-Dazs T-Shirt today and receive a free topping with each ice cream you purchase at:

The Chapel Hill Häagen-Dazs Ice Cream Shoppe

112 West Franklin St 942-7484

Estes Park
Booker Creek
Kingswood
Royal Park
UNIVERSITY LAKE

Triangle Communities The Apartment People

Now accepting limited applications for guaranteed fall occupancy. Avoid the lottery blues. Apply now! All apartments on the bus line to UNC. Call today for full information. 967-2231 or 967-2234.

GMAT

Call Days Evenings & Weekends

2634 Chapel Hill Blvd., Suite 112, Durham, NC 27707
919-489-8720/489-2348 or 1-800-672-5919

Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

11.75 PERCENT

interest on savings withdraw without penalty. Reduce your taxes.

M&NY
Tax-Deferred Annuity For UNC Employees

Sue Anne Henderson, Assoc.
Mary Anne Norwood
Laura Moore

Mutual of New York
PO Box 95161
Raleigh, NC 27625
872-8666

BROADWAY ON TOUR

LAST CHANCE FOR SEASON TICKETS!!
SAVE $20

PUMP BOYS and DINETTES
Friday and Saturday
Nov. 4 and 5

CRIMES OF THE HEART
Friday and Saturday
Jan. 13 and 14

AGNES OF GOD
Saturday and Sunday
Jan. 28 and 29

JOSEPH and his AMAZING technicolor dreamcoat
Friday and Saturday
Feb. 24 and 25

TICKETS AVAILABLE at UNION BOX OFFICE
12-6 Weekday 962-1449